AROUND THE CITY

Nine Drunks. The police arrested nine drunken men on Saturday night.

Fought on Pond Street. Policemen Perry and O'Leary have reported Joseph Foley and Edward Speight for fighting on Pond Street Saturday night.

Premises Not Locked. Saturday night the police report finding the door of a Dufferin Hotel sample room on King Square open, also a window of F. E. Holman's establishment on King street.

Prisoner Had A Fit. Early yesterday morning the police in central station found William Jackson in fits in one of the cells. Dr. D. E. Berryman was summoned and treated the prisoner.

Fire in West End. The West Side fire department were called out early Saturday afternoon by an alarm from box 221 for a slight fire in Joseph Vall's house on Prince street. No damage was done.

Police Called In. Policeman Totten was called into John Donnelly's house on the Marsh Road about 9.30 o'clock Saturday night to quell a disturbance that Donnelly's son William was creating.

Robert Riley Phillips. At 2.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon the funeral of Robert Riley Phillips was held from his late home, 64 Queen street. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Cody and interment was in Cedar Hill cemetery.

Patricia and Patrick. Two homes were made happy in the West End yesterday when the stork arrived at one residence with a baby girl and at the other home with a baby boy. The baby girl, Patricia, the little girl has been named Patricia and the boy Patrick.

Little Damage. Saturday night fire was discovered in the building of the Good Shepherd on Waterloo street, and a still alarm was sent in to No. 1 chemical station. The fire had started in the partition between the main building and the new laundry and it is not known just how it started. The partition and a couple of stringers were quite badly charred before the fire was quenched by the chemical. The damage done, however, will not be very great.

Left Too Soon. Every night a large number of young men congregate along Waterloo street between Union and Peter street and the residents of that locality are greatly annoyed thereby. The loafers only move when they see a policeman approaching. Last evening one resident's doorway was blocked with young men and a telephone message was sent to central station requesting a policeman to drive them away. When the officer arrived on the scene, however, the loafers had departed.

Hens Were Killed. William Beckett the guard of the chain gang, is grieved over the loss of a number of his hens. Guard Beckett resides on Kennedy street, North End, and in the rear of his residence he has a hen coop, with a large number of hens which he prizes very much. Saturday night some person broke into the coop and killed a number of the hens. Mr. Beckett is at a loss to know who committed the foul deed and will report the matter to the police, who will endeavor to find the guilty person.

Damage Done By Freshets. As a result of freshets caused by the heavy rainstorm of Friday, the highway bridge at Salmon River was swept away, and it is expected traffic at the point will be held up for some time. The Boy Shore Lumber Company had about 100,000 feet of logs carried away and the flood did some damage to their mill and dam at Salmon River. The bridge was destroyed by a heavy ice pack which piled up against it, and finally carried it away. Owing to the rapid breaking up of the ice, the freshet was one of the worst experienced at Salmon River for many years. The river overflowed its banks at many points and logs and ice are strewn along the shores in great confusion.

Millinery Opening. For many months past preparations have been going on for the formal spring opening of millinery, costumes and dresses announced to take place at F. W. Daniel & Company's today, Tuesday and Wednesday. A much larger collection of model hats will be shown than at any previous display, and the costume department will bear out its well earned reputation for having the prettiest suits. There will also be a showing of New York dresses from the same makers whose models were so much admired by the St. John ladies last spring.

Something New for Spring. We are all thinking of buying new apparel for Spring, but did it occur to you that last season's garments can be given a new lease of life. Drying on Dry Cleaning by Ungar's Laundry & Dry Works, 28 Waterloo street, will make them just like new. Think of the money you can save. Have your suit, dress or gown dyed a new shade for spring.

An English Attraction. It is a long while since we have been offered an English farce by an English company. To the many who have laughed at "The Private Secretary," "Charley's Aunt," and "Jane," the coming of William Hawtry to St. John in "Dear Old Billy" will be of great interest.

THREE BODIES FOUND NEAR CITY ON SATURDAY

James Hapenny Dies Suddenly at Home - Remains of George McAdoo Discovered in Field Near Cemetery - Boy Scouts Come Upon Corpse of William Hunter, in Rockwood Park, After Many Fruitless Searches.

There was considerable stir about the city on Saturday when no less than three men were found dead. The body of George McAdoo was found in a field near the Fernhill cemetery gate about nine o'clock in the morning. The body of James Hapenny was found in his home in Drury Lane about eight o'clock Saturday morning, and about two o'clock in the afternoon the remains of Wm. Hunter were found near one of the artificial lakes in Rockwood park.

After fruitless organized efforts on the part of Mounted Policeman Crawford and the Boy Scouts of the city, the remains of William J. Hunter, who disappeared from his home, 193 Waterloo street on Monday, March 4th, were discovered by chance Saturday afternoon by Bert Seeley of the Y. M. C. A. Scout Troop, accompanied by Kenneth Seeley and Jack Sullivan of the St. Paul's Scouts. The boys came upon the body quite accidentally about two o'clock in the afternoon when on a pleasure expedition to Long Lake.

When seen by a Standard reporter yesterday the boys who made the gruesome find Saturday displayed no reluctance to discuss their strange experience.

It appears that they had left home early in the afternoon carrying a lunch which they intended to eat at Long Lake. On reaching the artificial lakes in Rockwood park, they turned off the road and had proceeded about two hundred yards, Jack and Kenneth leading, when an exclamation from Bert Seeley, who was bringing up the rear, halted them.

"Hold a minute, fellows," he said, "who's that down there in the bushes?"

The three boys were standing on a rocky hill, and directly below them in the bushes they could just discern the form of a man lying prone upon his back. With youthful impetuosity the three dashed down the intervening hillside, only to be stopped abruptly by the hastily slight that met their gaze at the bottom. Lying on his back, his limbs partly covered with snow, with his head and feet turned off, was the figure of a man who had clearly been dead for some time. Foot prints in the snow, almost obliterated, led to the place where the body was found.

On a glance was sufficient to apprise the boys of the true nature of their find, and taking to their heels by common consent, they did not check their pace until the bear pit was reached. Here they found two employees of the park at work.

"We've found Mr. Hunter," said Bert Seeley, who acted as spokesman, as the three dashed breathlessly up. At first the men were inclined to doubt this assertion, but the obvious sincerity and distress of the boys was sufficient to dispell any suspicion of childish pranks.

A brief consultation only was needed to formulate a plan of campaign. They proceeded to the restaurant to telephone for the police and ambulance and then proceeded back to the scene of their discovery.

Sergeant Berryman, after notifying Coroner D. E. Berryman, proceeded to the park, placed the body in the ambulance and brought it into the morgue on King street east.

There are no signs of foul play, as all of the articles which Mr. Hunter had in his possession when he left home were with him when found and there were no signs of any injury having been inflicted.

Coroner Berryman said yesterday that he was quite satisfied Wm. Hunter met his death from exposure, and would not hold an inquest and has given permission for the interment of the body.

The deceased was in his 59th year, and the funeral will take place this afternoon from his late residence, 193 Waterloo street, at 2.30 o'clock.

James Hapenny, a middle aged man resided with his wife and a few children, at 15 Drury Lane which runs between Union and North streets. When he arrived home on Friday night he was very tired and instead of going to bed, he reposed on the sofa in one of the rooms for the night. During the night the upper portion of his body rolled off the sofa and rested on the floor. When Mrs. Hapenny arose Saturday morning and went to the room where she had left her husband on the night previous, she found him lying with his head and shoulders on the floor and his legs on the sofa. When she caught hold of him she was unable to find he was dead. Coroner D. E. Berryman was summoned and on examining the body he found death was due to suffocation. Permission was given to have the body made ready for burial, but the coroner had not decided up till last night whether or not he would hold an inquest. The deceased was a laborer and is well known about the city.

Friday afternoon George McAdoo, a painter, who boarded at 368 Haymarket Square, in company with John Mitchell and Frank Small took a walk out the Marsh Road and having a couple of bottles of liquor with them stopped in a field near the Fernhill Cemetery gate. The men became somewhat under the influence of the liquor and Small and Mitchell came into the city leaving their companion in the field. Being unable to take care of himself he perished from exposure during the wild storm of Friday night.

The finding of the body came about in rather an indirect manner. A farmer was in the city on Friday and purchased some goods from the F. A. Dykeman Company and as the driving was bad he was unable to bring his sleigh into the city but made arrangements for the company's teamster to haul the goods out the Marsh Road and transfer them to the farmer's sled. Driver Stackhouse took the goods out the road Saturday morning and to lead them on the sled it was necessary to procure a couple of pieces of deal from a nearby field. On entering the field for the deal Mr. Stackhouse found the body of McAdoo lying face upwards. Mr. Stackhouse notified Sgt. Kilpatrick who went to the scene and brought the remains in to the morgue on King street east.

Frank Small of 302 Brussels street, who was with McAdoo on Friday, speaking of the affair, said that he with McAdoo and John Mitchell, after procuring some liquor went out the Marsh Road about four o'clock Friday afternoon and stopped in a field near the cemetery gate. Small says that the three were somewhat intoxicated and that Mitchell left him there with McAdoo, Mitchell coming into the city on a team. Small says that he remained with McAdoo about half an hour and that McAdoo was in a stubborn mood and would not leave the place and when Small left him he was sitting on a pile of deals with his head in his hands. Small admits that it was not safe to leave McAdoo there but he (Small) arrived in the city about 6.15 o'clock Friday evening and did not tell anyone he had left McAdoo out in the field. He did not speak about it until he was informed on Saturday morning that McAdoo had been found there dead.

John Mitchell, the third man in the party, said that he with Small and McAdoo went out the road and were in the field but he did not remember what time it was when he left McAdoo and Small there and that he made no effort to bring McAdoo into the city with him.

A Notable Actor Coming. Seats for the engagement of England's greatest character actor, Wm. Hawtry and his company of London players will go on sale this morning. Mr. Hawtry and his distinguished company will be seen at the Opera House on Thursday, Friday and Saturday in a clean, clever three-act farce comedy called "Dear Old Billy." It is the product of the pen of W. H. Risque, a noted English writer, and is spoken of by the critics of Chicago, where the piece played an engagement running well into four months, as being the best company and farce seen in years, and for fun and speed excelling even such distinct English successes as "Charley's Aunt," "Jane" and "The Private Secretary."

SPECIAL CHANGES FOR LITTLE ONES

Wealth of beauty and almost endless variety of styles form the outstanding features of the exhibit of juvenile headgear at Marr's today, which is being devoted to the display of children's hats for early spring. Special attention has this year been given to the needs of the little ones and the firm's buyers have spared neither time nor effort in securing the very choicest that English, French and American millinery modistes have to offer in this particular line. This is the opportunity par excellence for mothers to select Easter headwear for the younger ones.

ROBERT EMMET WILL BE REPEATED TOMORROW
