Railway Track Layer.

A new railway track layer, with a crew of lorty men, will lay two miles of track a day. The track layer has a huge crane sixty feet long which projects forward over the road and hauls behind it a train of sixteen flat cars loaded with ties and rails. A continuous double line of cars moves constantly over rollers and earries the ties with it. Both rails and ties are seized at the proper time by the machinery and placed on the road in front of the train, where they shortly form part of the track over which it passes. This device is said to be the most expeditious as well as economical track layer in the world.

GROOM OF SINGLE HOUR

Wm. Lash Drops Dead at Guelph After Wedding Breakfast.

Galt the Home of His Bride For the Past Ten Years-Heart Failure the Guelph, Jan. 19.-Sudden and up der profoundly pathetic circumstances was the death of William Lash of Montreal, which occurred in this city yesterday afternoon. By it a groom of but an hour was hastened into eternity and a season of happiness and jubilation was turned into one of deer season.

and jubilation was turned into one of deep sorrow.

Mr. Lash was married at high noon to Miss Jean Anderson, the ceremony being performed by Rev. R. E. Knowles of Galt. The wedding breakfast had been served and the happy couple were preparing to take the train on their honeymoon when the groom suddenly fell to the floor and expired in a short time. Heart failure was the cause of his death.

The late Mr. Lash was a cousin of Z. Lash of Blake, Lash & Cassels, Toronto, and was secretary-treasurer of the Canada Tag and Label Printing Company of Montreal.

Galt Jan. 19.—News was received here yesterday afternoon from Guelph of the death at that city of Will H. Lash of Montreal, well known in this town, from which he had chosen his wife. Mr. Lash originally came from Newfoundland, but has lately resided in Montreal. His death on his wedding day is one of the saddest incidents ever recorded locally and has produced a feeling of profound grief throughout the comlocally and has produced a feeling of profound grief throughout the community in which the bereaved bride, nee Jean Anderson, has lived for ten years. R. M. Jaffray of Montreal, with whom the deceased was associated in a printing establishment, was a guest at the wedding, and with Mr. Lash when he expired. He will accompany the remains to Montreal.

For pay and allowances to militia $670,000 is granted, an increase of $104,750. The respectable sum of $1,328,500 is to be voted to the G. T. P. PUTTING IT STRONG.

But Doesn't It Look Reasonable?

This may read as though we were putting it a little strong, because it is generally thought by the majority of people that Dyspepsia in its chronic form is incurable or practically so. But we have long since shown that Dyspepsia is curable, nor is it such a difficult matter as at first appears.

is it such a difficult matter as at first appears.

The trouble with Dyspeptics is that they are continually desing, stary-ing themselves or going to the op-posite extreme or else deluging the ing themselves or going to the opposite extreme or eise deluging the already over burdened stomach with "bitters," "after dinner pills," etc., which invariably increase the difficulty even if in some cases they do give a slight temporary relief. Such treatment of the stomach simply makes matters worse. What the stomach wants is a rest. Now how can the stomach become rested, recuperated and at the same time the body nourished and sustained?

This is a great secret and this is also the secret of the uniform success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

This is a comparatively now remedy but its success and popularity leave no doubt as to its merit.

The Tablets will digest the food anyway, regardless of condition of stomach. The sufferer from Dyspepsia, according to directions, is to eat an abundance of good, wholesome food and use the tablets before and after each meal and the result will be that the food will be digested no matter how had your Dyspepsia may be, because, as before stated, the tablets will digest the food even if the stomach is wholly inactive. To illustrate our meaning plainly, if you take 1,806 grains of meat, eggs or ordinary food and place it in a temperature of 98 degrees, and put with it one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets it will digest the meat or eggs almost as perfectly as if the meat was enclosed within the stomach.

meat was enclosed within the stomach.

The stomach may be ever so weak yet these tablets will perform the work of digestion and the body and brain will be properly nourished and at the same time a radical, lasting cure of Dyspeps a will be made because the much abused stomach will be given, to some extent, a much needed rest. Your druggist will tell you that of all the many remedes advertised to cure Dispeps a none of them have given so complete and general satisfaction as Stuari's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not least in importance in these hard times is the fact that they are also the cheapest and give the most good for the least money.

The Passing of Chivalry. When gallantry prevalled in the south no woman was allowed to carry home a bundle of any kind. If any gentleman caught one in the act of lug-ging a purchase from some shop to her domicile he felt in duty bound to tip his hat, make low obeisance and beg the privilege of acting as her expressman. This common courtesy was accepted of all men in the spirit in which a queen would allow a vassal to serve her. Nowadays southern women, like their northern sisters, tote their own packages.

Appropriations for public works include $45,000; Bominion archives building, $200,000; Royal Mint at Victoria, Memorial Museum and other buildings, $250,000; additional to western departmental block, $85,000. For harbor and river improvements at Port Arthur and Fort William, $195,000 is granted. The sum of $157,000 is to be voted for surveys in connection with the Georgian Bay Canal.

A steambly service between Canada and New Zealand is subsidized to the extent of $50,000. For the establishment of Marconi stations $100,000 is granted an increase of $55,000, Submarine signal appropriations, $70,000. THE RIEL REBELLION. Part Played in That Event by His Late

As chief of staff to Gen. Middleton, the Earl of Minto, then Lord Melgund.

As chief of staff to Gen. Middleton, the Earl of Minto, then Lord Melgund, saw some rough campaigning in the Canadian rebellion of 1885, and on his recent ride across the prairies he must have recalled the time, twenty years earlier, when he rode there as a soldier, ever on the alert for the hidden foe. Col. Denison, in his interesting book, 'Soldiering in Canada,' gives the following account of his meeting with Lord Melgund:

"I was sound asleep in my tent about 4 o'clock the next morning. May 10, when I was awakened by hearing a voice saying to the sentry. Which is Col. Denison's tent? The sentry pointed it out, but I was up before he had done it, and pulling on my jack-hoots, which was all I had to do to be completely dressed, I unhooked the tent door and said to the officer, 'Come in' As he bent his head to come in, I saw a staff officer's cap, and thought it must be Capt. Freer, the general's aide, but when he got in and stood up I saw it was Lord Melgund was chief of staff, and that a battle had been fought the day before, and it startled me to see the chief of staff fifty-five miles to the rear by the morning. All this went through my mind in an instant, and I said, 'Wal news have you from the general?' He lowered his voice, so that the sentry should not hear him, and said, 'Well, it is not good.' What!' said I; 'surely he has not been defeated?' No,' he replied, 'but he has had a check. He tried to drive the enemy out, but could not succeed, and he has fallen back a little way, and formed, defeared with not been defeated? 'No,' he replied, 'but he has had a check. He tried to drive the enemy out, but could not succeed, and he has fallen back a little way, and formed a defence with his wagons, and there they are. Some thought he had better retreat, but it was considered that that would have a bad moral effect, and he has determined to stick it out.' He then said, 'I want to send off some telegrams at once.' The operator was away, trying to mend the line beyond us, but one of my sergeants was an excellent operator, so I awakened him and we went down to the station. On the side of an old hayrack, leaning against the back of the log shanty which constituted Humboldt, with his cipher book before him, Lord Melgund wrote out his despatches. I walked up and down the grass, and saw the sun rise on a lovely May morning, everything looking beautiful, and I could not help thinking of the anxiety this news would carry to many a home in Manitoba and Ontario.

So ry to Leave the Front. Sorry to Leave the Frent.

"Lord Melgund came back to our camp, where breakfast had been prepared. He then slept till about 1 p.m., when he had dinner, and I furnished him with a fresh horse to ride on towards Qu'Appelle. He never said a word about why he was seent down, but the impression was that it was to get up some regulars from Halifax. * * * * * Lord Melgund told me he was very from Halliax. * * * * Lord Melgund told me he was very much averse to leaving the front, but that tien. Middleton thought it necessary to send him, as he had important work for him to do. Just at this surious crisis of the campaign, the telegraph lines were constantly interrupted and the events were thickening. Lieut.-Col. Otter had been defeated at Cut Knife on May 2nd, and for four days the general was ening. Lieut.-Col. Otter had been defeated at Cut Knife on May 2nd, and for four days the general was entreached, about half a mile from the enemy's advanced posts. During this period Humboldt became the end of the telegraph line, and as I was in command there, and the telegraph operator away for some days trying to repair the line from Humboldt to Clarke's Crossing, the whole work had to be done by Sergt. Harry Wilson, of the Body Guatd, who was an expert operator. We were, of course, anxious about the general's position, and I asked Lord Melgund whether we should not bring out all the troops we could hurry up and march out to reinforce our comrades. He advised me to wait, and I found that at any time I could not get in cotriers to the camp and receive replies, then it would be best to telegraph to the Government that, as senior officer near, I was going to order forward all the troops that I could reach, and march to relieve the general. For unately I had not to take any such responsibility.

"I did not see Lord Melgund again for 14 years, when as Earl of Minto

"I did not see Lord Melgund again for 14 years, when as Earl of Minto and Governor-General he held his first reception in Toronto, when he reminded me of meeting the patrol of my men on their way to the Spatinew. He met them a few miles away from our post in the early dawn. Lord Melgund was accompanied by an orderly, the Hom. Mr. Fiennes, one of French's Scouts, a son of Lord Saye and Sile. When the patrol met them, two men rode out rapidly to each flank and surrounded them, much to the amusement of Lord Melgund was did musement of Lord Melgund was designed and surrounded them, much to the amusement of Lord Melgund was did musement of the lord Melgund was described and musement of the lord Melgund was described and melgund was desc them, much to the amusement of Lerd Meigund, who did not at first understand what they were doing. They showed him the way to our camp and then went on."

The Earl As An Imperialist.

Nearly every other historian of the memorable rebellion has had something to say about Lord Melgund, and one and all speak with the utmost respect of the soldierly qualities he there displayed. He was recommended for honors by Gen. Middleton, but unfortunately the general was at the time under a cloud, and his representations were not given much consideration. Since coming to Canada as Governor-General it has not been possible for His Excellency to prominently identify himself with any particular circle or interest, but it has been plain to all that he cherished the warmest recollection of his comrades on the prairie. The Earl of Minto's love for horses has been equally manifest, and no important race meeting in Canada has passed without his familiar figure being seen in the paddock.

During the winter many persons become victims of pneumonia. loody is immune from the summons of the death captain. It is served apon the strong as well as upon the weak. But there are certain rules of living which will reduce one's liability to the disease. From the bulletins of the health department and from oth-er authoritative sources the follow-ing rules may be set down for ob-servance:

Do not overheat the house. Most people habitually dwell in apartments the temperature of which is from 3 to 10 degrees too high.

Wear light underwear and heavy overcoats rather than heavy underwear and light overcoats.

Avoid mingling with crowds when extremely tired or when food has not been taken for a llonger interval than usual. Avoid becoming chilled when overtired.

Admit into all rooms where you live and work plenty of sunlight and fresh air.

fresh air.

Keep warm when indoors even if it is necessary to build fires in seasons when it is unusual to do so. Avoid indoor chill and dampness as much as possible. For this reason be careful to remove the chill before moving into apartments freshly papered or calcimined.

Be careful during variable weather. Where there is continual cold or constant warmth the disease is little known.

If you have an attack of the grip if you have an attata of the unusually careful about your diet the and about exposing yourself to the weather. Neglected colds develop into neumonia with startling rapids

Take plenty of exercise in the sunlight and fresh air. As good nursing is practically the only cure for pneumonia, so good living is practically the only preventive.
