PIE GOING OUT OF FASHION.

At Least That Is the Experience of Chi-

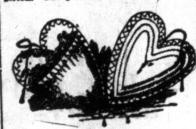

Pie is becoming extinct. In the better hotels and restaurants it occupies a less and less conspicuous place on the bill of fare, and very often is not even mentioned in any one of its infinite varieties. In private home, too, the pieeating habit is distinctly on the wane, and its place at dessert is taken by puddings, custards and ices. The lunch counter is really the only place in which pie holds a old-time osition and forms the crowning bite of a hasty lunch. The millionaire and the callow office boy were always most given to the pie habit, and many of them are still faithful to the standard cuts but the great majority have given | knife. up allegiance to the dyspeptic dainty.

"Yes, pie is going out of date," an old restaurant man said regretfully. "Time was when six kinds of pie were not considered too much for one day's bill of fare, and now our pastry cook makes but two varieties per day. What causes this decline of pie?

"Well, that is a hard question to answer, but I think the great outcry about its unhealthfulness has had a good deal to do with it. For years the doctors and the papers have been telling Americans that they were becoming a race of dyspeptics because they loved pie, not wisely, but too well. The New Englanders and New Yorkers were wont to think no meal was complete without pie, and they used to tell a story of an old man, who, when he was dying, said that he felt proud to say that he had been married for fifty years, and had never sat down to a meal without pie."-Chicago Chronicle.

The under part just inside the edge is covered with satin ornamented with a vine-worked brier stitch, and the pointed buttonhole is used around the outer side.

The two parts are joined at the point with a small cord or tassel, and a piece of cord or baby ribbon is attached to each at the upper points of the heart. This ties the two hearts together when the pocket is closed.

How to Roast a Turkey. This is the way the New Englanders prepare and wash a turkey: Lay it on its side on a meat board and cut off the head. Cut the gizzard, neart and liver from the entrails, clean them well and put them n a stew pan. Pour cold water over them and set it with the stuffing through the gash cut to draw it. Sew this gash up and truss the legs down; then stuff the hollow of the breast truss the wings down. Sprinkle well

ESCAPE PILES And Dr. Chase's Ointment is th Only Positive and Guaranteed cure for this Torcuring Disease

There is usually very little satisfaction in consulting a physician re-garding a case of piles. In nine cases out of ten he will recommend a surgical operation, forgetting, it may be, the risk, suffering and phy-sical as well as financial expense which this treatment entails. For this reason very many people are going about in misery with pites, be-lieving that they cannot be cured except by means of the surgeon's

It is to such persons that this advertisement will bring good news of great value. Dr. Chase's Omtment has grown in popularity until to-day it is recognized the world over as the standard outment for the cure of itching, burning skin diseases, and as absolutely the only preparation that can be relied upon to cure every form of piles.

It seems strange that anyone should suffer the wretched uneasiness and acute fortune of burning, itching piles when it is so easy to procure Dr. Chase's Omtment. Near-la avery dealer in medicine keeps Dr. ly every dealer in medicine keeps Dr. Chuse's Omtment, and you can apply it at home without any inconvenience. The first application is usually sufficient to put an end to the itching, and it is rarely that more than one box is required to make a thorough cure.

Mr. F. Stokes, 116 Dunlop stree Barrie, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with blind, itching piles for years, and could get nothing to stop the constant itching. I was always in pain until a friend of mine told me of the wonderful cures Dr. Chase's O'ntment had made among his acquaintances.

"I only used one box, and am entirely cured. In gratitude for this marvellous cure, and for the benefit of others suffering as I did, I send you this record of my case."

Mr. George Thompson, a leading merchant of Blenheim, Ont., states: "I was troubled with itching piles for fifteen years, and at times they were so bad I could scarcely walk. I tried a great many remedies, but never found anything like Dr. Chaise's

Hosts of cases in which Dr. Chase's been reported in the Canadian press. Should you want to know more about it ask your druggist or your neighbor. HERO OF TWO CONTINENTS

largule De Lafavette's Statue in the Court HE United States and France have always had the warmest feelings of friendship for each other since the Revolutionary war, when the American colonies were so sadly in need of riends and were so grateful for the aid and personal services of the Mar-quis de Lafayette, and a number of

This friendship has often been ex-pressed by the making of public gifts from the people of one country to an-other. The first gift was that made other Frenchmen. by the King and Queen of France, Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette, of a tea service of Sevres china to Mrs. Washington. Many of the pieces of this famous and almost priceless ware are in the china cabinets at the White-House. The government of France presented to the people of the United States, in 1886, the colossal statue of Liberty Enlightening the World, by Bartholdi, that stands at the entrance to New York harbor on Bedloe's Island. The women of the United States presented to France an equestrian statue of Washington by Daniel C. French and Edward C. Potter. And as an assurance that the friendship between the two countries was to continue, the school children of the United States made a gift to France of an equestrian statue of Lafayette, by Paul

Bartlett. This noble figure stands in the Court of the Louvre, Paris, unveiled on the Fourth of July with public ceremonies, and in the presence of thoueands of Americans, and of people from other countries. The placing of the group in the Court of the Louvre is a great honor. The Louvre was once the chief royal palace of France, and for four hundred years kings and emperors and republican governments have added to it and enriched it, until now it is one of the most beautiful works of architecture of the world. Since the downfall of the old monarchy in 1793 it has been a museum of art, and it now contains a collection o statuary and paintings that is second only to that of the Vatican in Rome.
IN MILITARY COURT COSTUME.

This statue of Lafayette was designed to be in harmony with the palace, whose west front is in classical style with more than 500 pairs of Corinthtan columns. The Marquis is repre sented in military court costume with riding boots, cocked hat and sword, but also in embroidered velvet coat lace ruffles and powdered hair. His horse is groomed in the stiff fashion of classic days, with braided mane and clubbed tail. This is all very characteristic of Lafayette who remained a courtier and member of the old nobility to the end of his days, and at the same time was the daring leader of a new era. When he first saw the American flag he said that the tricolor would go around the world until all men were free and self-governing. Fourteen years later he dared, in the early days of the French revolution, to befriend the unhappy King and Queen and to try to save them from a violent death. He was probably the only man in France who could have done that and himself have escaped death. In this statue he is represented as a years old, when in 1777, he offered his sword to the cause of freedom. He lived to be nearly 80 and took part in all the political changes in France up to 1835. In 1824 he revisited the United States and was present at the laying of the corner stone of Bunker Hill monument. He visited Andrew Jackson at the old log cabin Hermitage in Tennessee, was entertained at St. Louis, and at Kaskaskia on the Missesippi, in the first capital of Illinois that now lies in the bed of the river The whole country did him honor and his trip that extended over several months, and was made in steamboats, on horseback and in stage coaches, was a series of splendid public entertainments. There are men living who remem ber the white haired Marquis (who was then 68 years old) and his affable manner and keen interest in the wonderful development of this country. To the Indians he was a hero, and many a sulky chief traveled from his home on the plains to grasp the delicate, blue-veined hands that had struck such good blows in the cause of reedom. To American school children he will always remain one of the great men of the world. So it is fitting that their gift to France should be statue of his hero of both countries.

Child Life in Liberia. "When a child is born in Liberia some member of the family is sent at once to the devil doctor to inquire who It is and what its name shall be," says a missionary who has had charge of the Garraway Mission in Liberia twelve years, according to an exchange. "He goes to the top of the house, taking with him a horn, which he blows to call the devil, because it is he who is supposed to tell who it is that has returned to the world. The Liberians believe that every baby is some deceased member of the family, come back to live among them.

"A young mother is never allowed to care for her own child, but is com pelled to give it to an older woman be cared for. These nurses may be seen out of doors any morning, sitting on upright sticks of wood, rubbing the inside of the babies' throats with pepper, until the poor infants are half strangled and altogether miserable with nausea. After this heroic treatment they are laid to sleep on a floor mat, by the fire and the 'fittest' sur
