A Catch Question. Of Bishop Short, who held the see of St. Asaph, many curious stories are told. Occasionally he put questions to candidates for ordination that apparnetly had no connection with the dis-charge of their parochial dulies. They tested probably their wit or tact, two necessary qualifications to public men, but nothing more. One such question proposed by the bishop was the fol-lowing: "Which has the greatest number of legs, a cat or no cat?"

As might be expected, this created a titter, but the bishop would not take a laugh as the answer, and consequently he repeated the question and desired some one to solve the problem. At last one of the candidates, smiling, said, "I one or the candidates, smiling, said, "I should think, my lord, a cat."

"No," retorted the bishop; "there you are wrong, for a cat has four legs, and no cat has five."—London Telegraph.

Mrs. W. J. Wilson, Tessier, Sask. tells of her experience in the following words: "I wish to tell you of the good I have found in Dr. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY. Last summer my little girl, aged two years, was taken ill with Summer Complaint, and as my mother always kept Dr. Fowler's in the house, when I was a child, I seemed to follow her example, as I always have it also. I at once gave it to my baby as directed and she was at once relieved, and after a couple of doses were taken was completely cured."

Mr. Chamberlain Not Likely to Enter Political Field Again.

It is interesting to note that the governor of the Bank of England is never a banker. There is no reason why he should not be, and several why he should, says P.T.O. In the early days of the Bank of England the idea prevailed that it would be against the interests of the bank to appoint as governor any person in-It is probable that the recent special cable to The New York World announcing that Mr. Chamberlain was announcing that Mr. Chamberian was dying was a serious exaggeration of the facts. English papers just coming to hand, however, describing his return from abroad, indicate that the great Unionist leader is a physical wreck and is unable to walk without against the interests of the bank to appoint as governor any person interested in competitive banking concerns. The Bank of England has, of course, long since attained a position which renders it practically immune from competition, but it rigorously adheres still to sucient custom, with the rather curious result that the head of the most important banking concern in the world is never a man who has been trained in banking business, and he, of necessity, understands less about the business than many bank managers. The governor is, however, the aid of someone on either side. He was scarcely able, indeed, to raise his hand to return the salutes of the friends who greeted him at the rail-

RT. HOW. JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN. way station in London. There can be but one explanation of the symptoms—the dread word paralysis. Mr. Chamberlain's career is over, and, while he may in some measure recover strength, his friends will not suffer him to again risk his life in the hurly-burly of politics.

The political opponents as well as the party associates of the Right Hon. gentleman will learn of his real condition with sincere regret. Mr. Chamberlain has stimulated thought and radical action along meny lines. He berlain has stimulated thought and radical action along many lines. He is seventy-four years of age, and the first half century of his life was devoted largely to business as a manufacturer, and to his greatest work, the re-creation of the municipality of Birmingham. He was thrice Mayor of Birmingham. and the housing and street opening projects, which, together with the forward policy in regard to the ownership and operation of public utilities: have made the city the Mecca of municipal reformers, of public utilities; have made the city

the Mecca of municipal reformers, were almost all inaugurated during his period of office.

He entered Imperial politics in 1876
as radical of the Radicals, and in one of his speeches he compared the landowners to the lilies of the field—"They owners to the fines of the field. They toil not, neither do they spin"—and suggested the laying of heavy burdens upon the land-owning class. The Tory squires, in all their twenty years of association with him since that time, have never forgiven the "Ransom" speech.

speech.
In 1885 Mr. Chamberlain, then high in Gladstone's favor and a member of the Government, bolted from Liberalism on the home rule bill, and since that day has been known as a characterist helding office as Liberal-Unionist, holding office as such under Salisbury and Balfour. His fight for the restoration of protection by the name of preference is too recent to require more than mention. His strenuous campaigning before the last general election admittedly undermined his health.

BRITISH NAVY SCANDAL

Parliamentary Committee Unearths

System of Graft. System of Graft.

"Grave irregularities" is the term the Parliamentary Committee on Public Accounts gives to certain conditions in the navy on which it issued a report recently. The committee found that a widespread custom was the acceptance of commissions from contractors by petty officers, but the report adds that severe disciplinary measures have been adopted to suppress the custom.

The committee objects strongly to the action of the Admiralty in contracting for the construction of the armored cruisers Invincible, Inflexible and Indomitable without competition, although the Admiralty officials explained that they wished to keep the plans secret.

plained that they wished to keep the plans secret.

The committee finds that the builders of the battleship King Edward VII. secretly patched up a defective cast rudder, which the Government was obliged to replace. The builders gathered together a few of their employes on a certain Sunday, and by electric welding, concealed a huge fault in the rudder.

The report of the committee says: "We hope it will not again be our duty to investigate a case where a British firm, for commercial advastage, will callously hazard the lives of hundreds of their fellow-countrymen."

THE GREEN SUN.

It Was Noticed and Commented Upon by the Ancient Egyptians

The appearance of a green light at sunset was noticed and commented upon by the ancient Egyptians and particularly so because in the clear air of Egypt the tints of sunset are peculiarly distinct.

As the sun there descends nearer and nearer to the horizon and is immensely enlarged and flaming, it sud-denly becomes for an instant a brilliantly green color, and immediately a series of green rays suffuses the sky in many directions, well nigh to the zenith. The same phenomenon appears at sunrise, but to a smaller extent. times, just as the last part of the sun's disk vanishes, its color changes from green to blue, and so also after it has disappeared the sky near the horizon often is green, while toward the zenith it is blue. This was alluded to in Egyptian writings. Day was the emblem of life and night that of death, and the noc turnal sun, being identified with Osiris, thus rendered Osiris king of the dead. The setting sun was green; therefore Osiris, as the nocturnal deity of the dead, was painted green. The splendid coffins of the high priests of Ammon frequently depict the green sun, and the funeral delties are all colored the Egyptian relics of representations relative to death being colored green. The practice undoubtedly arose from the green tints of sunrise and sunset The green sun disk is referred to 5,000 years ago in Egypt. This is the earliest known human record of an as-tronomical phenomenon.

ABYSSES OF OCEAN.

Extent of the Deep Waters and Their Tremendous Pressure.

More than half the surface of the globe is hidden under water two miles deep. Seven million square miles lie at a depth of 18,000 feet or more. Many places have been found five miles and more in depth. The greatest depth yet sounded is 31,200 feet, near the island of Guam. If Mount Everest, the world's highest mountain, were plucked from its seat and dropped into this spot the waves would still roll 2,000 feet above its crest.

Into this terrific abyss the waters press down with a force more than 10,-000 pounds to the square inch. The stanchest ship ever built would be crumbled under this awful pressure like an eggshell under a steam roller. A pine beam fifteen feet long which held open the mouth of a trawl used in making a cast at a depth of more than 18,000 feet was crushed flat as if it had been passed between rollers.

The body of the man who should attempt to venture to such depths would be compressed until the flesh was forced into the interstices of the bone and his trunk was no larger than a rolling pin. Still the body would reach the bottom, for anything that will sink in a tub of water will sink to the uttermost depths of the ocean.-Exchange,
