Change With Seasons.

Cost the Philosopher Three Pails of Beer to Corroborate His Theory About the Goose-Takes a Mean Advantage of Mrs. Bowser.

[Copyright, 1906, by C. H. Sutcliffe.] Bowser had hardly entered the use the other evening as he returned from the office when he inquired as to the whereabouts of the family cat. Being informed that Grimalkin was circulating around the neighborhood somewhere, he dropped the matter, and, though Mrs. Bowser directly questioned him, he made evasive reolles. It was not until dinner was over and they had returned to the sitting room that the cat walked in and took his accustomed place on the rug. Mr. Bowser at once gave the feline his full attention and kept it up so long that

Mrs. Bowser petulantly demanded: "Now, what on earth do you see about that old cat to interest you? One would think you were a child and see ing a cat for the first time.'

"None whatever." tion yesterday I should have answered the same way. Now I must tell you that I see a dozen changes. You will observe that his eyes are brighter and have a more intense color. There is a certain elation about him. There is an alertness that strikes you at once. He is no longer morbid or lymphatic. He is no more the cat he was last August than day is like night." "Well?" asked Mrs. Bowser.

"Well, the same or other changes have taken place in all other animals-In the horse, the ox, the dog, the fowls of the air and of the coop. They have taken place in mankind itself. Ever since the world was created there have been changes of seasons, but up to this present moment mankind has not been ready to admit that all things change with the seasons. It stands to reason that they do however."

"And, if they do, then what?"
"Then we have solved one of the human problems. If man changes his nature four times a year, as the seasons change, then he has but to discover when he is at his best and his worst to guard against things. Am I the man I was last spring or last

"But haven't we got to take hun nature as we find it, good and bad? asked Mrs. Bowser.

"We have had to, but when we find human nature's best and worst seasons we can shape our course accordingly. Suppose that the spring season is your mean and cantankerous season. soon as I discover it I treat you differ-Suppose my cantankerous season is the summer. You know it, and you don't talk back to me during those three months. Is crime more rampant in spring, summer, autumn or winter, and why? Are there more divorces in March than November? Does our con science upbraid us more in January than July? Why should we give a tramp 10 cents in September and the boot in April?"

It was beyond Mrs. Bowser, and she simply shook her head.

"It is changes, my dear, changes Last August I seriously thought of getting a divorce from you for your Tonight I feel that I could not sever the bond under any circumstances; not even if you smashed half the crockery in the house. What has changed m except the change of season? If man has criminal desires in the spring he must fight them off until summ If the summer makes a man soft and mellow and an easy mark, he must have a guardian appointed until Sep-tember comes. I already begin to un-derstand that my season for being real good begins with the first fall month.

What I shall be during the winter season is a mystery at the present mo-ment. The magazine article that I referred to says that the change is more observable in the goose than in any other living thing."

"That's queer."
"So it is, but it will not long re-There's a man down the street who keeps geese by the score, and I propose to drop down and have a little talk with him. Like the rest of humanity, I have always supposed that a goose was a goose the year round, but if it is true that she changes her disposition four times a year I want to give her all proper credt.

"I'd let the goose part of it go if I were you," said Mrs. Bowser, feeling trouble in the air all of a sudden.
"But there is the foundation of the whole question, you see. Does the goose change with the seasons? If she does, then why not all other living things, man included? If she changes, what are the changes? I'll be back in an hour and tell you all about it, and I may think best to sit up the rest of the night and write an article dealing with the question." When Mr. Bowser left the house he fire engines crossed his path, but they could not tempt him aside. There was a free for all fight among a lot of longshoremen, but he refused to halt. A tramp wanted him to stop and argue on the amount of food a man could live on for a week, but he was brushed aside. The goose man was in his goos-ery, as it behooved him to be, and within five minutes of his arrival Mr. Bowser had stated his case. Did a goose change with the season? Under the head of goose he included gander as well. The promptness of the goose man was rather surprising.

"If you will send for a pail of beer sir, we'll talk," he said, and his little soon returned with a two quart pail frothing over. He took it that Mr.

as soon as more beer arrives we will take up summer. Dan, the gentleman is handing you 10 cents for more beer. When the pail came back and had been duly looked into, the goose man continued:

"When spring runs into summer the goose gets cranky. He drops poetry and love and moonlight and won't take a word from nobody. He become morbid. He reasons that all the world is agin him, and it is then that he attacks and devours young children. If you have a young and innocent child, sir, let it beware of the summer goose.

"Nonsense! I have heard of a goose chasing a person, but as for inflict-"You are talking to a man who has lived his life among them, sir. If you were to hand Danny another 10 cents, he would get another pall of beer, and we would pass on to the fall season."

Mr. Bowser hesitated, but finally handed out the money, and four or five minutes later the goose man, refreshed and in good spirits, was saying: "September has hardly come, sir, when the goose begins to show a disposition to make a ass of hisself. He wants hair renewer for his bald head, though he knows that it won't renew. He bosses and bulldozes and thinks he's a devil of a fellow, and the only way to tame him down"-

"What are you driving at?" sharply demanded Mr. Bowser as he rose up. "Danny," said the goose man to his "the gentleman will hand you 10

"The gentleman will do nothing of the kind!" replied Mr. Bowser.

A sergeant major of an infantry regiment stationed in Bremen was sen tenced to a slight disciplinary punishment for having mortally wounded a man with a revolver in the course of a fight. He appealed against this, but was informed that his appeal had been rejected. He then ordered his men to load their rifles with blank cartridges, but during their absence reloaded them with ball cartridges. He then drew up his men in firing line and carefully showed them how to aim their rifles straight at his heart. With the utmost caim he then ordered, "Fire?" and fell with four bullets through his heart.

Making Baby's Hair Curly.

Young mothers may be glad to know that a baby's hair may often be encouraged to curl naturally if it is brushed upward and twisted round the finger while it is wet. Brushing downward rather encourages a child's hair to grow straight. The upward brushing is not becoming for the time, and this is no doubt the reason that so few care to persevere with the idea, but if well repays one afterward. Of course it is not every head of hair that responds to the treatment, but in that a baby's hair may often be en-couraged to curl naturally if it is
