The Beautiful Patriotism of the Boozie Business.

That is a good heading, now isn't it? It has a real nice alliterative sound to it. But we would wager a farm—if we had it—that there isn't a man, woman or child in the whole Dominion of Canada outside the lunatic asylums, who would let it pass. Trust

Why the devil himself, sitting up nights, couldn't manufacture a bigger or more bold-faced lie than is suggested by it. There are some untruths that can be got off on the public, but a man wouldn't have much of a chance with that one.

Here is an item: "We are willing for our sons to become soldiers; we are willing for them to fight for their country, we do not mind their being killed, but we do not want them to become drunks."

"Where did you get that?" you ask. Well, it was part of the evidence given by Col. Clingan at Brandon, Man., the other day in connection with the commission investigation touching the licenses in Brandon and Carberry, nearly related to the Sewell Camp. Col. Clingan said that parents out west had a far greater dread of the liquor peril for their sons than they had of German bullets or erysipthous gases, and that the facilities for getting liquor greatly hindered recruiting. And this straight-forward stout-hearted soldier did not hesitate to say that the open bar was the open face of the country's cause, and that cause was in the hands of the soldiers in training. Fine patriotism that, isn't it?

And, by the way, it would do you good to read some of the evidence presented to the commission above mentioned. And if in reading it you wouldn't get more righteously indignant over the patriotism shown by some boozie sellers than you get even when reading the story of German frightfulness, then we fancy your own patriotism needs a little fixing up.

Last week our local papers reported that a conference had been held between certain military authorities and members of the License Commission relative to future action touching the sale of liquor in those centres where soldiers would be in training for the winter. And it was intimated, though no details were given, that the commission would not likely see its way to do all in the way of restricting the traffic that the military authorities were asking for. And the question that has been asking itself in our minds ever since has been, "Why couldn't they?" They have the power to do it. The military authorities ask for it because they believe it the best and the necessary thing to be done. And yet for some reason this best thing, this sensible, patriotic thing, is not to be done; but some thing less satisfactory and less patriotic is to take its place. And the only reason, of course, is that the traffic is insistent that the restriction be not too radical. Again the boozie business is standing right in the way of the country's good.

Did you ever know of any time or condition under which it did not stand in the way of the country's good? If you did, we wish you would tell us about it. And now that we are finding out what an infernal and eternal nuisance and hindrance it is, would it not be a sensible thing and a courageous thing, to rise up and do something about it?

We have Germans and Austrians and Turks in our detention camps here and there throughout the Dominion, but the most unpatriotic

Gained 30 Lbs. in Few Weeks Never Felt So Well

Was Pale, Weak and Thin, and Had Nervous Headaches Before Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is truly wonderful what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does for women who are weak, weary and run down in health. New, rich blood is what is needed in nearly all such cases, and because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new blood it brings cure—not more relief, but actual cure—in the great majority of such ailments.

With an abundance of rich, red, Mrs. H. Lark, blood coursing through the veins the nerves are strengthened and vitality is carried to every organ of the human body.

With the nerves properly nourished headaches and neuralgic pains disappear, appetite improves, digestion is good, you sleep and rest well, and gain in strength and weight.
