

SPOKE UPON INFECTION.

Dr. John Amyot Before the Hamilton Association.

Fine Address on Bacteria and Their Functions.

The Useful Kind and Those Which Spread Disease.

An earnest and enthusiastic audience was present at the regular monthly meeting of the Hamilton Scientific Association held in its museum room last evening, with the President, Lyman Lee, in the chair. After the regular business Mr. Lee spoke to a number of medical men who were present. He welcomed them to the meeting and hoped that they would connect themselves with the association. He then introduced the special speaker of the evening, Dr. John Amyot, who gave an excellent address on "Infection and its Avenues." Dr. Amyot is Provincial bacteriologist and well able to speak on such a subject. He stated that all diseases were not infective, but that many of them receive their infection from others. Bacteria were usually put down as the chief offenders, and while bacteria in some cases were the cause of disease, yet we could not live without them. They perform many great functions apart from carrying infection. The bacteria organism was the smallest in the vegetable kingdom. It was estimated that one drop of water would hold about seventeen million minute bacteria. Some of them are so small that they can scarcely be seen with the aid of a fine microscope. They are divided into three distinct classes—bacteria, or rod-shaped; micrococci, or round; and spirilla, or corkerew shape. Each bacteria was a separate individual by itself and could multiply very rapidly. Each one was constructed in the centre and within the course of thirty minutes divided into two separate bacteria. It was estimated that in 72 hours, if all the surrounding conditions were favorable, which was impossible, there would be 25 tons of bacteria, and at the end of five days the oceans would be filled. Some of these bacteria remain in the vegetable stage and never change. A pond class was called the spore class, or in the resistant stage. There were very few of this class, and it was this type that caused and spread disease. This organism lived very much like animals, and must have food already prepared for them. They partake of the material of plants and animals, dead or alive, although, fortunately, there were very few that fed upon living things. The dead bodies were decomposed by bacteria, and during the stage of decomposition gases were given off which provided the food for the plants. This was one of the chief functions of bacteria. Of all the numerous varieties of bacteria, there were forty-five which were poisonous and would produce death. The germs were often secreted in healthy people, and cases have been known where they have been carried for a great number of years, and although not affected with any disease themselves, they transmitted it to others with whom they came in contact. Dr. Amyot stated that there were a number of ways whereby the bacteria could get in the body. The normal skin was proof against them, but if the least break occurred in the surface of the skin it would admit a large number of them, which would travel to all parts of the body. If a collection of material accumulated in the hands, thus causing an eruption of the skin, it opened other channels whereby the bacteria may enter the body. A great quantity was carried into the intestines by being swallowed with the food that was being taken into the body. The covering of mucous on the membrane was so effective that it prevented the bacteria from going any further. The last way whereby bacteria could enter the body was through the little stinging insects. These little insects came in contact with the diseased people and transmitted the germs to every person they alighted on.

In conclusion the speaker gave a short account of a few of the yellow fever which caused such a death rate at the Panama Canal some years ago.

The audience showed their appreciation by the liberal applauding at the end of Dr. Amyot's lecture, and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to him.

CATTLE POISONING.

Father of Complainant Committed on That Charge.

Belleville, Oct. 15.—Inspector Reburn, of Toronto, was in Brighton lately working on a cattle-poisoning case, as a result of which Lewis Leland, a farmer, 74 years old, was committed for trial on a charge of poisoning a cow and horse belonging to his son, John W. Leland. It seems that apples had been plugged with paris green and strewn on the ground in the pasture where John Leland's stock fed. A cow died and a horse was taken very sick, but recovered. John Leland told Inspector Reburn that he suspected his father, and the officer investigated, making out a strong case against the old man, who was on Thursday committed for trial.

ENTERTAINED AT ZION.

Last Monday evening the Epworth League and Excelsior Club of Zion Tabernacle entertained the Normal students to the number of about one hundred and fifty, to a social evening.

Dr. J. E. Davey presided, and after a brief address of welcome by Rev. A. H. Goring, a splendid programme was disposed of, during which an informal time was spent in social intercourse.

After the programme, refreshments were served, and, judging from the expressions of pleasure, the teachers-in-training enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The features of the evening were a male quartette by Messrs. Shaver, Williams, Coome and Anderson, and a drawing match, by the students.

Next Monday evening this progressive league will hold a temperance election contest at which a silver medal will be competed for. Special treat has been secured, and an evening of more than ordinary interest is promised. A large number should avail themselves of this opportunity to aid the cause of temperance.

THANKSGIVING CAMPAIGN.

Great Work For the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A.

Hamilton's True Citizens Are Sure of Full Success.

The energetic citizens who have banded together to complete the great work of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. building campaigns have chosen a particularly appropriate time for their splendid efforts. The men have undertaken to raise fifteen thousand dollars for the young women and they are going to begin active work to that end on Thanksgiving Day. At that time there will be a banquet in the Y. M. C. A. building, to be attended by the workers. This will be made an occasion of very great enthusiasm, a fitting inauguration for a whirlwind campaign. During the five days following, the public will be invited to make subscriptions. Thus, throughout Thanksgiving week a pleasant opportunity will be given all the people to engage in a very practical form of thanksgiving by helping along this good work.

That the effort will be successful is a foregone conclusion. The men behind it have the best of reasons for being assured of complete success. In the past the response has always been very generous. The public thoroughly believe in the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. They know that money put into these organizations is a good investment.

The Y. W. C. A. needs $15,000; the Y. M. C. A. $10,000. These sums are required in order fully to complete the new buildings now under way and to equip them properly. The proposed Thanksgiving campaign is primarily for the Y. W. C. A. That association, about four years ago, started to raise money for a new building. Many subscriptions have been received from time to time, but the full amount needed has not been secured as yet. Some months ago, however, building operations were begun, and fifteen thousand dollars must be added to the sum in hand. For itself, the Y. M. C. A. must have ten thousand dollars in addition to the $55,000 pledged in June last, for the new boys' building. When the plans were completed it was found that the first estimate was too low. Or rather, it was discovered that at slightly larger cost a very much more creditable building could be put up, and in the interests of real economy it was judged to be wiser to build for the future and have a boys' department which should fulfill all requirements for ten years at least.

More than one thousand persons subscribed in June and it is not proposed to call upon these again in behalf of the Y. M. C. A. Many friends of the association were away at the time, and others for various reasons did not participate. This Thanksgiving campaign will be their opportunity. There will be two different pledge cards, one for the Y. W. C. A. and one for the Y. M. C. A. Subscribers may give to either or both, as they elect.

The Central Committee in charge of the work is as follows: representing the Y. M. C. A., Mr. Alfred Powis, chairman; Mr. F. F. Best, secretary, and Messrs. George Rutherford, J. J. Greene, J. Orr Callaghan, W. J. Waugh, F. W. Watkins. Representing the Y. W. C. A., Messrs. W. H. Wardrobe, K. C., W. A. Robinson, George H. Milne.

Under "General" Powis are ten "captains," as follows: Messrs. B. O. Hooper, D. M. Barton, Russell T. Kelley, N. E. Adams, George H. Lees, Frank McElroy, H. H. Horning, W. F. Brennan, W. H. Wardrobe, K. C., and F. R. Smith. Each of these "captains" is now selecting nine men, making a total force of one hundred for the active work of the campaign.
