A very sad and fatal shooting accident occurred at Midgell on Saturday afternoon last, by which Mr. Daniel Matheson, aged 35, lost his life. Deceased Mr. Matheson was unmarried, and his sister kept house for him. He was a successful farmer, although he had but one arm, having lost an arm while railroading in the West three years ago. About four o'clock on Saturday afternoon he borrowed a gun from a neighbor to shoot crows that had been taking his chickens. He told his sister he would return home about five o'clock. As he did not return at that hour his sister became uneasy and went to look for him. She found him lying dead by the side of a dyke fence, about twenty-five chains from the house. On the other side of the fence was a double barreled breach-loading gun, muzzle pointing towards the body. Both barrels were empty, and one charge had entered the unfortunate man's body, just above the breast, causing immediate death. Both barrels were loaded when he got the gun, and the inference is that in getting over the fence the hammer caught and the gun was discharged. Dr. J. G. Cameron, Montague was notified; but after viewing the body and ascertaining the facts, an inquest was deemed unnecessary. Deceased was a son of the late James Matheson, of Upton, Dundas, and came to Midgell about two years ago. Four sisters are left to mourn, two in Boston, one at Alberton and one at Midgell. His only brother was killed four years ago by a mining explosion in British Columbia. Deceased was a steady, industrious man and much esteemed by his acquaintances. The funeral took place to Dundas on Monday.

Plague of Flies in London.
Millions of flies have invaded the Cardiff Dock district, and have so infested the principal thoroughfares that pedestrian traffic has been diverted into other streets. Yesterday afternoon, says the London Chronicle of a recent date, the police and dock gatekeepers at the pier head were attacked by a tremendous host, and ran for protection behind the closed doors of the warehouses. The shopkeepers complain bitterly of the invasion, and clerks in the dock warehouses are seriously interrupted in their work. From their appearance, the flies belong to a foreign species. Unlike the British fly, they have long bodies, crawl very slowly, and bite badly. They first made their appearance on Sunday. The sanitary authorities discredited the report that the flies were imported by newly arrived fishing vessels, and state that the insects were first seen during the southerly wind on Sunday afternoon.

Canadian Cruiser Sinks an American Fishing Vessel on Lake Erie.

On the 17th inst., about 9.15 a. m., the Government cruiser Vigilant, Capt. Dunn, sighted a fishing tug about six miles east of Middle Island, Lake Erie, and about five miles north of the boundary line. The captain changed his course and made towards the tug, which proved to be the Grace M., of Lorain, Ohio, Capt. Wm. Galbraith. The tug came towards the Vigilant and when quite near by, Captain Dunn signalled with his whistle for them to slow. No attention was paid to the signal. The Capt. Dunn whistled to stop, but the tug shot past the Vigilant with full steam. Capt. Dunn turned about and soon overhauled her, but the tug continued to dodge the Vigilant, notwithstanding the fact that Captain Dunn had fired across her bows several times. The Vigilant was again coming up on the tug when she again attempted to cross the Vigilant's bow. Captain Dunn seeing there was likely to be a collision, stopped, and backed full steam, and had his boat well stopped when they came together, but the momentum of the Vigilant was sufficient to roll the Grace M. over, and she sank. Captain Dunn rescued Captain Galbraith, engineer Wm. Kollson and Dr. Peppelwell, fishermen. Two fishermen were drowned, named Martin Olson, of Cleveland, and Wm. Anderson, of Lorain. Captain Galbraith of the tug Grace M. admits that Captain Dunn was in no way to blame, and now realizes that he should have obeyed Captain Dunn's signal and stopped his boat when ordered to do so.

Quite a reduction.
