"Mary's" Disgust at Broken Promises.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Since writing you last I have had heaps of trouble, and although I had much to tell you, still I had no heart to get down to work. My dear old Tom, who is now past three score years, thought the Morris Old Age Pension scheme would be accomplished before this, but finding it was as dead as a door nail since the elections, he had to make up his mind to go to Dead Island, Labrador. Dead Island, did I say? The present apology for a Government should buy out that Island and get there in a body and spent the balance of their days.

Well, sir, as I was saying, Tom shipped and I had to get him to rights for the voyage. It was most too much for an old body like me, and by the time he got away I was nearly used up.

Speaking of the good the present Government are doing reminds me of the grand thing it will be to have these Sable Island ponies here. Oh, sir, what a lot of employment that will give the laboring class, watching these shaggy creatures as they, like the Government, "take a rise" out of every person coming within reach of their heels.

All the fuss about the Public Building No. 2 has been knocked on the head. An unsightly hole was dug on that nice space off Water Street, opposite Bannerman Street, and there the matter ends. Uncle Nath. is gone to Horse Harbor again this summer, and before he went he told me he expected Sir Edward was getting the Sable Island ponies to help take the present public building from its foundation and place it on the new site.

Oh, the presumption of that little member of ours. When Mr. Burke, the Irish peat cutter, was here, really, sir, I thought he would explode. There must be millions in this peat business for some person, but I am afraid there is very little in it for the poor taxpayers, unless it is a smoky home and a perfume of nasty smoke off their Sunday clothes. I heard, too, that the Government were seriously contemplating the introduction of the cod oil lamp and dog-troms. Even the little job of repairing and painting the ferry has caused a lot of talk. They say the Chairman put his little boy on to do the painting, thus depriving some poor man of a few cents. When Mr. Morris came here before the election he made us believe (but I did not believe a word he said) that great things would be done for us. Here are a few of them:—

A $50,000 public building—Not a stick up yet.

An old pension scheme—But both old and young are being pinched all they can bear.

The Prospero will never pass our doors again—Another promise not fulfilled.

A steam ferry to ply on this harbor in place of the present "boat"—No sign of the steam ferry yet.

A marine dock at Point of Beach to build up the town—This promise has been partly fulfilled, as the ground has been measured.

This number of promises will do for the present; I have a few more for another letter.

Tell Jane I hope she will come and see me in August, when we have our grand celebration.

Yours &c., MARY.

Boys' Author Dead.

Dr. Gordon Stables' Great Love of Life in a Caravan.

Dr. William Gordon Stables, the well-known writer of boys' stories, has just died at his home at Twyford, Jerks, in his seventieth year.

For nine years Dr. Gordon Stables was a doctor in the Royal Navy, serving in various parts of the world. On the East Coast of Africa, where he was stationed for some time, he led an exciting life on the Penguin. With the armed members of the ship's company he was away in the open boats for six weeks at a time, chasing Arabs suspected of being "in the slave trade."

Being invalided on half-pay, he travelled all over the world, making two cruises in the Arctic regions. It was from these travels that he obtained material for the 150 books which he subsequently wrote. Such volumes as "The Cruise of the Snow-bird," "From Pole to Pole," "The Pirates' Gold," and "Every Inch a Sailor" have delighted boys wherever the English language is read.

During the last twenty years, when he was not engaged on literary work, Dr. Gordon Stables lived the life of a gypsy. There was nothing he loved so much as touring unfrequented parts of the country in his well-appointed caravan. He was exceedingly fond of animals, especially dogs, of which he always kept a large number.

Nutritive Hypophosphites

When a person feels "blue"—"all tired out"—"doesn't feel like doing anything"—cannot concentrate his mind on his work—feels weak mentally and physically—doubts his powers—complains of poor appetite and sleeplessness—suffers from headaches—then his nervous system is run-down and demands a good up-building tonic. Nervous exhaustion is a modern disease, caused by too close attention to business, overwork, worry, devotion to trying family cares overstudied, etc.

Nutritive Hypophosphites forms the best nerve and brain food known, and have restored thousands of sufferers to health. Large bottle, $1.00.
