Winter.

Deep is the snow, and frozen is the stream;
Bare are the trees, and comfortless the grove.
No where, I turn, can I discern a gleam
Of verdured paths we used in summer rove.

A wilderness of white, and bare brown wood
Is all that once the summer decked with green—
The mossy bank the leafy solitude,
The waving ferns, sweet crest of emerald sheen.

'Tis winter now; the fireside's claim is heard;
The woodman's axe; the falling forest king;

And, hark! there comes the sweet song of a bird,
Whose notes are fraught with promise of the Spring.

The Sealers' Entertainment.

The initial entertainment for sealers was given in the New Seamen's Institute last night. There was a crowded audience and an enjoyable evening spent. The programme commenced with four reels of moving pictures, some of which were very appropriate and created more than ordinary interest, as they graphically depicted the sealing voyage. Mr. W. H. Jones, Manager of the Institute, rendered a few solos whilst Miss B. Petrie acted as accompanist. The entertainment lasted two hours and at the close Mr. Jones addressed the gathering and wished one and all a pleasant voyage and safe return with plenty of seals.

Death of a Nonogenarian.

There passed away yesterday, after a prolonged illness, a well-known and respected figure in the East End, in the person of Mr. Joseph Rahall. Deceased had reached the advanced age of 95 years, and perhaps was one of the oldest landmarks in the city. He was active up to last summer when he was stricken with paralysis and was confined to his bed up to his demise. Deceased fished out of Quidi Vid for more than half a century and his memory will be cherished by the oldest inhabitants of that village. Mr. Rahall is survived by three sons and two daughters.

Baseball.

A meeting of the B. I. S. enthusiasts was held last night to consider the formation of a Baseball Club to represent the Society in the League. Mr. W. J. Higgins presided and Messrs. P. J. Grace and E. J. Ring acted as Secretary and Treasurer, respectively. It was decided to enter a team in the League. The election of a Captain and other officers will take place next meeting. There was a general discussion as to the management of the Club before the meeting adjourned.

Brutality.

This morning a crowd witnessed a fight between two dogs on Theatre Hill. The owner of the chihuahua which came off second best, and who is a West End Merchant, took sides in the bout and obtaining a heavy instrument unceremoniously beat the dog that did not belong to him and in such a manner that would do credit to a butcher in a slaughter house. We draw the attention of the S. P. C. A. to this case.

Complaints From Argentina.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—Just a few notes as to the position we of Argentines are in with relation to the Morris Government. To begin—the telegraph office is a dining room for a few friends of the owner of the house. If the Government would build a little shack it would take more seriously than have the office located in a private residence furnishing half a living for some. The so-called "People's Party" should open their eyes. Patronizing and satisfying a few influential ones will help them little. As regards the telegraph office, when you want to send a message you must hunt around the town for the operator, and I defy any one to say I am making a false charge. As to the "Road" Board, I have heard that a petition was sent round to have a new Road Board elected. It is about time that the matter be placed in the hands of men who have some idea of how to spend the money, not to a man who must bring it to the school teacher to calculate the bills for him. She has enough to do to mind her school. As regards the expenditure of money, instead of giving the benefit of it to the poor worn-out fishermen who have no other way to earn a dollar, it is given to boat owners, planters and the money, if I may so express myself is paid out in a diabolical manner. Salaries are wasted and we have a Customs officer here who might as well be hidden home in Broad Cove as where he is. What a disgrace to our Government. The Morris Party will "get it in the neck" next time. Argentina would want a little Government of its own to be able to grant all that the heblers are asking. Some are being hunted here by the talk of a branch railroad. How easy it is to "lead" some people. Your readers may know who the "codder" is. Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor, I am,
Yours truly,
ARGENTINA.

The Mission.

St. Patrick's Church was again packed last night with men doing the mission. Rev. Father Holland recited the Rosary after which Rev. Fr. Brick preached an eloquent and instructive sermon on sin and the necessity of satisfying for it. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament by Rev. Fr. Kelly terminated the services after which a discourse of the men performed the Stations of the Holy Way of the Cross. The Masses at 5 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. to-day were also crowded.

Here and There.

POLICE COURT—A drunk was discharged and another was fined $1 or 3 days. Two small civil matters were tried in the Central District Court.

HIGHLANDERS GAMES—Next week the Newfoundland Highlanders will hold their annual sports in the grounds of the club. The various events are expected to be close and no doubt a large number will be present. The ball will be held the latter part of the month and elaborate preparations are being made for it.

Before the train left yesterday evening a Conception Bay man who was refused a ticket, being drunk, was arrested and taken to the station. He threatened the ticket clerk and had some money thrown at him. The police arrived and took him for a walk, stopping at the back of where he was a guest last night.

Notes of Long Ago.

L. C. MORRIS.
CHAPTER XX.—THE STORY OF DR. WALSH.

And so the day came that the frigate was to sail from New York Harb., and the Doctor had all his plans arranged and carried into effect. His fair bride dressed herself in male apparel, and came on board, as people usually go at such times; and he having taken into his confidence a couple of his subordinates, it was not a very difficult matter for his "friend" to be escorted to the surgeon's quarters, and there remain. Of course the Doctor's surgery was his own private domain, and he had much in his favor to help him in carrying out his purpose. Thus under the guise of male attire, he got his wife on board, and in due time the ship set sail, and began her cruise along the North American coast. For weeks and months everything went well, and all was serene, and not the least suspicion was aroused on board the frigate. Different stations were visited, several different ports were called at, and the regulations of the ship were carried out in detail; and all the while the fair lady of New York was confined within her little quarters in her husband's surgery.

What expectations the Doctor had of escaping detection, we do not know; nor do we know how he intended to finalize the adventure; but while he had really won his prize, and while they were, no doubt, happy in the seclusion of their little stateroom, there must at the same time have been a very keen feeling of suspense as to what a day or even an hour might bring forth. Whether the realization of their affections was as great as the suspense which hung over their heads, would be a problem difficult to solve; but it is an old saying that "stolen love is sweet," and perhaps the adventurous character of the marriage tended to intensify its enjoyment, and deepen its romance.

After some months cruising, the frigate came into Newfoundland waters, and it was in the neighborhood of Placentia Bay; and just at that time the Doctor had with him in his surgery another person, and that person was his wife, whom he had privately married in New York. The Captain's position was almost more serious than the Doctor's. He was a particular friend of the Doctor, and they had cruised a good deal together, and the Doctor stood very high in his estimation. The Captain's duties were therefore very painful for he himself was responsible to his Admiral, and was bound to keep a correct log of the ship's proceedings, and whatever happened on board. As for the crew they were on the tip-toe of suspense; for the Doctor had by his action violated the regulations of the ship, and had broken the discipline of the Navy; and thereby laid himself open to severe punishment; punishment which at that early date, was quite possible to simply hanging. But he was not to be deflected, nor was he to lose either his wife or his freedom. Thus it was, that at the earliest possible moment after he

To-Day's News.

Special to Evening Telegram.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., To-Day.
The police have uncovered a regular smugglers' forecastle on board the Albatross line steamer Mongolian, which was the scene of a sharp exchange of pistol shots yesterday in which one man was killed. Three sailors, discovered by Customs men were trying to carry a sack of whiskey through the inspection line drawn around the vessel. A fusillade of bullets followed. The police say that bunks of the entire crew were filled with rare old lace and other things upon which considerable duty would be levied.

ROME, To-day.
Italy is using her influence with the Balkan States to induce them to serve moderates in their demands on Turkey and thus bring about peace at an early date. Italian officials have pointed out to the Balkan Administration that an attitude would strengthen the sympathy of Europe towards their cause. The appointment of General Boyovitch one of the Serbian delegates to the London conference as Commander of the forces besieging Scutari is considered an indication of the firm determination of the Montenegrois to take Scutari at any cost. Boyovitch is one of the most daring Serbian Commanders. It was a force under him which captured Monastir at the point of the bayonet.

LONDON, To-day.
London morning papers congratulate the United States on their new President. The Post discussing at considerable length the problems facing America, says, Woodrow Wilson comes to the Presidency when old eyes are over and a new era is dawning. Few American Presidents have entered office so well equipped and few have faced so many difficulties. The Graphic says, Wilson has impressed the Anglo-American race in both the new and the old worlds, with his sterling honesty, that is a quality above all others, which Democrats need, and Americans must be congratulated upon having found such a man for Chief Magistrate. The Chronicle says, Wilson represents the new spirit which is visible in more than one country, but nowhere so clearly as in America. The progressive world looks for much from him.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
President elect Wilson's arrival at Washington was quite similar to his departure from Princeton. Students from Princeton University formed in train to the President's room at the Union Station. There was deep silence as the President elect, followed by his family, walked through the avenue formed by the students. Latter stood with their hats off. Wilson also doffed his hat. Within less than two hours after arrival, Wilson for the first time in his life crossed the threshold of the White House and grasped the hand of W. H. Taft, President of the United States for a few hours longer. With Mrs. Wilson the President elect was escorted to the home which will be theirs to-day, by Colonel Cosby. Shortly before six o'clock in the evening, President and Mrs. Taft awaited their coming and extended them a cordial greeting and presented the keys to the home of the Presidents. Nothing was left undone to make the inaugural ceremonies the most ostentatious and impressive in the history of the nation. The city is alive with enthusiasm. Constantly arriving throngs of visitors and military organizations and marching clubs banded to keep the excitement alive far into the night. The coming of the Tammany braves from New York was their first invasion of Washington for twenty years, making a climax in the progress of national demagogues. President-elect Wilson received a few minutes later in which to greet the New York men of the country. At five o'clock he will receive them at his home.
