The Tone.

In it lies the secret of unrivalled tone of the Heintzman & Co. piano. A tone magnificent, powerful and yet sympathetically, rounded and shaded from the lowest bass to the highest treble without ever becoming metallic, tone that keeps its beauty forever. The result obtained in these pianos is the limit of "art." The tone is powerful, resonant, refined in quality and perfectly even throughout the entire scale. Such is the standard of the genuine Heintzman & Co.

Through the generosity of the owners, private collections have been ransacked and take part on Labor Day at Queen's stripped of their choicest treasures. Among them will be "Bereft," a large canvas by E. Wylie Green, of Toronto. It is a salon picture, where it won a gold medal; "Inasmuch," by J. W. S. Forster, of Toronto, and several of his splendid portraits; a large landscape by Edmund Frere, of Paris; a recent salon picture by Blair Bruce, a brilliant young Canadian artist living in Paris. England will be represented by a large landscape by Colvert and a figure piece by Beard. There will be several of Florence Carlyle's clever productions, one a solon, and there will be two Paul Peels, of 1890, loaned by Mr. Tisdall, of Clinton.

Among the Toronto contributors are Messrs. Case, Martin, Roberts, Jamie, son and Miss Streckland Tully. London's contributors are G. A. McGilli-vray, Sheriff Cameron, Mr. Puddicombe, W. J. Temperance Addresses Delivered in the Auditorium by City Ministers

Who Urge That Canada Should Lead the Ranks of Prohibition Nations as She Did the Anti-Slavery Nations

The first Sunday meeting in the interests of prohibition was held yesterday afternoon in the Auditorium, under the auspices of the London Plebiscite Association. There were over two hundred present and much enthusiasm was shown. Rev. Robert Johnston occupied the chair, and in introducing the speakers, Revs. Richard Hobbs, J. H. Moorhouse and Ira Smith, limited the time of each speaker to ten minutes

Rev. Richard Hobbs was the first speaker. He was sorry more time could not be given, as he had chosen half a doezn of the arguments used by the anti-prohibitionists as his theme The time would only allow of his dealing with two. He referred to those who did not believe in the principle of prohibition, and went on to say that a Christian or anybody believing in the principles of the Bible could not help believing in the principle of prohibition. God himself restricted us, and governed us by restriction. The very decalogue taught that. The argument that Christians could disapprove of prohibition would not stand. argument was on the wine that the anti-prohibitionists said the Bible Many Treasures Secured by the Hebrew scholars, and used in the Hebrew Bible, expressive of the nine different kinds of vinal beverages that were not used in our own. Some wines were good, others bad, others indiffer-Will Grace the Walls of the New Arts ent, yet all of the words designating ent, yet all of the words designating these had been translated as "wine" in our version. There was the wine that Christ approved of, and wine that he condemned; therefore, they could not be the same thing. God could not approve of and curse the same thing, and make that which his own words condemned. Rev. J. H. Moorhouse started out with the idea that intemperance was admittedly an evil, which destroyed man's body, his intellect, his morals, his character, his reputation, his home and his property. It was the Christian's privilege in the coming plebiscite to utter his protest against this evil, in favor of prohibition, and seek that harbored sin. He referred to the time of the foundation of nations, when the Israelites were destroyed because of sin, instancing Achau, whose sin to remove it by voice, vote and prayer. Rev. Ira Smith gave an enthusiastic address on the great importance of taking advantage of the coming oppor-tunity given by the government of the blotted out. The liquor traffic was no country, cord as favoring prohibition. question of revenue and such like were after-considerations. Both Mr. Gladstone and Sir Leonard Tilley had testified that there would be no trouble in providing a revenue from a sober na-

Rev. Robert Johnston, in closing the as follows: meeting, spoke of the enthusiasm which was already manifested in this great question, which he urged his hearers to help along. He sincerely hoped that Canada would be the first nation in the world to place herself on record as a prohibition nation. He referred to the fact that before an anti-slavery law was enacted in any other nation it was already on the statute books of the Dominion of Canada, and Canada led the nations of the world in the abolition of slavery. He urged that she should lead in the destruction of a worse foe-the liquor traffic. He drew a picture of the results which intemperance produced in the downfall of a son, and said if that were multiplied by 10,000 instances it would afford but a slight conception of the disastrous work of the drink traffic, which he urged his hearers to destroy.

During the afternoon the Imperial Male Quartet beautifully rendered four Speeches by Rev. Thos. Wilson, Rev. . G. Fallis and Ex-Mayor Spencer -Some Questions and Their Answers.

The advocates of temperance in this city have now got thoroughly down to work, and a most enthusiastic meeting was held in Queen's Park yesterday afternoon, which was attended by over 2,000 people. The day was beautiful, and a better place could not have been chosen. Ex-Mayor W. M. Spencer presided and, in his opening remarks, explained the term "plebiscite." The people were called upon to voice their feeling on a question of very great import-ance to the country. We, as a rule, ance to the country. We, as a rule, he said, sent men to parliament to represent us, and to speak for us, but when great questions came up, and legislators differed in opinion, they then gave a plebiscite to the people. He said the amount of money expended directly each year on liquor was over $40,000,000, and the amount indirectly expended, $90,000,000, making a total of $130,000,000. About one-third of the entire wages earned was spent in drink. If this vast amount of money were diverted into the channels of legitimate trade, the present means of manufacturing necessary articles would be altogether inadequate.

Rev. J. G. Fallis spoke of the influence of the liquor traffic on the character of young men, and instanced a case where a young man had been unable to secure employment, even in hotels, because of intemperate habits. Thos. Wilson said there were three classes of people to be considered turned to London to attend school afwith reference to this question of pro-hibition. There were those who were strongly in favor of the measure, and were confident that a majority for it would be rolled up on Sept. 29. There was another class, who were vigorous-ly opposed to it, and would do all they could against it. And a third class, who were totally indifferent. That

Rev. Timothy Nattrass of This City Passed Away Saturday.

A Pioneer of Methodism in Canada-Funeral Service at the Dundas Center Methodist Church This Afternoon.

Rev. Timothy Nattrass, one of the pioneers of Methodism in Canada, died at his home in this city, 665 Elias street, on Saturday, after a long illness. The reverend gentleman was born in England 67 years ago, and had been in ministerial life for 40 years. For a quarter of a century pillar of the church in Canada, and many citizens will still remember him as pastor of the King Street Methodist Church before the union of 1874. Before coming to this country, Mr. Nattrass held charges in England and in Scotland. In Canada he was stationed at several places in Ontario, and his death will be learned with general regret. Mr. Nattrass was superannuated ten or twelve years ago, and although suffering from a lingering malady for some time, his death was sudden at last. A widow, one son, John Watkin, of Washington, U. S., and four daughters, Mrs. James H. Ferguson, Mrs. (Dr.) H. C. McCallum, Mrs. Wm. Telfer, and Miss Maria, all of this city, are the survivors. The funeral will be held this afternoon at the house at 3:30, and at the Dundas Center Methadist Church at 4 o'clock.
