A PEACE TREATY. At last an official end has been put to the Greco-Turkish war, which me in peace with your singer. We have really terminated some fifteen weeks ago, by the sultan attaching his signature to the terms of peace. It took the ambassadors of the powers more than twice as long to arrange them as the hostilities lasted. At present, the result of the struggle is a military victory for the sultan over Greece, and undoubtedly the sultan hopes to gain a reward for his complaisance, in the shape of concessions in the matter of rete. In an interview with Signor Pansa, the Italian ambassador at Constantinople, the sultan said that in return for Turkey's yielding in the matter of peace, he expected that the owers would show leniency concerning Crete. To Signor Pansa's surprised re nark that the autonomy of Crete had already been agreed upon, the sultan
