How I Got Reformed.

[Eugene Christian.]

We had about finished dining in a New York cafe, Chili con carne, Worcester and tobacco, pickles from Pennsylvania, and caviare from far-off Russia, lobster a la Newburg and lobster with the claws on, oysters, shrimp, clams, had all in their turn disappeared.

We were having a good time—what was termed an elegant dinner. While engaged in disposing of the various courses, a waiter in a white jacket and black bow tie, with a black Havana cigar thrown in as a sort of garnish, was seized with a kind of mental depression—a sort of hallucination that something horrible might happen. For months afterwards I alternated between a fairly sane condition and this fitful sorrow of despair, never once dreaming of the real cause—never once thinking that I was merely paying the penalty for years of violation of nature's sacred laws. A careful diagnosis, however, proved that mine was a case of chronic indigestion which had assumed a nervous form, superinduced by improper and unnatural diet.

A friend of mine wrote me a dozen pounds or more of the Battle Creek Health Food Co.'s Granose Flakes and Granose Biscuits, with instructions as to its use. His instructions were about as follows: "Now let me tell you something. If you will try this, and be honest with it, and not expect it to do all the work of a doctor on yourself, it will cure you. What you ought to do, and must do to get the best results from the use of this food is this: Quit eating as much meat, quit coffee and tea, and ice-cold drinks. Take no intoxicating beverages; and quit tobacco. Now don't say you can't do these things. But do what I tell you to, for just thirty days, and you won't need any more persuasion."

I took my friend's advice, and in the meantime made a careful study of the sciences of eating, or what constitutes a perfectly natural diet. I was rewarded by a return of both physical and mental strength far beyond my former measure. I made a careful study while on an extended trip over the South a few months since, of cases and causes of a similar character. It is entirely within the bonds of common sense to say that I found more than fifty per cent of those to whom I talked, suffering from some form of indigestion or stomach trouble. I straightway assumed the role of an apostle to the Battle Creek idea, and I unhesitatingly recommend their line of foods to all who suffer from any phase of digestion.

Her voice is well cultured and adapted more particularly to sacred selections. Her best numbers last night were 'O Divine Redeemer,' and 'O Eyes that Are Weary,' the latter calling for an encore, to which she responded by singing 'Bonnie Sweet Bessie,' the Maid of Dundee. She also gracefully responded to an encore by singing with Harold Jarvis a sweet duet, 'Jesus, I am resting,' wherein their voices blended beautifully."

Despite every effort made on his behalf, he gradually, and on Tuesday night passed away. Deceased was aged 59 years, and came to the district in 1891 from Middlesex, county, Ontario, and at once engaged in farming, with much success. He leaves a wife, one son and two daughters to mourn his loss. The son has been living with his parents. One daughter, Mrs. Blashill, of Carmel, and the other is Mrs. Cathro, of London, Ont. MR. WHITTAKER SUPERANNUATED.

Detroit Free Press: Archibald Whittaker, mechanical superintendent of the Windsor shops, of the G. T. R., was yesterday retired after being in the service of the Great Western and Grand Trunk companies for 45 years.

Mr. Whittaker had no intimation that he was to be superseded by another man until Friday afternoon, when an official of the road came to Windsor, and after an extended interview, branches of Mr. Whittaker's department, announced that the company had decided to relieve him from further duty, and Saturday his place was taken by Wm. Loveridge, who has been employed on the middle division of the Grand Trunk Railway for a number of years. In the re-

EATING IN HAVANA

Yankees Club Together.

In Havana it is the custom to serve only bread and coffee for breakfast. A little colony of Americans that they could not do their work until noon on a kind of a diet clubbed together and began importing Grape-Nuts Breakfast Food.

One of them writing about the matter says: "The modern cooking range had never been known in Cuba until the American occupation, and even now they are scarce, so that a ready cooked food like Grape-Nuts recommends itself to start with; then the Yankees were accustomed to the food and felt they could hardly get along without it. They began buying in five case lots and one by one the larger grocery stores began keeping Grape-Nuts in stock, so the business spread, until now great quantities of Grape-Nuts are used in Cuba, and it is not only used by the Americans, but the other inhabitants as well."

This is an illustration of the way the famous food has pushed itself into all parts of the world. Wherever English speaking people go they demand Grape-Nuts. They can be found in South Africa, Egypt, India, China, Japan, Australia and South America.

Many Americans speak of the home-like feeling it gives them to see the numberless 'busses in the streets of London decorated with great blue signs with the word "Grape-Nuts" done in yellow letters, and all over England the great purveying shops distribute Grape-Nuts.

English roast beef has largely given way to American roast beef, and the old-fashioned English breakfast of bacon and potatoes is now supplemented with Grape-Nuts and cream. The change was made for a reason. It has been discovered that almost magical power rests within the little granules and this power is set free in the body that makes use of the famous food.

thement of Mr. Whittaker, the Grand Trunk loses one of its oldest and most highly respected employees.

Nearly forty-six years ago he entered the employ of the old Great Western Railway as superintendent of the company's car shops at London.

From that he was promoted to mechanical superintendent of the division between London and Niagara Falls, and thirty-six years ago, came to Windsor to take charge of the mechanical departments of the road and, with the exception of a short time spent in London and Hamilton, has resided in Windsor ever since.

ENGINE STRUCK

MISS SWAYZE.

Walked in Front of Train and Was Fatally Injured.

Lived Six or Seven Hours After the Terrible Accident—Was Returning Home.

Miss Cora Swayze, a young woman 21 years of age, was struck by an M. C. R. engine at Maitland street Saturday night, and received fatal injuries. She was the daughter of Mr. Swayze, of Point Edward, formerly of this city, and was employed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Turnbull, of York and Maitland streets. On Saturday evening, she went down town and returned on a Hamilton road and Oxford car. She walked north towards York street, and either tried to pass in front of the approaching engine, or, being preoccupied, she did not see or hear it. The engine men say that they could not see her. They heard a terrible scream and stopped the train. The engine had dragged Miss Swayze some distance, and one arm and a leg had been taken off by the wheels, and the left leg was terribly crushed. Drs. H. A. and W. Stevenson and Dr. Oline were called, and an operation performed, but there was no hope of saving the unfortunate girl's life. The accident occurred about 8:30 o'clock, when a street car was between 3 and 4 o'clock Sunday morning. Her father came here yesterday morning.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

"Are You A Mason?" at the Grand.

"Are you a Mason?" concluded its two-day engagement at the Grand by giving matinee and evening performances on Saturday to audiences that were all too small to show proper appreciation of the excellence of both force and company. It is regrettable that an attraction so far above the average run in point of capability of most of the theatres in the city, should have been permitted to depart with so little encouragement having been shown it. The piece is by all odds the funniest farce seen in London in recent years, and its setting was one of the handsomest interiors seen on the stage of the Grand this season.
