ENGLISH SUMMARY.

Our London exchanges give us intelligence to the 10th December. Most of our English papers received by this mail are over two months old, what can be a more forcible argument in favor of direct mail communication with Panama!

Telegraphic intelligence announces the 8th of January, of a Prince.

The general news is not of any great importance, the following are the principal Her Majesty and the Prince and Princess of Wales are at Windsor, where it is expected they will remain for Christmas. The first train passed over the new bridge at Hungerford into the Charing Cross station on Dec. 3d. The branch from London Bridge to Cannon street, will be opened before the end of the year. The colony will learn with regret that the Duke of Newcastle is so seriously ill that he has been unable to attend the numerous Cabinet Councils that have been held of late, and his illness has assumed such a chronic form that he will have to give up, it is feared, the seals of the Colonial-office. A rumor, indeed, has prevailed during the week that his Grace had actually resigned. The loss at such a moment of a statesman of the first class, who, to emment abilities, adds great moral
