made the trip to the mouth of the river oy the Tuesday night, reaching Wrangel next day.

Mr. Reed has been in the Dease Lake country shooting big game during the winter, this being the fifth season he has put in in the northern country. He travelled from Glenora with a dog team, and says that a cold snap succeeding a thaw packed the snow hard with a fine crust on top, and made splendid travelling. On his way to the Coast he met fully 1,500 men either travelling towards Glenora or camped at different points, and by this time at least 400 men must have reached Glenora or Telegraph.

From the mouth of the river to the boundary line, a distance of thirly miles, there is a fine road perfectly suitable for horses and sleighs. As far as the boundary Messrs. Mackenzie & Mann's men have got a large quantity of supplies, and were pushing them ahead as fast as possible, taking all the advantage possible of the cold weather. He did not think, however, the cold snap would last for sufficient time to allow of the road being built on the ice as far as Glenora, but at present there was not the least difficulty for men with hand sleighs or dog trains to make their way up the river the whole way. The question however was how long the weather would remain cold as under ordinary conditions a thaw must come before long.
