THE INTERNATIONAL BRICK AND TILE CO Bridgetown, Annapolis Co.

Beautiful Hard-Burnt Brick.

ARE GUARANTEED TO STAND THE WEATHER. Our selected stock brick will look as well in the front of a building as some of the so-called face or repress brick, nor are they liable to chip or split with the frost. So far as tested they have not shown any of the WHITE SUBSTANCE, which so disfigures some brick buildings, and we believe them to be entirely free from this ingredient. We aim to keep on hand a large quantity, so that the trade can always rely upon being supplied with good brick.

Having a good wharf on our property and a siding of the W. & A. Railway, we can ship either by vessel or rail.

For the information of builders we publish herewith a certificate from a well-known architect. The International Brick and Tile Company:

GENTLEMEN.—I took one of your stock brick promiscuously from a lot shown me and put to a severe weather test, having boiled it in hot water and put it out to be frozen at once, and often in an open atmosphere, but have not yet seen the least change in the surface. I consider them first-class in all respects. Yours truly, · · · WEDNESDAY, JUNE 14, 1893. Poetry' Sunlight is Beyond the Storm.

> BY MATTIE BONNER. Up the mountain side, since morning,
> We had plodded all the day;
> Saw the frightened chamois bounding
> From our sight away, away;
> Saw the mighty rocks and boulders,
> Careless scattered all around,
> As if dashed from giant shoulders
> In a passion to the ground,

Now, all obstacles surmounted,
On the summit glad we stood,
Where a glow of gleaming glory
Surged upon us like a flood.
Oh, the sunlight! Oh, the sunlight!
How it shot in quiv'ring bars,
Talling of the walls of issuer. Telling of the walls of jasper And the city o'er the stars.

Far below a storm was raging,
And the clouds of blackest hue
Rolled and tossed in mad confusion,
While the lightning glittered thre
Hidden from us all the valley, By the moving, murky screen: But above, where we were standing, All was quiet and serene.

And my heart went out in pity
To the dwellers far below—
Hidden from them all the beauty,
Hidden from them all the glow—
And I wondered if in future,
After we have done with life,
When the mountain is ascended— When the mountain is ascended— Left below the storm of strife—

Whisper that sweet rest was o'er them,
Bid them bravely upward go.
Ye within the storm-swept valley,
Look beyond the dark ning sky!

On the mountain top is sunlight;
Ye shall reach it by and by.

"Yes; I want to hear the whole story, interest once more, in some eye, in me and affairs of mine, after what I've been through here—lord! I could go down on my knees for it!"

He gripped my hand hard, and braced up and was all right and lively after that for the dinner—which didn't come off. No; the usual thing happened, the thing that is always happening under that vicious and aggravating English system—the matter of precedence couldn't be settled, and so there was no dinner. Englishmen always eat dinner before they go out to dinner, because they know the risk they are running; but walks rapidly into the trap. Of course no-body was hurt this time, because we had all heen to dinner, none of us being novices except Hastings, and he having been informed by the minister at the time that he invited him that in deference to the English custom he had not provided any dinner. Everybody took a lady and processioned down to the dining room, because it is usual to go through the motions; but there the disoute began. When he and I entered my parlor, he brought me to myself with my fervent appreciations of my manifold comforts and the directory. They seated us, and were perly known as brothers of the King rather very polite to me, and very solicitous to re-lieve her from embarrassment, and put her "We are glad to hear it," said my man, title, and whose son is about to be married.

"We are glad to hear it," said my man, the, and whose son is about to be married. And of him it may also be added that he is brother Abel and I made. If you have won for me, you shall have any situation in my English mother. How the Tomato Was Named.

"Here it is sir," and I handed it to him. "Here it is sir," and I handed it to him.

"I've won!" he shouted, and slapped Abel on the back. "Now what do you say brother?"

"I say he did survive, and I've lost twenty thousand pounds. I never would have believed it.

"I've a further report to make," I said, "and a pretty long one. I want you to let me come soon, and detail my whole months history; and I promise you it's worth hearing. Meantime take a look at that."

"What, man! Certificate of deposit for £200,000? Is it yours?

"Mine. I earned it by thirty day's judicious use of that little loan you let me have."

"When it is sir," and I handed it to him.

How the Tomato Was Named.

Few persons know the origin of this common name. It originated in this way: The earlier experimenters with the fruit believed that it had a great effect on the spleen—that is to say, it made persons liable to crossness, good-natured—gave them, so to speak, a lovely disposition, and for this reason the plant was known to the ancient Spaniards as the Love Apple. By the name of Love Apple it is still known in many English speaking countries. The word tomato is derived from this same source, that is to say, from the original Latin word amo, to love, although we use it now as Spanish derivative tomato being a Spanish expression. clous use of that little loan you let me have. being a Spanish expression. "Come, this is astonishing! It's incredible, man!"

"Never mind, I'll prove it. Don't take my word unsupported."

But now Portia's turn was come to be surprised. Her eyes were spread wide, and the best of it is the trust is fully justified by the merit of the medicine. For, remember, HOOD'S Sarsaparilla CURES.
