

OBITUARY.

DR. N. R. OLIVER, of Brampton, who retired from active practice many years ago, died April 11th, at the age of eighty years.

DR. A. G. FENWICK, of London, Ontario, died suddenly on May 14, from apoplexy, at the age of 76. He was educated in McGill Medical College, and secured his license to practise in 1840. He lived in the Province of Quebec until 1875, when he went to London. He was Dean of the Medical Faculty of the Western University, Professor of Medical Jurisprudence, and the representative of the university in the Ontario Medical Council. He was highly respected by all classes in London and vicinity, and dearly loved by his intimate friends.

DR. EDWARD BULL, of Toronto, died at his late residence, 131 Bloor street, April 25th, in his 71st year. He graduated in Victoria University in 1845. After practising two years at Bond Head he went to Lloydtown, where he remained until 1864. He then removed to Weston, where he was engaged in practice until 1876, when he retired from active work, and removed to Toronto. He had a large and lucrative practice in Weston, and was well known and highly respected in West York, where he was once a candidate in the Liberal interest for the Dominion Legislature. He had a large circle of warm friends, professional and otherwise, in Toronto, who feel very deeply the loss they have sustained by his death.
