Since the commencement of the month, the arrivals of vessels laden with Wood, from British North America, have been un tally great; they consist of 31 from Quebec, 36 from St. John, and 13 from other ports, registering 44,208 tons, of which, 54 cargoes have chiefly consisted of Square Timber, and 26 of Deals and Planks. This now brings the supply of Wood generally, since the 1st of February to rather more than an average quantity, during the like period, for the previous four years, the former having beauty in 102,850 tones. an average of 92,995 tons. Up to the 11th instant prices resteady, and sales were readily effected, but, within the last few days, some of the dealers seem less disposed to purchase, in the expectation that importers, from the great supplies, will be induced to give way a little in their demands; but in this than they may be disappointed, for, in the last two days, several cargoes have been sold at full rates, especially Quebec Since the month commenced, the following prices have been paid, viz.:—For St. John Pine cargoes, 20d. to 21¹/₄d. per foot; Miramichi Pine cargoes, 18\frac{1}{2}d. to 21\frac{1}{2}d. to 18\frac{1}{2}d. to 24\frac{1}{2}d. to 24\frac{1} n, £9 to £14 10s.; Pine and Spruce Planks, 21d. to 2d

Tuesday.—This morning commenced the hundred and twenty-first meeting of the three choirs of Worcester, Hereford, and Gloucester, in aid of the charity established for the relief of the widows and orphans of poor clergymen in the three dioceses.

There was a larger attendance at the Cathedral than had been anticipated. The raised gallery fronting the orchestra and the aisles were well-filled but the numbered and reserved seats did not display a full complement of visitors. The Corporation arrived in state, and the Dean with his family was present, as well as the Honourable Grantley Berkeley, and other amateurs. Much has been written against these musical meetings in sacred editices, and the popular preachers at Chel-tenham have preached latterly against the custom. The ser-mon, therefore, of the Rev. F. T. J. Bayly, the Vicar of Brook-throp and Whaddon, was chiefly directed to the defence of the throp and Whaddon, was chiefly directed to the defence of the practice. The reverend gentleman made out his case from scriptural authority, logically and conclusively. His discourse was not a laboured oratorical effort, but a quiet and seasonable appeal to the judgment of his congregation. In some passages it took higher ground, and was felicitous where it associated the sublime in music with the true spirit of religion. It was pleasing to watch the effect of the music on the humble operatives from Birmingham-they seemed startled with the massive harmonies when Handel thundered forth; and when the more quiet and touching appeal in Boyce's anthem on behalf of the poor and fatherless was heard, many a hard and rough-featured man was not ashamed to weep. A more devotional auditory was never collected—it was impossible that anybody could be a worse Christian by such solemn appeals through the agency

The service opened with Handel's Overture to Esther, which is usually selected at festivals. It was effectively executed by the band. After the first lesson, Handel's "Te Deum," compared to the compared to posed for the Dettingen victory, was given. This masterly production is always performed at the feast of the Sons of the Clergy at St. Paul's, for which the great drums destroyed at the fire in the Tower were put in requisition. The Te Deum has been heard with larger orchestras than the one at Gloucester; but there was force enough to render it justice. Indeed, a well-selected band and chorus of 300 performers suffice for all legitimate purposes. The most experienced musicians are of opinion that, after a given number of voices and instruments, the effects are destroyed. The burst of praise to the Lord from the band and chorus was electrical. Boyce's anthem "Blessed is He," and his elegant duet, "Here shall soft Chari-

United States, Lard took the lead from the first, and has continued to maintain its position as the item of most extensive import. It is bought most largely by shop-keepers, to retail for culinary uses—by chandlers—and by oil and soap manufacturers. For the first, the finest quality only is wanted, firm and of good colour, and as free as possible of the oily flavour which attaches, more or less, to all American Lard. It should be put up in neat kegs, no variation of quality being allowed in the same parcel. For the other purposes, barrels are the preferable package—chandlers requiring strength of quality and firmness of texture; while all descriptions, down to the most inferior grease, are suitable for the oil and soap manufacturers. In consequence of the most unfair and unmercantile system that prevails in the American markets with regard to tares of Lard, the shipments of this article have not been so generally profitable as they should have been; for while parties have been induced to make shipments from the fair margin apparently afforded for profit, by the relative rates of the two narkets, the sales have shewn a deficiency in weight as to more than counterbalance the advanced prices obtained. This natter should have the immediate attention of those interested in the trade, with a view to its remedy, as nothing tends more to injure the character of a market than an illiberal system in regard to weights and tares. The practice in Liverpool is to give actual tares ascertained by an average of 5 or 10 casks of approve of general officers, commanding districts, in Great Britain, granting leave of absence to officers, and furloughs to non-commissioned officers and soldiers, under the following limitation of the statement annexed shows the increasing character of the trade in Lard, the import Mations and restrictions,"—that is to say, "Firstly, the shows the increasing character of the trade in Lard, the import for the past 12 months to this port amounting to 2600 tons, ence the as soon as the half-yearly inspection shall have been le. Soon after one o'clock the Scots Greys made their appears and schowledged by bowing to them several times. The boys, to the number of nearly 700, were assembled in the quadrangle, forming at line on either side of the way along which the visitors were to pass up to the Clock Tower. We should have thought that those preparations were to do us honour; it appears that the pur-

Wheat, Flour, &c.—The result of the harvest being now retty well ascertained, we are enabled to say with confidence that, with regard to wheat—the great staple crop of this coun-try,—there has never been a more abundant harvest reaped, while the excellence of the quality is quite equal to the abunshort crop, which in many parts of the country was a complete failure. The abundance of the wheat crop will, however, comwhich has already taken place, has advanced the duty to the highest point, 20s. per quarter, and at which it is likely to re-main during the winter, so that the stock of United States flour held in this country, and which in Liverpool alone amounts to 140,000 barrels, must remain in bond till next summer, at least, with the exception of whatever portion may be required for export. The result, so far, of this season's importations from Canada, shows that the object contemplated by the corn bill of last year has been fully secured, in drawing to the St. Lawrence a considerable portion of the produce of the Western States. A late return shows, that the exports from Canada, up to August this season, were 307,000 barrels from Canada, 237,000 bushels wheat—the exports to the same period of last season having been only 50,000 barrels flour, and 15,000 bushels wheat.

Gentlemen, -I could, a short time ago, have little expected Richelieu have imposed upon me.

Accused of having repudiated Responsible Government, I had shewn, on the contrary, that I was the sincere defender of those by which I am accused of having, at one step, become a traitor to my countrymen; of being misled by my ridiculous ambition, my puerile vanity; and, lastly, of having fallen into a state of imbecility. I would wish to ask if it is possible, that you can be convinced of the truth of these accusations. The result of the election would, however, seem to shew your decinies.

It would be, without doubt, useless to refer, at this moment, to a host of slanders not less calumnious, which have been propagated, for the purpose of directing the flames of public hatred against me; they are too strikingly about to deserve serious refutation; contradicted as they, besides, were, by the
