ANNUAL MEETING OF THE DIOCESAN CHURCH SOCIETY.

onths.

A correspondent in the Baptist Register, professing to write in Toronto, in speaking of the fact that many liberals signed that not a seat was vacant, and even the standing positions of the Hall were intensely crowded.

At precisely half past seven o'clock, His Excellency withdrawn his name; for I know that many already repent.

At precisely half past seven o clock, His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, Sir John Harvey, entered the Hall, and was received by the clergy on the platform rising. A large circle of ladies also graced the platform.

His Excellency briefly addressed the audience before taking the chair - remarking that he always thought the Lord Bishop of the Diocese was the most fit person to fill the chair-yet at his lordship's urgent request, he had consented to occupy that station.

Two verses of the hundredth psalm were then sung, and prayer was offered up by the Rev. the Archdeacon. His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor then addressed his lordship and the audience as follows:-My Lord Bishop, Ladies, Reverend Gentlemen, and Gentlemen .

With renewed satisfaction I comply with the invitation With renewed satisfaction I comply with the invitation of our respected diocesan, by again presenting myself to your notice for the purpose of lending my feeble aid in urging upon you the importance of the object for which we are called together—that object being nothing less than to devise the means of continuing and extending, and let me say perpetuating, to our fellow churchmen in this Province, the consolations of our pure and reformed religion, and to their children the blessings of a virtuous and religious education.

They gave us birth; they nourished and sustained us with unceasing care, up to a period at which we ought to feel ourselves in a condition to support ourselves; and if they now intimate to us their inability much longer to aid us as they have heretofore done, that intimation has not proceeded from any diminution of affectionate solicitude on their part, but from the increasing claims upon their bounty,—in a word, from the augmented numbers of their offspring rapidly springing into existence throughout

His Lordship in remarking on the report, reiterated the phion of his Excellency the chairman, that a strict adbutions, however small, was essential to its prosperity. From the principles of the Society he advocated a closer butions, however small, was essential to its prosperity. From the principles of the Society he advocated a closer union of clergy and congregations in the work of Christian teaching. He felt a strong assurance that all before him would agree in the objects of the Society—the extension of religious instruction through our own country. After happily eulogising the motto of the Secretary's Report, his Lordship explained the occasion whence it arose—when the enemies of Israel being discomfited and routed, the pious Samuel set up an Ebenezer or stone of help, as a monument of the kind providence of the Lord in working deliverance for his people and bringing them triumphantly through all their trials. His Lordship then most affectionately thanked his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor for having consented to fill the chair this evening, on the assurance that he would serve the institution infinitely better than if he placed in it one whom he had said he would like to see there. Some allusion had been made in the report to the enemies of the Church, but he made in the report to the enemies of the Church, but he hoped not one word had escaped otherwise than in a spirit of charity. He alluded to the fearful news that had reached us from Europe to-day, and while he trusted The population of Hamilton is now 9969—in 1846 it was 6832, shewing an increase of near 50 per cent. in 1 year and 8 for the annual meeting of the Diocesan Church Society of Nova Scotia, a vast concourse of persons crowded the months.

The resolution passed unanimously.

Rev. Mr. Bullock would be perfectly satisfied to submit Rev. Mr. Bullock would be perfectly satisfied to submit the second resolution to the concurrence of the audience without a word in its favour; but it accorded so com-pletely with his own feelings that he could not help expressing his own views on it. For ten years he had watched the progress of this Association, and he felt convinced that the time had now arrived when it would vinvinced that the time had now arrived when it would vindicate the claims of the Church to the affectionate sympathy and support of her children. If he had any faltering, the evidence which a sight of this large audience afforded him, removed every doubt. He trusted most of those before him where Christian people, whose God was the Lord—whose home was in the Church. The spirit of Christianity was a progressive spirit; and in this meeting by this resolution, we would pledge ourselves to a magnificent object—the spread of the truth to the uttermost bounds of the earth. If this had not been the spirit of the bounds of the earth. If this had not been the spirit of the Church in days gone by, we should be degraded idolaters at this moment. The disciples though persecuted and frequently undergoing insult and injury never faltered, frequently undergoing insult and injury never faltered, but continued to carry with them the pure and incorruptible seed of the Word of God, sowing it over the face of the earth till it took root everywhere and sprang up and bore fruit to the glory of His name. Upon this progress of the Church he had a well grounded hope, and that hope was recorded in this resolution. He alluded to the recuperative energies of the Church of England, which for the last 150 years had suffered many persecutions, and been cruelly traduced by her enemies; yet had never been deserted by the God of the Christian, who still watched over and protected her. He traced the progress of the Established Church which had arisen from the insignificant meeting of but five persons in a private house, significant meeting of but five persons in a private house, but whose labours were now evident in every corner of the earth, hailed with thankfulness by the poor, and en-dowed by the rich daughter of the Church, whose glory with thick Manual warms of the properties of the dowed by the rich daugnter of the Church, whose glory it was to have expended a large portion of her fortune in the endowment of Churches—Miss Burdett Coutts. The Parent Society had done much, and why should not the child emulate the noble zeal of the parent? This Institution had done much—but it had not done enough. He called upon the people to support these Missionary moves.

The Starting Committee recommended that the Tressure be anthorsed to pay the following accounts—sure beautiful and affects—sure beautiful and affec After his Excellency's speech, which was received with the warmest applause,
