

Our readers will not forget the Concert under the patronage of the Rev. Mr. O'Farrell, to be given at the New St. Ann's Hall on (this) Thursday evening, the 11th instant. It is unnecessary to do more than call attention to the programme which is of the very highest order, all the best musicians of the City having been engaged for the occasion. We anticipate therefore a large attendance, and a pleasant evening. No doubt but that the affair will be a great success.

BEAST BUTLER.—This notorious person is said to have made a large fortune during the war, by extortions, by robbing and stealing at New Orleans, and elsewhere, as well as by more indirect modes, some of which are now brought to light.

According to the New York Express, whilst General Grant was fighting the Confederates in front, and before the dismissal of Butler from his command for cowardice, the latter was carrying on a lucrative trade with General Lee's army in provisions of all kinds, pork, sugar, tea, and even ammunition. This is published upon the authority of the Congressional Committee, of which Mr. Washburne of Illinois is president; and the report adds that more than a million of dollars must have been made in this commerce, in which Beast Butler and his brother-in-law were engaged.

The trial of the persons accused of complicity in the murder of the late President is going on at Washington, before a military tribunal, and with closed doors. All reports of the proceedings are prohibited by the press, but the authorities will furnish the Washington papers and the public with their own "cooked" report. It is evident that the Government is most anxious to suppress the truth, and that all guarantees for the liberty of the citizen and for a fair trial are abolished in the U. States. The Americans seem to wear their chains very meekly, being by their democratic institutions admirable adopted for servitude.

We have much pleasure in copying the following from the columns of the Montreal Transcript, and we need only add, that the Rev. Mr. O'Farrell has, to our own knowledge, labored hard, to carry out the good work so well begun by the Rev. Mr. O'Brien, his worthy predecessor, whose great exertions are well known to every one, and whose untiring zeal while in charge of St. Ann's congregation, has endeared him to every Irish Catholic heart.

PROGRESS.—On Wednesday, last week, the solemn and interesting ceremony of formally opening and blessing the new St. Ann's Schools, was performed in the presence of a large number of spectators. The fine Juvenile Band of the St. Lawrence Brothers' was in attendance, and greatly enhanced the attractions of the scene by playing lively and appropriate airs during its continuance.

It may not be out of place hereto give a hasty sketch of the principal improvements that have taken place in Griffintown since the appointment of the Rev. F. O'Farrell, as its spiritual director.

This gentleman no sooner found himself charged with the interests of this extensive district, which occurred about a year and a half ago) than he resolved to set about the good work of reformation, wherever reformation should be found needful. Consequently, he was not long installed in his new capacity, before his paternal solicitude was excited by the defective and abnormal system of education of the youth, pursued in his new jurisdiction. There was a great want, which, he felt, demanded instant attention. This want was more painfully apparent in the case of the young girls, who were even debased from the advantages of a plain education, from the absence of well regulated schools for that purpose. To remedy this evil was the first and dearest thought of this worthy gentleman. But to an energetic mind like his, to plan is to execute. So that in a short time he had the happiness, though after great toil and pain encountered on all sides, to see, at last a fine, commodious stone building erected, capable of containing over 200 little girls, and placed under the immediate control of the Sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame.

To this Institution, too, a sewing establishment has been recently attached, furnished with a number of the best sewing machines, where adult females who have finished their education are taught, if they desire it, the useful art of millinery and dress-making on very advantageous conditions to themselves, and with great utility to the general public. This department, also, has the benefit of being under the careful supervision of the same noble Order of Nuns as the Schools.

But, however important these improvements were allowed to be, they were merely the preliminary steps towards still greater improvements contemplated by the charitable zeal of this amiable gentleman. Seeing the rising importance of the large district which he governed as ghostly director, and the rapidly growing number and wealth of its inhabitants, he never relaxed his efforts until he procured them the ready means of favoring their daughters with the most finished education. For that purpose, he repeatedly petitioned the Seminary and obtained permission from that body to erect an Academy adjoining the above-mentioned schools, where young ladies are taught, on very moderate terms, the same accomplishments as those acquired in Villa Maria or Mount St. Mary; where they enjoy the same advantages as in these more pretentious and expensive Institutions—have teachers of the same Order to instruct them, and are perfected in all the branches of a polite education, including geography, grammar, history, mathematics, rhetoric, the globes and the sciences, plain and fancy needle work, with painting, drawing and music.

Having thus attended to the more pressing necessities which came under his notice, the Rev. gentleman next turned his attention to the embellishment of his Church, completely metamorphosing the interior appearance of the edifice. Such a striking change, indeed, did he effect in St. Ann's Church, that those who saw it before and after the improvements there made, would be slow to believe the evidence even of their own eyesight, or the possibility of its being the same Church. In fact, it displays such excellent taste in its decorations and fresco-painting, and in the well combined lively colors employed in the ornamentation of its galleries, columns, altars and pews, that it is justly considered as one of the handsomest churches in Canada.

Contemporary with these buildings and improvements—while yet the hearts of a congregation were warm in the outpouring of grateful thanks to the Reverend benefactor to whom they were so deeply indebted—was begun and completed the greatest and worthiest of his undertakings, the fine substantial, stone structure, containing the schools mentioned at the beginning of this article, and of which he may be justly styled the father and the founder.

These schools, which are to be conducted by the Christian Brothers, are capable of holding over 300 pupils. And now, before concluding this cursory and imperfect review of some of the principal acts of this Rev. gentleman's administration, it may not be considered amiss to intimate here, that the upper part of the latter building contains a spacious Hall, the opening of which he intends to inaugurate on the 11th inst, by a Grand Concert. We would solicit a numerous attendance on that occasion, in order to record, in a more sensible manner, our appreciation of the merits and laudable labors of so worthy a clergyman, and thus, too, have the further gratification of illustrating a maxim as just as it is glorious by giving 'Honor to whom honor is due'; for in honoring this Concert with our presence, we thereby honor the party who gives it. And, certainly none more worthy that he of our esteem.

TRAVELS IN CENTRAL ASIA. By Arminius Vambrey member of the Hungarian Academy of Pesth.—An entertaining account of adventures in Central Asia, from the Eastern shores of the Caspian to Khiva, Bokhara, and Samercand. The author disguised as a Hadj, or dervish pilgrim performed this long and painful journey from scientific motives, and from a desire to pursue his philological researches into the dialects of Central Asia, and to detect their several affinities with his native tongue, Hungarian. His story is simply told, and is followed by an interesting dissertation on the manners, customs, politics, agriculture and commerce of the several peoples through whose borders he passed. The work is very neatly brought out, illustrated by several handsome engravings and a map, by the Harper Brothers of New York, and is for sale by Messrs. Dawson, Great St. James Street, Montreal.

THE LOVE OF RELIGIOUS PERFECTION.—By P. Joseph Bayma, of the Society of Jesus.—This is an elegantly edited translation from the Latin of an ascetic work by the above named reverend Jesuit Father—and is offered to the public by John Murphy & Co., Baltimore.

A SCHOOL HISTORY OF CANADA AND OF THE OTHER B. N. A. PROVINCES, by J. G. Hodgins, L.L.B.F.R.G.S. Printed and Published by John Lovell, Montreal.—The writer avoids as much as possible the debateable ground of religion and politics in this little work; and though he brings his history of Canada down to the present year we think that he has succeeded in avoiding giving any cause of offence to any one. We can therefore heartily recommend this history to schools. The work is illustrated with several engravings.

LAMENT FOR THE RT. REV. JAMES GILLIS, D.D., BISHOP OF EDINBURGH, AND OTHER POEMS. By the Rev. Eneas McD. Dawson.—This is a poetical tribute to the deceased Bishop of Edinburgh, Dr. Gillis, and it is followed by several pieces of poetry by the same author.

To the Editor of the True Witness.

SIR,—Referring to a paragraph in your last issue, in which you blame the Government for neglecting to take steps to protect the small birds, I enclose a copy of the last report of the Montreal Fish and Game Protection Club, and would beg your attention to the portion marked.

This Bill was passed into law at the instance of the Quebec Club and this one; and we have offered a reward of $10 for the conviction of offenders under it, although the protection of the small insectivorous birds can hardly be looked on as a special duty of a Fish and Game Club.

Our Horticultural Society, and the Agricultural Societies, should take the matter up. The former has called often and loudly for such a measure, and is comprised of wealthy men to whom a little money spent in putting a stop to the low and dastardly practice you allude to, would be as nothing to the loss they sustain in their orchards as a consequence of it; and the latter are in the annual receipt of large sums of money from Government, with which they do, or do not, they themselves only know what—but a small portion of which would be very legitimately expended in stimulating the exertions of country constables to enforce this law, intended as it is so materially to benefit farming interests.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

A. MURRAY,

President Montreal F. & G. P. Club.

The subjoined is the paragraph from Mr. Joly's Bill, alluded to in the above:—

"Your Committee amid these failures are glad to be able to say that one Bill at least in which they took an interest has become law—that introduced by Mr. Joly for the protection of insectivorous and other birds beneficial to agriculture. By the provisions of this Act the 27th and 28th Vict., Chap. 52, it is unlawful to kill, wound, capture, or have in possession under a penalty not exceeding ten dollars, any bird whatsoever between the 1st March and the 1st August in any year, with the exception of a few birds named, and any person may seize on view any bird unlawfully possessed, and destroy all nets, snares or cages intended for the capture of such birds. Although this law is intended to benefit more especially the agricultural and horticultural interests, and though it should devolve more immediately on the societies representing these interests to take the necessary steps to enforce it, yet it may be well that this Club should offer a standing reward for convictions under this Act also, and the Committee would recommend the matter to the immediate attention of their successors, as the robins and other spring birds will be arriving in a few days, and unless checked at once the usual slaughter will be commenced. Your Committee have addressed the Agricultural and Horticultural Societies, calling their attention to this Act and requesting their co-operation, which it is to be hoped will be afforded."

The Evening Telegraph speaks slightly of that "business piety" of which our evangelical contemporary—the Montreal Witness—is the eloquent prophet. The following, which we clip from the Telegraph of a recent date, savors of irreverence towards a professor, and a carnal spirit:—

True.—The Witness says:—

'If the world never found Christians over-reaching, never making use of the tricks of trade, never backing out of engagements, and never breaking their word, however much their religion might be hated, their consistency would secure that respect which honesty and integrity almost always command.'

It might have added to the list of things to be avoided, never settling the property, they intend to rob their creditors of, on their wives; never failing at the most convenient season, after having done so, paying sixpence in the pound, and then retiring to live in luxury and ease on the proceeds of consecrated rascality, while their less provident victim with their families are reduced to unmitigated want. And for commentary, it might have said that it is a melancholy fact that the most unblushing frauds, the most cruel and impudent swindlers that have come to light in this community were committed by professing Christians, men of good standing in evangelical churches; not because religion and honesty are in any way incompatible, but because the shallowest rogue recognises the value of a religious cloak. The fact is that Christians do not do the things which the Witness deprecates, although men pretending to be Christians do. It is a mistake too to suppose that religion is ever hated; the wickedest men admire and honor true piety in others. The hypocrites, the wolves in sheep-clothing, the shining lights of public prayer-meetings, the saints preparing for their third or fourth failure are fond of talking of the hatred of the unregenerate world to the children of God, just as convicts in the hulks tell of the hatred of police and judges to them, and for the same reason. Honesty is not brought into discredit because one who pretended to practice it is found to be a rogue; and religion ought not to suffer because a professor is found out to be a swindler or hypocrite; and although we know that there is a disposition in too many to sneer at religion or at any rate at its representative the churches on these occasions, it would be a grave mistake to suppose therefore that the popular sentiment is inimical to religion, or that vital Christianity has less hold on the mind of the masses at the present day than in previous times. It may be true that real piety is a scarce article among the fashionable congregations to which the church system of the present day too much confines the public ministrations of the gospel; but it has a strong hold on the hearts of the poor to whom the gospel is not preached, and divides with want and suffering the empire over them. Nor is it incredible that the sort of profession of religion which is most intimately associated with church membership, prayer meetings, and the general outward proclamation of individual goodness is found too often dissociated from morality, and very filthy with the lucre, the lusts, and the nastiness of the world, the flesh, and the Devil.

From the report of the Treasurer, which was submitted and adopted at the above Meeting, it will be seen that the Society is in a most flourishing condition, although having met with many reverses during the past half year, no less than four members having died during that period the Society paying their funeral expenses, they also pay a regular weekly allowances of $1.50 to widows, there being at the present time eight receiving such benefit, showing the usefulness of the Association. The Society also pays sums varying from 20c to 50c each to the orphan children of deceased members, which, as the society is only two years and a half in existence, proves what an amount of good may be effected, and of benefit to be derived from associations of this kind, and should commend itself, especially to the Irish working population of Montreal, from the very fact that over $100 a month has been expended in carrying out the objects of the society. The following is the substance of the

THE STREETS.—We would again call the attention of the authorities to the filthy state of the streets leading to the Harbour, as well as to those in Griffintown. In some of these there is a pestilential smell indicative of a condition of things which must be very prejudicial to health. We would also beg to urge upon those whose cellars were flooded this spring the absolute necessity of having them whitewashed and sprinkled with lime, if they would prevent sickness. The mud left in the cellars was composed, as every one knows, of all the impurities collected in the streets during the winter, and malaria then arising is the source of a low form of ill-health, rendering those so attacked easy victims to epidemic diseases. A bucket or two of quick lime does not cost much and may be the means of averting a great deal of misery.—Mont. Herald.

OBITUARY.

Died, at Toronto, on Monday, the 1st instant, at St. Joseph Convent, of disease of the heart, Sarah King, aged 34 years;—in religion, Sister Mary Joseph, and second daughter of the late Jas. King, of this city. Sad is the bereavement, and deep the affliction which shade our hearts; but why mourn, for she is gone to receive the reward promised by our dear Lord to those who have forsaken all things for Him. Oh, why should we pine for her who has left this world of care and sorrow, her who had served God while on earth, who now serves Him in Heaven, after eight years and a half in religion, which have been spent in preparation for eternity.—May her soul rest in peace.

The Hon. Lewis Walbridge has made arrangements to have five tons of iron ore from this county transported at his own expense to Three Rivers, to be there smelted, for the purpose of demonstrating to the members of the Government and Legislature the actual value of the iron deposits in the rear townships, as the strongest argument in favor of granting a quantity of wild land to aid the construction of a railroad from Belleville to Marmora. The proprietors of the Radnor Iron Works, Three Rivers, Messrs. De Larue & Co. have kindly undertaken to manufacture the same into iron, free of expense.—Belleville Intelligencer.
