

universities and our schools, long before the recent events took place, we had erected a bulwark against that nefarious doctrine. I have in my newspaper clippings an article which appeared in the Montreal Gazette, the Tory sheet of Montreal, lauding Stalin, Russia's hero.

In keeping with those teachings, our province, once war had been declared, held fast and accepted all sacrifices in men, in munitions, in food and in money. In my modest town of Three Rivers all victory loans exceeded their objectives. Everyone, the rich as well as those of average means, responded to the appeal. In regard to the war itself, my youngest son volunteered and spent five years overseas, under enemy fire. We have accepted all that, Mr. Speaker.

(On motion of Mr. Gariepy the debate was adjourned).

At eleven o'clock the house adjourned, without question put, pursuant to standing order.
