GOOD ROADS ALL RIGHT BUT-

The list of permits to operate motor vehicles thrubut Ontario is being sent out to the places entitled to receive them, and a county exchange, commenting on the fact, says that "it will be easy to convict those violating the rules with respect to speeding and other infractions." The trouble is that on the country roads, where the dust is very often bad, the numbers are not discernable, and in nine cases out of ten, where an autoist has run down a pedestrian or caused damage of any kind, even Sherlock Holmes himself could not make out the number of the car or trace it to a conclusion.

And another thing is that the owners are at no pains to see that the numbers are kept in anything like decent shape, while the tail lights are often either wholly out or but dimly lighted at night. In many ways the law is being ruthlessly violated every day, and it is time that the auto people woke up to the fact that the farmers as a rule have not adopted the auto as a means of locomotion and still demand some kind of consideration. This thing of the hing by the farmers' rigs at a breakneck speed, with the farmers' horses often uncontrollable, and in the ditch, leaves anything but a pleasant impression on the latter's mind, if not on his physical well-being. The one corroding fear in the minds of the farmers of York County is that with the completion of the York County good risads system the number of autos will be doubled, and the farmers' wives will be sidetracked over to the sideroads. But will they?
