D. Masson,

IT is under a deep sense of our responsibilities as Sabbath School teachers we come before you this evening to submit our Annual Report. In pursuance of the sentiments and recommendations of past Reports, presented on our behalf by the Superintendent, and approved by you, the teachers, on their part, while conscious of many failures and delinquencies, would humbly say, that, like good ploughmen, having resolved not to look back, they have continued constant and painstaking in the work to which they have devoted themselves. And it affords them much pleasure, as we know it will also to the Congregation, to be able to state that the work of the Sabbath School is in a prosperous way. The truth is taught in all faithfulness by a staff of teachers, men and women, whose lives are known and read of all of you. The school is largely attended by a bright and promising assemblage of young children, and hopeful young men and women; among whom we are glad to apprehend an intelligent spirit of inquiry and an earnestness of purpose, in the study of the Gospel; with a wholesome emulation for regular attendance on classes. These are, however, tokens which may mean much or little according as they are promoted or neglected; yet they are seasonable and in the line of the truth, and for which we bless God and take fresh courage to persevere in our work.

In the course of the year we have been called to mourn the removal by death of two children from the Sabbath School, viz, James Farries
