George Simpson as the "Little Shepherd," plays a difficult part with skill. Although the fact that the early scenes of the play require the use of the quaint mountain dialect, while the latter ones involve that of a well-bred Kentuckian he handles both satisfactorily. Dorothy Dunn in the part of Melissy, his mountain sweetheart, plays an emotional part excellently. She is young and charming, and admirably adapted to the character. Humor is furnished in abundance by the bibulous Squire Middleton, who is admirably portrayed by James Kennedy. Dorothy Rafuse, as Margaret admirably portrayed by James Kennedy. Dorothy Rafuse, as Margaret Dean, a haughty southern belle, is good. Her part offers opportunity for a vocal number which is excellent. L. Heron, as Nathan Cherry, the villain, is naturally not the most popular man in jeweler's engagement diamond. See him the cast but this is more or less a tribute to his acting, indicating that he portrays the villain well enough to stir his audience deeply. The remainder of the cast carries through the minor parts

The popular magazines are providing much of the scenario material now in time, and that this is a successful plan was demonstrated in "Taxi," the amusing feature film now at Allen's. "Taxi" was a success as a Cosmopolitan serial, and with Taylor Holmes, debonair and galiant as the society man and chauffeur hero, it should prove equally successful as a photoplay. A somewhat unusual feature of the dainty love story was the earnest endeavors of the hero to escape—not his enemies—but his friends, who were so anxiously seeking him.

Charlie always has some sort of mechanical aid to his funances, and this time most of the rollicking action takes place on roller skates. The farcical possibilities of the tricky roller skate are played up to the hilarious limit, and Charlie dodges around in his own way, getting everyone in the most preposterous predicaments in the true Chaplinesque manner.

The report on operation of the road for the month of July showed a surplus of only $600 over operating expenses. This, with the $300 surplus for the operating during the last two weeks of July, would mean about one cent an hour for the employees. They have not decided whether to accept this. A decision may be reached at another meeting, which has been called for next week.

They returned to work on the understanding that their wages would be increased from 44 cents to 45 cents an hour, and that they would receive all profits beyond the actual operating expenses of the road. The report for the operation of the road during June showed a very small surplus, and caused considerable dissatisfaction among the men.

Since then no report has been made and the men are anxious to learn whether they will get any money beyond the stated wage scale. What development will take place, if there are no indications that they will receive as small amount at least, is something which union officials would not venture to predict today.

A National Film vehicle showing at the state of this week, is one of the most entertaining of its kind ever seen in London. While engaged selling papers under instructions from her pawnbroker guardian, the heroine receives some food from a passing stranger, Jairius Drake, a lawyer, searching New York for his faithless wife. Her manager, Sidney Haviland, is adored by the faithless one, and he proceeds overseas on war service. Danny, the supposed sweetheart of Ruth, also enlists, and she is determined to be near him. With this end in view she joins the Salvation Army, but ere she can achieve it her lover is killed and Haviland is wounded. Opening the dramatic season in London, "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" at the Grand last night gave promise of one of the best series of entertainments yet seen here if the quality of the performances throughout is of an equally high order with this production. The story is well known to both the older and younger generations, but the dramatic skill of the cast is such as to lend it a new charm. It will play the remainder of the week.

Containing many powerful situations the play could easily be ruined by overworked melodrama, but this fault was carefully avoided in the production last night. Ladies' Auxiliary.

That the ability to have a good time is not confined to the trainmen alone, but that the peculiar trait is to be found in their better halves also, was proven by a pienic held by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen No. 240, before the pavilion in Springbank on Tuesday afternoon. Chaperoned by Michael O'Leary and several more trainmen, upwards of 100 women thoroughly enjoyed themselves. joyed themselves.

An excellent list of sports and special events were run off and were keenly contested, while baseball was played after lunch. In a guessing contest two of the women showed rare ability for guessing. What a jar containing 1.412 beans was placed before them as the subject of the contest, two of the women guessed within twelve of the right number. An investigation showed that they were not the ones who filled the jars.

A practical joke was played on Michael O'Leary and H. Bradford. In a special race for trainmen the women announced the winners would be awarded a diamond pin and two yards of real lace as prizes. Needless to say the winners never ran faster in their lives, for such a chance does not come every day. When Mr. O'Leary opened his package he found a dime and pin, while H. Bradford drew two shoe laces. They are through with women forever.
