DIPHTHERIA CASES.

Five Developed at Evangeline Home—One at Milford.

Up to the present time there have been five cases of diphtheria reported at the Evangeline Home, and the cases affected have been removed to the epidemic hospital. The board of health have sent to the home, 25,000 units of anti-toxin and all the inmates of the institution are being treated. It is hoped that in this way, the spread of the disease will be stamped out. The building has been quarantined, and all persons who have been in contact with the cases are being treated. The physicians in charge of the outbreak, are using every precaution to prevent the disease from spreading to the other inmates of the home, and it is thought that no more cases will develop. A case of diphtheria was reported at Milford this morning, and the house quarantined.

POLICE COURT.

George Gamble occupied the prisoners' bench this morning, in solitary grandeur. He was charged with drunkenness, playing pullie, and was fined $4, or ten days. Gamble said that he had never previously been before the court, and "it's a pity," said his honor, "that a man of your years should come here, when you have never been here before. The fine will be allowed to stand against you. You know what brought you here; and you had better cut it out." Gamble thanked the magistrates and departed.

A BIRD FANCIER.

Harry Kelley, chief wine clerk at the Dufferin, received, this morning, a handsome pair of strawberryblers, and a fan-tail pigeon, from Boston. Mr. Kelley has a collection of some of the best bird pigeons in the maritime province. He has an aviary at his home on Union St., where he is doing an extensive bird-breeding business. He intends to further add to the collection in the immediate future. At the last St. John exhibition, every bird that Mr. Kelley exhibited, took the leading prize.

THE LICENSE CASE.

The case of Eben Perkins vs the Liquor License Commissioners will come up on Saturday next. It was adjourned last Saturday, as Mr. Trusman would be absent from the city for a fortnight. It seems, however, that the court has power to adjourn only for one week, and Mr. Robertson, counsel for the plaintiff and several of the commissioners were in court this morning to arrange for further adjournment.

Repairs on the "Frank and Ira" are almost completed, and it is expected that she will start loading early next week. The "Eric" and "Alice Maud" are also in readiness to enter upon the summer coasting trade.

Kennebecas Ice.

Arnold Redmond, of Moss Glen, was in the city this morning, and states that the ice at Moss Glen and vicinity, is still very thick. He thinks it will be three weeks yet before the ice will break up on that part of the river. A new wharf is being built at Rothney, and it was found necessary to cut some ice away from in front of it, and it was found that the ice was over two feet deep. Further up the Kennebecas, however, the ice is rotting fast.

The Aberdeen.

Manager Robert Scott, of the Frederickton and Woodstock steamboat company, arrived in the city this morning. He will superintend some repairs to be made to the steamer Aberdeen. The steamer will be painted and overhauled.

BAY SHORE ACCIDENT.

Cornier Admitted to Bail—Today's Evidence in the Case Heard Before Police Magistrate Ritchie Added Very Little.

The preliminary examination of Fred G. Cornier was resumed before Judge Ritchie at the police court this morning.

Fred H. Taylor, counsel for the C. P. R. produced a copy of the train order sent to west end on the night of the accident and the clearance signed by Cornier.

Walter B. Brown was again placed on the stand, and stated that he knew Cornier's style of writing, and that the writing on the train order looked like that of the defendant. Witness noted a peculiarity in the formation of the letter "t." He also produced the examination papers, which the operator at West St. John had been written by Cornier in his presence.

On the night in question an order had been issued that engine 992 run "engine extra"—i. e. alone—to west end. The operator received a "31" train order he should signal "S. D." He had never ordered Kelly, the operator at West St. John to signal S. D. He had told Kelly that "S. D." was only a matter of form at west end and there was no signal there.

Cornier had told him he had a copy of the rules and regulations of the regulation governing a "31" train order.

Roy Mayble was next sworn, and testified that he was a yard helper on the west side. He went to John, about seven o'clock, the night of the accident, and reached Bay Shore about 8.40. Worden, Rogers, accompanied him into the office. Campbell came in later. Worden had received no orders in the office, and witness did not hear Cornier say anything about orders. Worden had signed no orders that night, to his knowledge, and witness was with him most of the evening. He had not heard any one tell Worden that there were orders at the office for him to sign, although this may have been done without his knowing it. He had heard that engine 992 was going west, St. John for immigrants.

During the course of his testimony Mayble described the accident. From Worden, he was not more than three car-lengths from him at any time. Witness asked Griffiths, after the accident how he got there without orders, to which he replied that he had an order that the track was clear.

His honor stated that Cornier was charged, not with manslaughter, but with omission to carry out instructions. Edward T. Griffiths was next examined, and stated that he was in charge of engine 992, and received an order to go west St. John, on the night in question. He identified the orders in court as those that he backed towards Bay Shore station, and when about one hundred and fifty feet from it saw a light on the van. He admitted having traced his name over that signed on the order by Cornier, as he had a presentiment that something would go wrong. The order was handed to the fireman who placed it in his hands. Witness was in the telegraph office the night of the accident, but could not remember clearly what had happened. But thought he heard Cornier tell Worden that he either had, or would have, an order for him to sign. He heard it said that Cornier had told Wilfred Campbell that there were orders for Worden, and saw Campbell leave the office. He told Cornier as soon as he got the orders to send them down, meaning that he (Cornier) was to sign for them. To which he understood Cornier to say "all right." Witness admitted having violated the rules of the road, in that he did not read the order aloud to the operator, but swore that he signed the order in compliance with the rules of the road. Witness said that on one occasion when an operator had written his (Griffiths) name on an order he had traced it over on receiving it.

When Judge Ritchie read the charge to Cornier the prisoner replied, "I have nothing to say, your honor, except that I am not guilty." The prisoner was admitted to bail.

THE LEAGUE IS AFTER YOU. Though conscience wrings, come list to that all the soul with awe. You have been lax—your public acts their condemnation draw. The League is after you! They'll tell you that you're wrong. You find your numbers short. You curse the day they say, "The League is after you." With schemes devised and strength combined, A dollar for light to win the fight And burn for victory. The League is after you! Repentance now is vain. They'll tell you that you're wrong. You find your numbers short. You curse the day they say, "The League is after you." You think it hard to lose a pard, But that's the way, so runs the play They leave you all the same. The League is after you! So now with all your skill, To meet the great and good, The air is filled with blood. Your every name is mud. "The League is after you!" They have in sight, sheep painted white, Though lost as black as you. This please take note as any goat, Has perished on the road. The League is after you! I write this from afar, From Nature's gleaming star, From Saturn's glowing waist, To greet you at the gates. "The League is after you!" "The League is after you!" Charon, Mar. 25, 1905.

"What Doctors Brown and Smith are going to operate upon old Gotrox?" "Why, yes, Brown has a note coming due, and Smith wants an automobile." Jordan—"What! Want to borrow more money?" "I thought you had a position. You certainly told me so." Gilroy—"Yes, it was a position of expectancy, I mean; I'm still in it."

"The man whose eye is ever on himself doth look on one. The least of Nature's works, one who might move the wise man to that work which would do him good. True dignity shines, with him alone who, in the silent hour of inward thought can still expect, and still revive himself in loneliness of heart." (Wardsworth).
