ENTHUSIASTIC FAREWELL. There was scarcely a dry eye among the crowd of old St. John Riflemen members of G Company, 62nd Fusiliers, last evening, when in the office of Capt. Tilley, Canterbury street, they bade, farewell to their old comrades, Fred. W. Coombs, a former private in the Rifles, and William H. Irvine, for some years bugler of that corps. The members turned out in force and completely filled the rooms. Capt. Tilley in a brief but feeling speech presented the two volunteers with handsome Smith & Wesson revolvers. Privates Coombs and Irvine were both affected, but made suitable responses. Speeches were also made by Capt. Smith, formerly in command of the Rifles, and Lieut. Frost, and the roof rang with the cheers from the boys. When leaving the room the two volunteers were seized and carried on the shoulders of their comrades to King street, where they were put down and cheers given. They were again chaired and carried nearly to the head of King street, where they were placed inside of a circle and Auld Lang Syne sung. Cheer upon cheer was then given for the two boys. A large crowd followed the Rifles, and the more enthusiastic joined in the cheering. A volunteer who was met on the sidewalk was also chaired and carried along. The old Rifle company and G com pany, 62nd Fusiliers, will assemble at the depot half an hour before the train leaves to bid a last farewell to their

Lt. Col. Vidal is well pleased with the New Brunswick contingent. If necessary, forty or fifty more good men could be recruited from the long list of applicants who came too late. The medical examination was a rigid one, and those who passed are "fit." Local officers were much in evidence at the Fusiliers' Club last evening. Capt. Jones is not sorry the work of filling out papers and swearing in recruits is over. But he is proud from the province they founded under the aegis of the flag for which they sacrificed so much, there went out yes-terday a soldier land. The flag their fathers planted on these shores in years agone is their flag. It beckons them now across the seas, where loy-alists on another continent are called to arms in its defence. We give of our best, and they go to fight if need be in the battles of the empire. Our hearts and hopes go with them, and we are assured that whether in war or peace the honor and traditions of their native land will bravely be upheld. And so they went—the sons of Greater Britain and soldiers of the Queen. They went, these lads that we have known and loved, with a little sinking of the heart, it may be, at the noment of severing the ties of home and friendship; but animated by the same stern spirit that has tracked the wilderness and bridged the seas, toil-ing upward through the centuries and During morning drill yesterday, the Rev. W. C. Gaynor, accompanied by T. O'Brien, called and stated that he desired to meet the Catholic members of the contingent, after the drill, at the church of St. John the Baptist, of which Mon. Connolly, V. G., is the rector. Lieut. McLean informed the men later on, and at the appointed time they went to the church. Father Gaynor made an address, which greatly pleased his audience. He said he was glad to see a number of Catholics Transvaal to assist the soldiers of the great empire in terminating the war. He trusted that, besides fearlessly performing their duties as good soldiers, they would be attentive to their religious duties and attend mass as often as possible. He said, too, that they must be obedient to the officers and those in authority. "Your career," he said, "will be watched by us with interest, and although far away you will be remembered in our prayers." He then earolled the men in the scapular of the Blessed Virgin, and invoked the protection of St. Joseph, the patron of the universal church. He presented them with envelopes containing a cross and other religious articles, which he said were the gifts of some pious Catholics. He then shook hands with them, blessed them, and wished them a safe return. On Monday evening Mrs. Dever of the ladies' committee arranged that a prayer book for each of the Catholic men should be placed in their bags.
