TO START ON THE DRY LAKE EXTENSION

Engineer McInnis will Look Over Plans and be Ready to Commence on Monday.

Engineer McInnis, who has been engaged by the water and sewerage department to superintend the laying of the new mains at the Dry Lake and at Lancaster has gone to Boston to attend a meeting of engineers at that place on Friday. He took the plans for the proposed water extensions with him and will look them over while away. He will return on Monday and it is the intention of the commissioner to begin the work at the Dry Lake immediately on his return. The tenders for the excavation and back fill in connection with this work will be called for at once but the work of laying the pipe will be done by the department employees. The commissioner pointed out to The Standard yesterday that when he had completed his plans for this season there would have been in the vicinity of $100,000 of permanent work done and that not a dollar of bonds had been asked for in order to carry out this program. He thought that the experience of the city with the department of water and sewerage was a pretty good argument in favor of municipal ownership of public utilities. In addition to the permanent renewals which had been made this season a very large number of iron stop-cocks had been replaced with brass which are practically indestructible and might also be classed as permanent work. The water system of the city had been greatly improved in the last few years especially in the matter of circulation by the taking up of small pipes and replacing them with eight and ten inch mains thus giving the people a better pressure and largely increasing the amount of water available for fire fighting. A number of the old hydrants had been replaced with modern two way hydrants which tended very materially to help in the fighting of fire.

ABSOLUTE VICTORY IN EGYPT ASSURED BY BRITISH SUCCESS

Turkish Force Broken Up and Scattered in the Desert After the Suez Battle—Deeds of Anzacs, Warwick, Gloucesters and Lancashires.

By W. T. Massey, Special Correspondent With the Forces in Egypt.

Roman, Aug. 5 (received yesterday).—At sunset yesterday the Turkish pretensions to the conquest of Egypt were irretrievably smashed, and while the crescent moon faintly lighted up the desert and cast fantastic shadows over the broken sandy country we pursued the Turkish troops vigorously.

The Turks' second attempt at the invasion of Egypt has been beaten much more severely than that of February last year, despite German leadership and more scientific methods. We have already counted more than two thousand prisoners, including several Germans, and have captured a portion of their artillery and many machine guns.

There has not been time yet to estimate the enemy's losses, as we are pursuing them swiftly, but a Turkish officer assured me that our machine-gun fire was terrible, and cut down men like reaping corn. He marvelled that any escaped, and he believes that the Turkish casualties are extremely heavy. Anyhow, the enemy troops are scattered far and wide in the desert, not in orderly column, but in small parties, and many of these will doubtless be caught up, brought to action, and killed or captured.

Our victory is already absolute, and the significance of General Murray's untiring preparations east of the canal will now be fully appreciated.

The brunt of the fighting was borne by the Anzac mounted troops, consisting of the Australian Light Horse and the New Zealand Mounted Rifles. These colonial horsemen had been anxious to follow their comrades to France, but were retained in Egypt because they were ideal troops for the work in front of our defenses.

High Praise. They acquitted themselves magnificently. For more than a week they had little rest, keeping touch with the enemy, pushing back his patrols, and reconnoitering in a country where a wily enemy largely outnumbered them. They were well led, and the men themselves displayed a high degree of military intelligence and courage, and one of their attacks yesterday was quite irresistible. One officer described General Chauvel's division as the cream of colonial troops. After the trials of Gallipoli what praise could be higher?

Of the British troops, the Scottish and Lancashire Territorials and the Warwick and Gloucester Yeomanry fought splendidly, and fully avenged the previous loss of their comrades, now prisoners at Damascus, by taking over three hundred prisoners and two camel guns, and inflicting very heavy casualties. As the Yeomanry and Infantry are pursuing the Turks their bag may become heavier.

At midnight on Thursday the Turks, a division strong, held a north and south line through the Katia oasis about seven miles long, the flanks thrown westward. From a little south of Roman to the Mediterranean coast lay the Scottish Infantry, while the Anzacs in front of them from an hour before daylight fought with great steadiness and determination against a well-entrenched enemy in superior numbers, yielding ground grudgingly until Major-General the Hon. H. A. Lawrence could reinforce his line with more cavalry and infantry.

The situation at midday was that we securely held the line Mahamadya—Roman—Katia—Gannit, the latter a sand dune nearly three hundred feet high, and an excellent observation post when the Turkish howitzer fire was not turned against it. From Gannit for a mile to the west is Wellington Ridge, an elevated stretch of bright yellow sand which the Turks made energetic attempts to reach. Two miles due south is Mount Meredith, and here and at Mount Royston, three miles west northwest, the enemy managed to get a footing in the afternoon.

They had chosen what appeared to be the easiest path towards the canal, a broad, undulating, sandy plain flanked by sand dunes.

About three o'clock the enemy made a fierce attack on Roman and Gannit, but the Light Horse and the Scottish Territorials drove them back towards Abu Hamra with very considerable loss.

Brigade of Veterans. At Mahamadya a Lancashire brigade was brought up by rail, and as I saw them detrain the difference which two years' training has made in this force seemed remarkable. From the front of the train, the men in peace time, they have improved into a brigade of veterans. They left the railway at a place within sound of heavy rifle fire, and marched away to attack through shingle-deep sand, lighted and thoroughly proud that their time had come. A little later, from a different spot, I saw the Warwick and Gloucester Yeomanry marching over flatter country, with flankers advanced and rearwards and squadrons as well aligned as on parade. At five o'clock the infantry began to attack from north to south, while the Yeomanry, dismounted, moved over the sand dunes towards Mount Royston, working in touch with the infantry.

Our guns belabored the Turks, but a Turkish officer who was taken prisoner here told me that our rifle and machine-gun fire cost the enemy infinitely more casualties. Nothing could withstand it, and the Yeomanry and Infantry drove the enemy off Mount Royston and the slopes of Wellington Ridge, and after a brief delay cleared Mount Meredith, collecting a thousand prisoners during their advance and scattering the remainder of the force over the face of the desert. What the Turkish casualties are I cannot say, but they must be large.

Weary Turks. Since daylight this morning we have pursued the Turks, who, if the prisoners are a good sample of von Kress's expeditionary force, are very weary.

Whether the Turks will try to hold the trenches dug by them remains to be seen, but whatever happens, Egypt is safer from invasion than at any time during the war. No finer vindication of General Murray's policy of making the Turk fight far from the canal could be given than the fact that traffic on the waterway was not stopped for one minute. British troops in the wild, unlovely desert secured a peaceful passage for the world's commerce flowing between the seas of the East and the West.

The Turks fought hard, but the prisoners are delighted to be in British hands, receiving good food and abundant water. The officer I have quoted said that the captured Turks are glad to be British prisoners, for they knew they would be chivalrously treated. I can speak of the tender treatment the Turkish wounded are receiving. This is making a deep impression on the unwounded prisoners.

WEST END MAN LOSES BARN AND LIVE STOCK

Fire Last Night Destroyed Property of J. R. Whipple, of Whipple Street, Lancaster.

A barn belonging to J. R. Whipple, situated at the rear of his residence on Whipple street near the Martello Tower was destroyed last night together with all the contents, consisting of a cow, a heifer, two and a half tons of hay and agricultural implements.

Mr. Whipple attributes the fire to spontaneous combustion, as he put some damp hay in the barn yesterday afternoon. He was in the barn a half an hour before the fire broke out but saw no signs of any blaze.

The fire was first noticed by his young son, who made an attempt to unfasten the cow. The boy was unable to release the animal, as it was fastened by means of a clasp, which he had no knowledge of, and by the time assistance arrived it was impossible to gain entrance to the barn. The fire department arrived shortly after the alarm was sent in, but as there was no hydrant near the house the only method of fighting the flames was the bucket brigade which was quickly organized and did splendid work.

Commissioner Wigmore rendered valuable assistance along with many neighboring residents.

Mr. Whipple carried $200 insurance on the barn, but nothing on the contents. Fortunately the wind was blowing to the east, which carried the sparks and cinders away from the house.

PERSONAL. H. G. Marr arrived home from New York last night. His Lordship Bishop LeBlanc left for Moncton at noon yesterday. C. Walker Craibe, of Detroit, Michigan, is in the city on a short vacation. Mrs. R. L. Smith and Miss McLennan, of M. R. A.'s retail millinery department, have returned from visiting the American fashion centres.

W. F. Hoar, Montreal, and J. A. Wickett, Toronto, are registered at the Dufferin.

John Barnett, of Oldtown, Me., is visiting Dr. J. A. Boyce, Chesley street. Friends of W. O. Dunham, Dufferin Row, will learn with regret that he is still ill. Mr. Dunham is able to be about, but is undergoing treatment. Superintendent H. C. Groat, of the C. P. R., returned yesterday from an inspection trip from St. Stephen.

Mrs. Thomas Stead, of New York, is in St. John for a few days, staying at Miss Armstrong's, Charlotte street. Robert H. Dobson, of Winnipeg, is visiting friends here.

Thomas Jenner, of Moncton, is visiting his brother and sister, Mr. Alfred Jenner and Mrs. W. A. Wetmore. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Golding arrived in the city from Montreal at noon yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. James McAnulty, Jamaica Plains, Boston, are visiting Mrs. P. Killen, 230 Queen street, Mrs. McAnulty's sister.

Military Prisoners.

Three soldiers of the 140th Battalion, who have been prisoners on Patridge Island for some time, were brought to the city yesterday and are being detained at police headquarters until today when they will be taken to Valcartier under guard.
