Sudden drops of temperature are impossible in the home heated by hot water. Stove fires die out, hot air furnaces heat unevenly, and the hot air switches to other parts of the house leaving the remaining rooms cold and drafty. But with the heating system of the

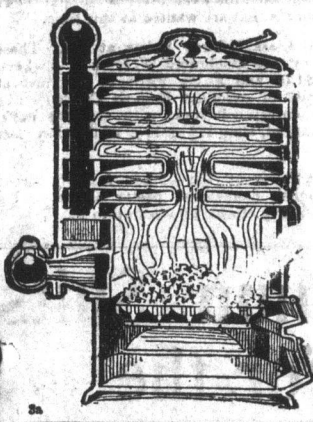

Oxford Hot Water Heater

In connection with Oxford Radiators an even, steady circulation of hot water is kept up throughout the house. Each radiator is diffusing the same temperature of heat in sufficient quantities for the size of the room.

The illustration below shows that the distance from the fire to the first surface is less than in any heater made, and the water has a shorter distance to travel, thus a more equal temperature is maintained in the water of the several sections.

THE MIRACLE OF RADIUM.

Lord Kelvin's Theory Regarding the Perpetual Emission of Heat.

New York, Sept. 14.—The Sun today has the following special from London:—What Prof. C. V. Boys termed "the miracle of radium" has naturally received much attention in scientific circles. At the meeting of the science branch of the British Association Lord Kelvin, in a paper which he read, made an interesting suggestion in connection with its perpetual emission of heat at, according to M. Curie's calculation, a rate of about 90 centigrade calories per gramme per hour. He said that if the emission of heat at this rate went on for 10,000 hours there would be as much heat as would raise the temperature of 900,000 grammes of water 1 degree centigrade. It seemed utterly impossible to Lord Kelvin that this would come from the store of energy lost out of a gramme of radium in 10,000 hours. It seemed, therefore, absolutely certain that the energy must somehow be supplied from without. He suggested that etherical waves might in some way supply energy to radium while it was emitting heat to matter around it.

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the chain of life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of heart or lungs, liver or kidneys, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

"I was in poor health when I commenced taking Doctor Pierce's medicines," writes Mr. Elmer Lawler, of Volga, Jefferson Co., Ind. "I had stomach, kidney, heart, and lung troubles. Was not able to do any work. I had a severe cough and hemorrhage of the lungs, but after using your medicine a while I commenced to gain in strength and flesh, and stopped coughing. I feel like a different person. I gladly recommend your medicine to all sufferers, for I know it cured me."

The use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will cure that foul breath.

It is estimated that the great rural drama, "Quincy Adams Sawyer," has been witnessed by more than a million persons, and at the rate the play is drawing this season the two million mark is likely to be reached before the season closes.

So widely has the fame of this story extended the name of "Quincy Adams Sawyer" has long ago been accepted as a household word—one that stands for fun, fact and fancy. There is more fun in "Quincy Adams Sawyer" than ever put into a single play before. The incidents are built on fact or reality and are therefore true to life itself, while the characters, fictitious in the story, become, as portrayed by sympathetic artists, distinct, natural living types such as are found everywhere in the country.

It is a credit to the public's taste that it takes so kindly to this clean wholesome drama of New England life which is individual among all rural plays because of its fidelity to nature and absence of old-time features.

The production is to be seen here September 20th at the Grand Opera House, and the story of the young city man in the country who courts a country girl, goes to singing schools, sleigh rides and husking bees, fights the town bully and figures in many more experiences, will want to be seen by all who wish a few hours of genuine amusement.

The Shamrock's Designer.
Mr. G. L. Watson, the designer of Shamrock III, who was married recently at Putney to Miss Marie Lovibond, was born in the year 1851, in which the schooner America captured the now historic America Cup in the celebrated match round the Isle of Wight. Mr. Watson's apprenticeship was served on the Clyde. His first famous yacht was the ninety-ton cutter Vanduara, which beat the hitherto invincible Formosa, owned by the then Prince of Wales, seventeen times in succession during her first season. His first yacht of worldwide renown was the Scottish challenger for the America Cup, the Thistle, and the most successful of all was the King's Britannia. He also designed for Lord Dunraven (who was at his wedding) the three Valkyries, two of which raced for the cup.

A NUTMEG MATCH.

The Godding Comedy Company, a repertoire organization of considerable merit, opened a week's engagement at the Grand last evening with the presentation of "A Nutmeg Match."

The production was light comedy, sparkling with humor and clever situations, and pleased a large audience. The cast was strong and the specialties were new and particularly good.

TO-NIGHT.

To-night the Godding Comedy Co. will present the four act society comedy-drama, "Life in New York." The play has a tone vein of pathos and yet is full of rich comedy. It also permits of elegant wardrobe and special scenic effects. Mr. Godding is said to have a part in the cast that admirably fits him. The specialties will be changed each and every night during the week's engagement.

Henrik Ibsen's drama, "Ghosts," is based on one of the old Mosaic laws, the transgression of which has brought bitter travail to men and women throughout the generations.

In this day when life is considered not only as a science but an art, plays like "Ghosts" are of vital interest. They lay open before our eyes those dark places in modern life which the sunlight of truth has not illumined. They point to the plague spots and bid us heed. The lesson is a powerful one, and Ibsen with his daring pen has hewn the way that other play-wrights are hesitating to follow, yet see in it the road to higher things in dramatic literature.

Edith Ellis-Baker, who heads the company presenting "Ghosts," is one of the school of moderns who cry for the stage, "Let in the light and let us see life as it is." She believes that herein lies the way to make the stage of greater educational value. She exploits the delicate art of expression that finds its best exponent in Signora Duse and Mrs. Ristori. She surrounded herself with a company of artists that guarantees an intellectual performance of the great Ibsen play.

At the Grand Monday evening, September 21st.
