BALFOUR TELLS OF NAVY. Hon, A. I. Balfour, First Lord of the Admiralty, recently took occasion to analyse a vain-glorious boast of Count Von Reventlow, that Germany's navy "holds Britain at bay", and that "the days of absolute British supremacy at sea are at an end." To this Mr. Balfour replies :-in-betweens. So far the German Fleet has thought it wise to avoid engaging a superior force, and I am the last person to blame them. But this surely is hardly to be counted as a triumph of either tactics or strategy; it is a military exploit which, however judicious, of the least efficient fleet and the there. most incapable Commander.

The truth is that the German highsea fleet has so far done nothing and probably has not been in a position to do anything. At the beginning of cess of continual attrition, it was proposed to reduce the superior British Fleet, ship by ship, until an equality was established between the two antagonists. The design has completely failed.

The desired equality is more remote than it was twelve months ago, and this would be true even if certain extraordinary misstatements about such small actions as have occurred in the North Sea had any foundation in fact. He tells us, for example, that in the skirmish of August 28, when some German cruisers were destroyed, the English squadron suffered heavy dam-
