JUST A LITTLE BIT OFF THE TOP

For a sugar factory, it seems to promote a lot of discussion that is by no means sweet.

By all accounts, it would appear that a modern Noah's Ark must have capsized somewhere up the river.

The argument against the sugar factory, to a large extent, runs to sensationalism, and therefore loses weight.

Wharton and Whitby's soreness should not be considered. The main question is: Is the Keystone proposition worth while?

A man complained in Police Court yesterday that he was robbed at his boarding house. Boarders, as a rule, generally have a great deal at stake.

"I heard of a fellow the other day who fell from an open window where he was sitting eating pie, and was instantly killed."

"I don't doubt it. I've often been knocked out by pie myself."

We learn with much mental anguish that a picture machine man has been around taking photos of this G. H. J. office since the workmen have commenced ripping out the front. We suppose that his object is to show them in Windsor and other small towns, and palm them off on the natives as genuine scenes from the recent San Francisco earthquake.

THE NERNST LAMP

A New Invention Which Promises to be a Boon to Merchants in the Way of Lighting

Of the many late inventions in the way of electric lighting apparatus one of the most notable is the almighty Nernst incandescent lamp. It is one of the greatest savers of electric power on the market, as it gives an intensely bright light while only consuming half the current usually required for an illumination of equal strength.

The Nernst Lamp is a German invention and it combines a variety of good points seldom found in similar lamps. It is durable and well made, gives a clear bright light and has a very good appearance. The aisles at the Fair of Nations were lighted by these lamps, a number of them being loaned by Mr. Coate, manager of the Chatham Gas Company, and visitors were struck by the splendid illumination which they provided. The Nernst Lamp is intended for use in stores and is specially suited for show window lighting, as it assures a brilliant display.

The way in which Mr. P. S. Coate became agent for these lamps is rather interesting. Up to a short time ago the Gas Company had been charging their store keeper patrons a flat rate for electric light service. They found, however, that they were supplying an enormous amount of power at what was only cost price, or even slightly below, and they decided to improve their meter in the future and to stop the flat rate to consumers. Storekeepers had, therefore, to be more economical in using the power and light, in order to improve their expenditure that Mr. Coate investigated and tested several lamps claiming to give better light than the ordinary ones without requiring greater power.

Many experiments with lamps of all makes and qualities the Nernst was selected as the best that could be obtained. It has been applied to some of the stores and gives complete satisfaction. The efficiency and beauty of the lights were well demonstrated at the Fair and Mr. Coate is extremely fortunate in securing the local agency for these lamps.

The Nernst is made in several sizes, the candle power ranging from 60 upward, and it can be recommended to all requiring an excellent half power light. Twice the light at half the cost is not its only quality, for it sheds a clear, bright light, free from any yellowish glare that does not affect the eyes, which are so often strained by the blurring inferior lights used in many stores.

The Nernst Lamp may be examined at the Gas office by intending purchasers or interested persons.
