Sowing Whear Thice.—The Michigan Farmer informs us that Gen. Williams of Lims, in that state, has been in the practice of sowing two bushels of wheat to the acre the effect of which is small atraw, always bright, rarely or never liable to rust, and increased product—and that others had observed a similar result.

Book-somowens, who forget to return the volumes which the kindness of friends scables them to read, should puruse the following lines, which, it is said, were written more than sixty years ago. They are as apposite, however, now as they were at that remote period:

"If I this book do lend to you,
Or you of me do borrow.
So soon as you have read it through,
Pray bring it homes the morrow.
"Then after which, If you do want
To borrow yet another,
Just come to me, and you shall see
That I can lend the other."

"Did you ever attend a 'Golden Mar-riage?" Do you know what a 'Golden arriage in ?

"When a man and his wife have lived together for fifty years, it is the custom in some countries, as in Sweden, and, I be-lieve, in Germany, to hold a second wed-ding, at which all the old friends of both parties-their children and their children's children to the remotest degree-are invited to be present on the occasion.

"I was present at a Golden-Marriage celebration in this city only a few weeks since; and I want to try to describe it to

"A gentleman who had been married for fifty years, all and every part of which had been passed in uninterrupted domestic happiness, sent out, in the name of himself and his aged companion, invitat-ions to attend their 'Golden Marriage.' (You will find this pleasant and beautiful custom admirably described in a domestic novel called 'The Neighbors.') The evening arrived, and I was privileged, as an old friend, to be present.

"Fathers, mothers, children, grand-children, great grand-children, sons-inlaw, daughters-in law, and their children, were present. The aged couple, in ex-cellent health, and with faces as happy as good hearts, and good deeds, and a coness of years well spent, could make them, imparting happiness to all around them, in the rooms, odorous with numerous flowers. Oh, it was a most beautiful sight; and I hope is a custom that may hereafter be followed by those married couples who are so fortunate as to live in perpetual peace and happiness together for half a century. How truly together for half a century. How truly might that still 'happy couple' represent the lovely characters of 'John Anderson and his Jean:'

d his John ...

' John Anderson, my Jo, John, We've eeen our bairns' bairns, But yet, my dear John Anderson, I'm happy in your arms; And so are you in mine, John, I'm sure you'll ne'er say no, Though the days be gone that see he John Anderson, my Jo; John, Life's bill, we've climb'd thegith And mony a canty day, John, We've lind wi' ane anither: New we man totter down, John, John,

We've had wi' ane anither:
Now we mann totter doun, John,
But band in hand we'll go,
And we'll eloup thegither at the foot, And we'll eleep thegither a John Anderson, my Jo!

"I have somewhere seen a senten Language of Flowers' like this: look to Mary-Gold.' I rather think one party' that I know, some ten years ago,

'party' that I know, some ten years ago, have had occasion to wish they had not followed this advice. I am inclined to believe, too, that they will never celebrate a 'Golden Marriage' again—although their first was one, literally.

The case was simply this: A good-looking, but ambitious, somewhat proud, and not over-industrious young man, paid his addresses to a 'young-old girl,' whose father was a very rich and very pompous man, the magnate of the village, so far as the possession of a large property man, the magnate of the village, so far as the possession of a large property went. The girl herself was haughty, proud, and exacting; but she had 'soild' charms, and they won for her a husband,

ARCHIBALD SCOTT, Esq.

SIR,—As the Agent of various Fire Insurance Companies, I beg to bring under your notice my PATENT ARTIFICIAL SLATE. This composition has been upwards of, three years extensively used in New Branswick, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, the Canadas and Nova Scotin, principally for covering shingled roefs, as you will perceive by the accompanying circulars of certificates, it has been severely tested, and proved most successfully its fire proof qualities under most extraordinary circumstances; so much so, that I am of opinion that Fire Insurance Companies should encourage its general application to all kinds of wood huilding (where the color would be no objection to its being used, such as he back walls of dwellings in the city, out houses. he back walls of dwellings in the city, out houses, ware-houses, &co., as well as the roofs) by lowering the premium of insurance on such buildings as are covered.

I have the honor to be, sir,. Your obedient servant,

J. W. ROSS. Halifax 14th July, 1858. Sin — In answer to your note of the 12th inst. I consider the are of your "Artificial Slate Paint" on shingled Roofs, as greatly diminishing the risk against Fire—I have frequently reduced the premiums on Buildings in the Country, apon its application,

I am, sir, your ob't servant.

GLEASON'S PICTORIAL.

GLEASON'S PICTORIAL.

O'N the first of January next, Gleason's Pictorial will commence its sixth volume, and will appear vastly improved in all respects, with a superb new heading, new type and dress throughout; and will be printed upon the finest paper. As the proprietor of the Pictorial has purchased the entire good will of Baruum's New York Illustrated News. and has merged that journal in the Pictorial, the public will reap rhe advantage of this concentration of the strength of the two papers upon one, both in the artists and the literary departments. The same brilliant host of contributors and artists will be engaged on Gleason's Pictorial as heretofore, and a large addition is also made to the corps, both in talent and number. The most liberal arrangements have been completed, and such as will enable the Proprietor to predece by far the finest illustrated journal yet published, and much superior to the present issue of the paper. The columns of the Pictorial will constantly be beautified by all that can please and instruct in art and nature, and its literary department will fully sustain the high reputation it has so long sujoyed.

The pages of Gleason's Pictorial will contain views of every populous city in the known world, of all buildings of note in the eastern or western hemisphere, of all the principal ships and steamers of the navy and merchant service; with fine and sceurate portraits of every noted character in the world, both male and female, Sketches of beautiful scenery, taken from life, will also be given, with numerous specimens from the animal kingdom, the birds of the air, and the fish of the sea, and will present in its mechanical execution an elegant specimen of art. It will contain fifteen hundred and sixty-flour square inches, giving a great amount of reading mater and illustrations—and ferming a manmoth weekly paper ches, giving a great amount of reastrations—and forming a mammet of sixteen octave pages.
