nvestigated. In the village of Schonbeck, in the province of West Prussia, the little daughter of a cabinetmaker has been bedridden for three years. The father became persuaded that his daughter was bewitched by a woman who had given her occasionally apples and pears. He was advised that the patient would be cured if she drank some of the blood of the supposed witch. The poor woman was entrapped into visiting a place where some of the chief men of the commune were assembled to receive her. She was seized, one of her fingers pricked with a needle, and the blood given to the sick child. Are All Birds Flesh-Eaters? Mr. Grant Allen, in an article in Knowedge on the English black-cap, answers thi question in the affirmative. Although the old black-caps eat largely of the young black-caps will ea eat nothing but insects. Breeders of the canary eed-eating bird—are also well aware of the fact that the young must at first be fed on animal food, usually given in the shape of boiled egg. Mr. Allen says that this trait of the black-cap, common to many if not to most fruit-eaters, may be put side by side with the one noted by Mr. A. R. Wallace, that the young humming-birds, which are developed flower-haunting swifts, will eat nothing but spiders and small flies. In both cases the facts point back curiously to the original habits of the whole race. There can be very little doubt, adds Mr. Allen, that all birds were at first carnivorous, piscivorous, or insectivorous, and the greater part of them probably remain so to the present day. The practice of eating grains and seeds came later; while that of living upon fruits, or the nectar of flowers, must have been the latest of all. Indeed, the development of succulent fruits or berries seems to be a very recent acquisition on the part of plants generally; and it must have proceeded side by side with the evolution of fruit-eating habits in the correlated birds. Hence we find the young still require to be fed upon animal tood; and indeed, the adult black-caps, like many other similar mainly frugivorous species, cannot get along for any length of time without library. without a liberal admixture of slugs and caterpillars in their food. On the other hand, the nost advanced fruit eaters, such as the parrots, readily revert to carnivorous practices in onfinement; and one New Zealand species, since the introduction of sheep into the co-lony, has become a perfect pest to the breeders by its partiality for animal dainties, Ayer's Ague Cure is a powerful tonic bitter, composed wholly of vegetable sub-stances. Its action is peculiar, prompt and powerful, breaking up the chill, curing the ver, and expelling the poison from the system, yet leaving no harmful or unpleasant effect upon the patient. A New York editor who took Horace reeley as his model, has a little farm out in Westchester county. He has laboured faithfully, and says if his potatoes are not desroyed by the bugs, his corn by the crows, and his wheat by the weevil, and some felow doesn't invent a worm to eat up the rest of his crops, he will clear this summer enough to pay his hired man and have $1 left to buy a circus ticket.

J. Brownell, of Hartwell, Ga., joined afriend at Camak, from whence they went to Augusta to buy goods. After supper his friend was fixing up for a trip, and taking a Bible down from the shelf proceeded to extract $1,500 in bills from between the leaves. "Are you not afraid to keep your money in such an exposed place?" asked "Old B." "Oh, no," was the eply, " it is safer in that Bible than in any oank, for there ain't one man in a thousand n Madison county ever looks into a book of that kind.

There is a beautiful clock with an interestng history in the White House. It is an alabaster clock, surmounted by a statuette of the Muse of History, and it has ticked in the White House time out of mind, for it was a present from Bonaparte to Lafayette, who gave it in turn to Washington, who decreed that it should be handed down to his successors in the Presidential office. And so, while the Presidents come and go, the clock ticks on, and tells its tale of time to all alike mpartially.

A tramp thus unbosomed himself to a reorter, who was wicked enough to jot his confession down: "Last winter I got acquanted with a young widow. That's why I only worked a month. I liked her, and she liked me, and I don't doubt I could have married her; but when I came to look the thing over I saw I should have to knuckle down and work the rest of my life, and that scared me. I was happy as I was. I hesi-tated a week, and then I quit and came

Near the famous Kanawha Falls, West Va., an immense cliff overhangs the river. For some years past this cliff has had a tenant, who dug a hole under its huge wings and lives there all alone. He is a very old darky, and he has the den divided off into apartments, one for sleeping, another for dining-room, and one for kitchen. He does his own room, and one for kitchen. He does his own cooking, and lives by fishinfi and hunting small game. He seems perfectly satisfied, and can almost always be found under the rocks of this cave.

Lawlessness has long existed in corners of Garland, Yell, and Montgomery counties, Arkansas, where outlaws have organized a reign of terror. In April Wm. Potter was assassinated, and the criminal openly defied ar-selves greatly, and "it is very rare indeed, in any city or in any country, that so much beauty, gracefulness, ease of manner with refinement and courtesy, are to be seen." Rev. Daniel C. Potter, a Baptist minister of New York, has got himself into hot water by his criticisms of the Young Men's Christian Association. He said that "the grandest humbug in New York is the association's palace at the corner of Twenty-third street and Fourth avenue," and explained that the association had become so respectable that it association and become so respectable that it failed to reach young men in the humbler walks of life; that in fact it had become a religious club, where social standing and dress were as requisite as religious convictions on the part of the members. It is, of course, to be greatly regretted if the association cannot reach all classes; but if it provides for the respectable young men of the city a counterttraction to billiard halls, gambling dens, and saloons, it is still doing a grand work. Politeness is the oil that gives smoothness to the wheels of society, therefore the cultivation of politeness is most degirable. It would be useless to issue books of etiquette to the masses unless there were some means of enforcing attention to the admirable rules they invariably contain. An illustration comes from Tennessee, a State which does nothing by halves, except paying its debts. A telegram announces briefly that in Nashville a certain man shot a fellow-citizen for a supposed lack of politeness. The vagueness of the statement leaves ample room for conjecture. This is wrong. On a vital question of this nature the public ought to have been furnished with the fullest particulars. It is f the first importance to know what breach of etiquette is punished in Tennessee at the It is extraordinary how a familiar danger is tolerated. Scarcely a day passes without loss of life being attributed to the accidental

Catharine Burneson, a Philadelphia woman just concluded, furnishes a fresh illustration. She was seriously fil, and a number of school children gathered under her window, shouting for her, to come out and calling her names. For the purpose of frightening them was, and the common her bed and, epening a window, pointed a pistol at them. In her nervousness and excitement she struck the weapon against the window-sill and it went off, killing one of the children in the crowd. The court sentenced her to eighteen months imprisonment—a sentence not too severe if it imprisonment—a sentence not too severe if it will only serve to teach others that they must take the consequences of even the careless handling of a dangerous and unnecessary weapon.

The giant sword reported to have fallen from the heavens into a pond in Ulster county, N. Y., has been received in New York by Mr. Bell, who said to a reporter :- "There are Bell, who said to a reporter:—"There are people in Ulster county who believe that this sword dropped from the sky in a flaming ball of fire, but I do not credit any such theory. Other persons think that the weapon must have belonged to a prehistoric race of men. Still others are sceptical enough to affirm that the sword was made by a modern blacksmith for the numerous heads are the results. for the purpose of hoaxing the public. As fa as I am concerned I have no theory to ad as I am concerned I have no theory to advance. The sword was found on my brother's farm, as described. It was covered with a thick coating of rust, but has been scoured bright. Judging from the length and weight of the sword, a man who could use it successfully in battle would have to be eight or ten feet in height and strong in propertion. It is provided with a heavy hilt and guard, and was evidently intended to be wielded with both hands."

A Bogus Faith Cure, ERIE, Pa., July 3.—A year ago all Erie was ringing with the story of a marvellous case of prayer-cure, in which it was alleged that Miss Zoe Van Dyke, of Edinboro', this county, had had an humense tumour prayed away from her. Miss Van Dyke went to Chicago, and last week returned. Yesterday five celebrated surgeons assembled at her bedside, and cut away from her a huge mass of seventy-one and a half pounds. Her life of seventy-one and a half pounds. Her life is by no means assured.

Alabama Notabilities Settling Their Dif-ferences With the Pistol. COLLINSVILLE, Ala., June 28.—A. B. Hall and son, and Bob and John Mullens, al. wealthy and prominent citizens, owned ad yearing and prominent clausers, which the Mullens claimed was improperly located and threatened to remove it. Hall located, and threatened to remove it. said he would kill any man who touched it. Bob Mullens undertook to remove it yester-day, and was shot dead by Hall. John Mullens was also shot, and fatally wounded. He, however, had strength enough to pull a pistol and kill Hall. Hall's father then ap-proached, and was immediately killed by Mullens, who fell, and is dving.

A Woman, a Purse, and a Baby. Last Wednesday a lady came up from San Francisco having with her a small but ag-gressive baby. She also had with her a purse containing a considerable sum of money. The kid made a determined effort to gain posses-sion of this plaything, and finally to quiet if and relieve the passengers on the train, the youngster's wish was gratified. Thereupon, with exquisite good taste so often noticed in babies, the little miscreant threw it out of the car window. The anxious mother managed to have the car stopped, and got off to look for her property, leaving the child behind. While she was walking back in the direction of the place where the purse fell she was hor rified to see the train move away offspring in it, and disappear in the distance. She made a hasty search for the purse, but did not find it, for the very good reason that a gentleman who had been walking along the track had picked it up. She then proceeded to San Rafael, where she made things lively on account of her double loss. The affair, how-ever, terminated happily. The kid had a pleasant ride as far as the junction, from which it was sent back to the arms of its frantic parent. The purse was picked up by a Lake county, and consequently honest, man, who brought it to San Rafael and found
