"Cabiria" at The Happy Hour

The management of the "Happy Hour" announces the booking of the wonderful spectacle Cabiria in his theatre on Tuesday, Feb. 29th. This announcement will undoubtedly be received with much delight by the picture "fans" as well as those who rarely frequent a theatre. This wonderful picture is generously conceded by all producers of photoplays, by authors, critics, writers of fiction, and reviewers of the screen releases as being not only the most marvelous production of the age but as yet none have been able to compare with it in photography, thrills, marvelous scenes and gripping story.

Cabiria is in 12 reels and contains 1000 scenes, taken in seven different countries. The scenario is from the pen of the famous Italian author and poet D'Annunzio, the man who had more to do with swinging Italy to the Allies than any other known factor. Had the picture been made for Italy alone, it would have been out of the question as the royalties alone of so famous an author would have made the production prohibitive. But already it has been played in every big city in the old world and throughout the entire United States and a great portion of Canada.

Cabiria was first presented in Rome, then in London where it is still running, was first brought to America and seen at a private performance in the White House by President Wilson and cabinet. The only picture ever thus honored in the United States. The second performance was given at the hotel Astor before a gathering of the most noted writers in New York, famous statesmen and other notables.

It then had a run of 9 months at the Knickerbocker theatre and was the first picture for which an admission price of $2.00 was charged.

Subsequent runs were made in every big city and in the first class theatres only. Recently a special arrangement was made to bring the picture into Canada and present it at war prices. The picture has concluded a five weeks run in Toronto, has been booked for the same time in Montreal and will be seen in a few towns in Quebec and a number in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

Some of the most extraordinary scenes include the actual eruption of Mt. Etna, when thousands of people, elephants, horses and camels can be seen fleeing down the mountain sides. The burning of the magnificent dwelling, the falling of massive stone walls and pillars; the crossing of Hannibal with ten thousand soldiers actually taken on the top of the Alps; the great battle between the Romans and the Carthaginians, when thousands of men are seen hurled from great walls into space below; the burning of the Roman fleet; Cabiria's many daring escapes from the time of her first, when the slave Maclete saves her from the paws of the God of Moloch (god of fire) and almost loses his own life in consequence, until she is about to be slain after reaching the age of 18 only to be saved by her Roman lover.

The Toronto Mail and Empire in reviewing the picture says: "Cabiria contains the most wonderful scenes ever projected upon a screen."

Popular prices will prevail during the engagement. Matinee and night. Matinee 2 o'clock, night 7:15 sharp.

Pledges Support to Dominion Alliance

which has a very broad foundation. Rev. Mr. Richardson was afraid that if we formed an Alliance, some of the members of the T. I. L. and in other ways for Temperance might object to signing the Platform of the Alliance. But personally he favored joining the Alliance.

Mr. McCurdy said he seconded Ald. Hayward's motion with a view of bringing it up for discussion. The members of the T. I. L. and others favoring Prohibition desire unanimity of opinion as far as possible. He was personally not in favor of supporting any movement that would weaken our present efforts in the T. I. L. The point brought out by Mr. MacArthur was a strong one, that many would not be willing to pledge support to a special Temperance candidate. Therefore, it was a little awkward to subscribe to the Alliance platform in toto. The League had been very successful so far in all their undertakings. We have all the machinery in it necessary to work for the good of the town. It was very necessary not to be too much restricted, but to be able to put forth all our efforts. The Secretary of the T. I. L., which is a Temperance organization, could affiliate the League with the Dominion Alliance.

Rev. Dr. Harrison said there was no hurry. The Legislature would not meet till March 9th. Just now it seemed inadvisable to form a new organization. He was quite content for this League to enter into cordial relations with any other body along its present lines. If the League should fail to live up to its principles and should refuse to take an active part for Prohibition, then form an Alliance. This was the great opportunity for Temperance. He was just a little doubtful of some of the Alliance Platform. Some good things have been done by the League, and we have not got to the end of the League's capacity for good yet.

Ald. Hayward urged joining the Alliance. Politics seemed to be the stumbling block in the Alliance platform, but cannot we get together and lay down our other differences and fight for Prohibition as every body is united over the war? We should sink all minor political considerations and combine for prohibition.

Ald. Stables said that when the League had decided to write to Mr. Fraser, President of the Alliance it was to get him to organize the Alliance here. He understood that the object of the Alliance was to show the political parties where we stand. He favored Ald. Hayward's motion.

Mr. McCurdy said that Ald. Hayward had brought out strong arguments. He thought a great many here would be willing to lay down our politics and support prohibition. What greater assistance in finishing the war than by destroying the liquor traffic? Russia had done it by one swoop, and Britain was moving in that direction. We can save millions of dollars and do away with very much national waste, not only in money but in men, by prohibition. We can afford to sink political considerations until after the war. The League had excellent officers, and no doubt excellent officers could be got for an Alliance. The Alliance throughout Canada had done great good. This is a great question. Better consider it well before deciding to take action.

Mr. J. Ander thought we did not need another organization. Let us affiliate with the Alliance through the T. I. L. and assure the Alliance that we will give them all the assistance possible.

Mr. C. E. Fish said that while he was in hearty accord with the Sons of Temperance, he did not think that at the present time it was advisable to form a separate organization. The T. I. L. is in close touch with all the people. It is strong for prohibition. If we had another organization, who would join? The S. of T. is a very respectable body, but very small. The same thing that keeps people from joining the S. of T. would keep them out of the Alliance.

Ald. Stuart favored organizing a Branch of the Alliance. Section 4 of the Alliance Platform should not prove any obstacle. Any good citizen should leave his political party and seek another just as soon as, in his opinion, his former party strayed from what he considered the right course. Section 4 called for separate political action only when all existing political parties failed to satisfy

JOHN F. HARLEY

The death of John F. Harley, one of the most widely known theatrical men in the U. S. A., for the last 25 years, occurred at his home, 1311 Birch Street, Denver, Colorado, on the 14th instant. He had never recovered from an attack of double pneumonia that came on him in Buffalo last September. He was in a hospital there for months. A few weeks ago Mrs. Harley brought him back to Denver.

He is survived by a widow and two children, also his mother, Mrs. Harley, and sister, Miss Louise Harley who live in Newcastle.

Mr. Harley was born in Newcastle fifty-three years ago. He was educated at the U. N. B., and then entered the newspaper business in New York. There he soon became Sunday editor of the New York Herald and gradually widened his activities until he became dramatic editor also.

Finally he went into the theatrical business, and about twenty-five years ago he began as an advance agent, and by and by settled in Denver with "Dick" Mayes took a theatre and gave Denver its first taste of Orpheum vaudeville. The venture did not pay.

Mr. Harley then became secretary and manager of the Democratic club for two years, then he went back to the theatrical business, winning the foremost place in that profession.

"Big hearted John" was what Mr. Harley's friends always called him.

For the last twelve years Mr. Harley was known from coast to coast in the theatrical business as the highest priced advanced agent in the theatrical business. He worked for the Liebler companies in New York about 3 months in the year, and then came home to Denver and spent the three summer months managing Elitch's gardens.

Mr. Harley's funeral was attended by theatrical men and many others from far and wide.

We extend sympathy to the bereaved mother and sister here as well as to the widow and children in Denver.

The demands of the Prohibitionists. He would support Ald. Hayward's motion.

Rev. Mr. MacArthur moved, in amendment, that we the T. I. L. of Newcastle, express our sympathy with the efforts of the Provincial Temperance Alliance to secure adequate and efficient Temperance Legislation and will do all in our power to help secure the result.

Rev. Mr. MacArthur said we should make greater effort to interest the public in the work of the League. He had overheard two prominent citizens complaining that the business of the town had to stand still for Temperance. That was not so. He was much pleased to read in the St. John Telegraph such a satisfactory report of the Town's business standing.

Rev. P. W. Dixon gave a stirring address. Primarily the T. I. L. stood for effective enforcement of the Scott Act. Re Section 4 of the Alliance platform he would have nothing to do with it. A purely Temperance candidate was seldom satisfactory from a business standpoint. If Temperance people are awake, almost any representative will vote for Prohibition, if asked. He would ask Mr. Fraser to come here just the same and address a meeting, for general Temperance purposes. He was glad (Continued on page 8)
