WEED SEEDS IN MANURE. There is a popular idea that rotting manure in large heaps entirely destroys the vitality of weed seeds they may concontain. This as regards many fully ripened seeds is a mistake. They are very hard, and even when they pass through stomachs of animals are scarcely at all injured for vigorous germination. Many weed seeds are distributed by birds the seeds passing through the gizzard unbroken, and growing wherever the bird casts its droppings. To suppose that such seeds must be destroyed by the heat of a manure heap is plainly an error. In H. C. 1 OOT, M.
