REPORT FOR SEASON, 1909.

Your officers desire to compliment the League on the completion of another year in our history, and to sub-mit the following report for the past Six of the seven clubs of 1908 en-tered for last year's contests, and the made vacant by the retiring of saints was filled by a team of expupils from St. Bonaventure's Col-lege. A well-fought series of games followed, and the termination of the fixtures showed the order to be:

Stars, Collegians, B. I. S., St. Bonaventure's, Feildians, T. A., and C. E. I. The championship for the year, with the accompanying cup and medals, thus went to the big prize-winners of the League, the Stars, who richly deserved the coveted position, their play all through being full of the deter-mination which has always peculiarly characterized that club. The champions of the season pre-vious, the B. I. S., dropped to third nd position honours. We congratulate the latter club on reaching this place, the highest it has yet attained. For a number of years the team has been deservedly noted for giving a good exhibition, but an une of the ill-luck of the game always attended it. We trust last season's success will serve as an inducement for renewed energy to be put in this club during the coming

The Feildians and C. E. I. moved towards the reverse end, and the Total Abstinence representatives transferred the spoons to the last mentioned Club. The new-comers, the St. Bonaven-ture's, made an excellent showing for their first year, and are to be con-gratulated upon the position reached, due mainly to very fine forward com-bination for a new Club. The total receipts from the Championship Competition were $756.85, as compared with $1,020.10 for the year previous. In this connection, how-ever, it is only fair to say that particularly unfavourable weather conditions prevailed on the nights of a number of the most important matches, so that games which otherwise would have yielded big gate-money only produced average receipts.

The Brigade Division contests were as spirited and interesting as ever, went to the Church Lads' Brigade, with the Catholic Cadet Corps, Meth-odist Guards, and Newfoundland Highlanders in the order given. The win of the senior brigade was universally popular, it being the first time that this position was secured by their team, whose play throughout the fix-tures well merited this reward. The receipts from this Division were $567.-

At 10 o'clock last night the S. S Beothic, Capt. Geo. Barbour, and the Erik, Capt. Job Kean, arrived, the former ship towing the latter. As was stated in the telegrams received yesterday the Erik has a broken shaft. The ship met with the mishap on Thursday last, the 21st inst., and Fri-day night the Beothic sighted her, taking her in tow Saturday morning. The weather was fine and calm and the Beothic made an average of 9 games further. We are sorry that we should be obliged to shut off a con-The accident to the Erik occurred tribution to such worthy objects, but with the advent of the Brigade Diviabout 70 miles off Indian Harbour, on the Labrador coast, where the ship sion, and the consequent deferring of the majority of postponed First Divi-sion matches to the end of the fixtures, had gone in search of old fat. It was sang of the individual emotions of the while butting through the floe to get composer and received a most syma pan of seals that the shaft broke was a fortunate thing that the Beohis appeared on the scene for other wise the ship in her disabled condition night have remained there for quite a while, as no other ships were in that section. The Erik has on board round-7,000 seals, young and old, equalling the championship series all further in-terest in the season's football appears weight 9,000

The Beothic was with the other chips of the "Venture" fleet when the big patch of seals was struck on the 18th, and cleaned up 27,000 before the seals were all cut up, after this Capt. Barbour who is considered to be the best hunter of old seals, of all the commanders, determined to fill up if possible with old fat. He had his seals iced down, and started in pursuit of the old hoods. The ship forced her way down below the Round Hill slands on the Labrador coast. They saw plenty of old seals, but the ice was loose and the seals were too "yarry" taking to the water before the ship could get within a "three ball shot" of them. Nevertheless Capt. Barbour did well, and secured 3,000 old ones. On the 21st several gunners were out and did very good work. Other steamers were in the vicinity and it is thought will secure good fares if the weather continues fine. The Beothic has the weight of about 34,000 seals, and Capt. Barbour is to be congratulated on his success this If similar weather which prevailed here yesterday obtained north the other ships should kill a deal of seals. The Beothic did not see the Aurora but reports the Bloodhound for 6,300 old and young; Diana, 3,000 young, 2,000 old; Adventure, 6,000 young, 2,500; Ranger, 5,000 old and young, and the Neptune which

Crotty, Anditors. The St. John's Casual Football Club was admitted to the League. The T. A. team has withdrawn from the League. The question of bringing out a team from England will come up at next meeting. The rule in reference to players appearing in only one division of the League will be strictly enforced. All the clubs were represented at the meeting last night and it looks as if the season will be a prosperous one. SERGT. The Recital Last Night. Notes From ncluding His Excellency the Goverfor and Lady Williams and suite greeted Mr. Mark Hambourg at the College Hall last evening. The comng of this world-famed artist to this asurable anticipation, night's recital more than fulfilled the high expectations of our music-loving people. Mr. Hambourg opened his programme with that familiar Toccata and Fugue in D Minor by Bach, which we usually hear on the organ. The arrangement by Tausig adapts it to the capabilities of the piano, and the interpretation by Mr. Hambourg showed him to be a master of the plano as well as of the fugue. He awoke the sympathies of his audience once, and held them with increas ing tension to the close of the recital. The singing quality of his tone, especially in the softer passages, the elicacy of his touch, and, more than il, the appeal of the soul through the music, held his listeners in thrall Their appreciation, hearty and sincere, was given at the conclusion of number, while the absolute si-during the playing betokened their interest and enjoyment. In the 'ugue it was interesting to note how the different voices, as they entered in subject or answer, were given with clearness and definiteness, the accomanying voices being subservient in one; the episodes were full of life nd vigor. Beethoven's so-called Moonlight Sonata" was the second number. The Adagio, so easy and yet so difficult to play well, was rendered with smoothness and great expres sion; the Scherzo was given with brightness and the Finale with bril-liancy. The second part of the pro-gramme consisted of works by Chopn, which received most sympathetic reatment by Mr. Hambourg. The Nocturne in G Major was most beautifully interpreted, and the same may be said of the Study in E Flat Minor, and the Prelude in A Flat. These three showed the softer side of music and partook of the cantabile style. It was pleasing to note that he audience gave intelligent apppreciation to them as well as to the rilliant Study in G Flat and Prelude in B Flat Minor. The two latter, with the Polonaise in E Flat, were most effectively interpreted, and Mr. Ham-bourg had to reappear again and again to acknowledge the loud and prolonged plaudits of his delighted isteners. The Polonaise, with the last number of Part III. of the programme, appealed most strongly to the audience. Into the former, with its Polish characteristics, the recitalist seemed to enter with all his soul and as his fingers swept the keys with astounding tempo, as he flung the harmonies forth broadcast, as he nassed chord upon chord, and, with utter abandon, worked up the movement to a glorious climax, the enthusiasm of his audience could not be restrained, but burst forth into applause that made the hall ring again. Part three opened with a Study in G Flat, "The Waves," by Moszkowski, a piece whose technical difficulties did not appear because of its wonderful rendering, so smoothly, yet without effort, evidencing the complete mastery of the keyboard. Mr. Hambourg's "Volkslied" or Folksong was a com-position of simple and popular character, taking, in relation to music, the place that a lyric does in poetry. It when they are pathetic rendition and appreciative hearing. The closing number was an extract from the incidental music composed by Mendelssohn for "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and arranged for the piano by that prince well known to you, that he owes you of pianists, the Abbe Franz Liszt. The woodwork of the coffin was very rotten, and after they had dug around it a little, an ornament which had evidently capped a tombstone was unearthed. This represents a hand cut in freestone with the index finger pointing upwards. A part of an old sword was discovered, and Head Dawe who lives near took charge of these relics. Some years ago this section was all taken up by meadow land. There was never known to have been a cemetery there and there is much conjecture as to when the body was placed there and by whom.

Mr. John Coaker, of Mullock St. was waited on last night by a num-ber of influential citizens and was presented with a requisition largely signed asking him to become a can-didate for the coming Municipal Election. Mr. Coaker is one of our leading citizens and by his strict attention to business and courteous manner has won the admiration of his fellow workers, hence their desire in asking him to become their repre-sentative at the City Board.
