Found Drowned At Topsail.

A very sad affair occurred at Top-sail yesterday. Miss Katle Flannery, daughter of the late Matthew Flan-nery, has resided with her uncle, Mr. Richard Flannery, for some time past. Yesterday morning as Miss Flannery and the past of the past of the past. Yesterday morning as Miss Flannery did not put in an appearance at breakfast at the usual time, her uncle went to her room to call her, but receiving no reply when he had knocked at the door, waited for a short while and then went to the room again. Again he received no answer, and being surprised at this, opened the door. He found the room unoccupied but saw that the bed had been sleet in and that Miss Flannery unoccupied but saw that the bed had been slept in and that Miss Flannery had only recently left it. Inquiries for her were made about the place but she could not be found, and then people went in search of her. Her footsteps were traced in the snow to the beach and here her dead body was discovered by Mr. Butler in about three feet of water. She had not long affisen from her bed, as it was warm when Mr. Flannery went to her room. when Mr. Flannery went to her room.
The body when found was sparsely covered with clothing. It is believed that the unfortunate young woman became temporarily insane and ended her life by drowning. She was 25 years old and highly esteemed secution of this season's sealfishery at present is anything but bright. If the callroad is not clear by the middle of this week only comparatively few of the sealers and possibly of the cap-tains will be able to get up from Bonavista Bay. Certainly those from the north side of the Bay will not be able to do so, while with the Bay blocked with ice as it is at present blocked with ice as it is at present only one or two of the more powerful boats can get down. A couple of days strong breeze of off shore wind is wanted to clear the ice away. Teck Knots WORTH 30C.

A BARGAIN FOR MEN

WE purchased recently a job lot of fashionable, serviceable and stylish neck-scaris at a bargain; and intend giving you the benefit of buying them at the above noted reasonable price.

These Teck Knots are made of silk and other suitable fabrics, and come in a variety of rich, neat, pleasing patterns, and are fitted with a patent hook-on wire fastener-designed to clasp the column of a collar-stud, which it successfully accomplishes; and the well-proportioned silk-covered-bar which juts from the sides of the knot slips readily beneath the corners of any of the fashionable makes of double collars; and when in position has all the appearance of a genuine hand-tied-knot.

No tugging, tearing or straining with the Teck Knot, because they can be hooked on in a twinkling of an eye, and when in position will stay there until removed.

Men that dress well will find here designs to suit their particular tastes, and owing to the low price can easily afford to lay in a good stock of these splendid Teck Knots. Call and examine them to-day.
