Scarcity of Sea Birds.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—When my eye first fell on that article in the Advocate "Salt Water Birds on London Coast" I thought somehow it had reference to the destruction of water fowl in English waters. This destruction is not being caused by shooting or disease, but by oil waste from oil burning ships. So great is the havoc that the position is becoming alarming. The United States Government is also taking recognition of this state of affairs and President Harding has taken steps in authorizing negotiations for international action to prevent the pollution of coastal water by oil. Fishermen from Labrador, so the papers inform us, tell of the marked scarcity of sea birds on that coast the past summer, and most of them attribute it to the presence of great numbers of Arctic foxes. This may or may not be the cause for my part I do not believe it any more than I believe the foxes came to Labrador on the ice-floes last spring. The cause must be sought somewhere else, though it is probable enough the foxes took their toll of eggs and young birds. Our ornithological ignorance is great, so great that we know next to nothing of the life history of even the native birds that remain with us throughout the year, and we are taking no pains to gain enlightenment on the subject. Our knowledge is derived from hearsay and the observations of unskilled observers, which are of little account. Until we know the life story of such fowl we are in a poor position to form an intelligent opinion as to their scarcity. It is the wildest hazard to lay the blame to foxes that may or may not be in excessive numbers.

We take no interest till generally it is too late to be of any value. This has been the case in respect to our caribou, and it needs no recititious knowledge to inform us of the approaching extinction of this beautiful creature if we permit our usual indifference to continue. This is one price we must pay for the woodman's invasion of the interior. We shall have to mourn the passing of many an example of wild life, and the boast that Newfoundland is the sportsman's paradise shall have to be relinquished. Before we commit our country entirely to the exploiter we should make a study of our resources so that we may not be sacrificing too much to the desire for industrial expansion. There are more things in the world worth while than wealth wrung from the defacement of nature by slaving wage earners. I believe Newfoundland can be developed while yet we retain what we have of beauty and the charm of wilderness. But we cannot expect anything by way of sensible conservation so long as this rage for exploitation holds possession of us. In this, as in every other case, we will wake up too late, and realize that "all that glitters is not gold."

Yours truly,
ARTHUR ENGLISH.

Relief Work Started.

$10 PER WEEK IN STONE YARD.

Relief work at the Government stone yard has again started, and yesterday, about 100 unemployed were given tickets to start in at the West End yard. Work in the yard near the old railway station will probably begin in a few days. Last year a large quantity of stone was broken and has since been used for metaling new roads on the Parade Ground and for foundations of the C.B. Stand. The men will be given five day's work each week, and will be paid at the rate of $2.00 per day.

Measured Brides.

The "measuring of the bride" follows every marriage ceremony performed in the English town of Royden. The reason is that about 300 years ago the lord of the manor bequeathed the sum of $5,000, the interest from which was to be voted annually to provide dowries for four brides. Under the terms of the bequest, the money has to be divided among the youngest, the eldest, the shortest and the tallest brides married during the course of each year in the parish church. The official records determine who are the youngest and the oldest, but to decide the shortest and tallest, each bride is required to remove her shoes and let down her hair and be measured by the officiating minister.—Los Angeles Times.

Spain and Prohibition

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—Your correspondence "Equity" I fear, treats the "Spain and Prohibition" rather lightly. The matter is a serious one, the treaty which has been signed with Great Britain can be applied to Newfoundland, it will be a clear gain to this country of shillings per quintal. Three shillings—say 70 cents—extra quintal would be appreciated now. It might help to sell our fish. Spain is to good a country to offend: Where Portuguese wine has fallen from $1.95 to 50 cents, the price of 15 cents is worth about 10 cents. We must remember that European people can fight for a sentiment as well as we can. We must also remember that the Spanish vineyard is as plentiful in Spain as the fish is in Newfoundland, in proportion to total population. These people give favours to their friends but not to their opponents, and reckon Prohibitionists as their most bitter enemies who are taking the most bitter out of their mouths. I do not say that the Controller of the situation. He is only one of the who do not want to see the law enforced. Some day I shall tell you what he has been doing to keep in statu quo.

Yours truly,

WARWICK SMITH.

Card Party and Dance

AT THE B.L.S. CLUB ROOMS.

The B.L.S. Club card party and dance held last night proved very successful being attended by a large number of people. The prizes in the card tournament were won by Mrs. Ryan and Mr. W. Harris. The orchestra consisting of Messrs. Ian, Keough, English, Power, and "Darcy" rendered a very programme of dance music. The evening a delicious supper served by the Ladies Auxiliary. For the termination of the dance P. F. Moore announced that on Tuesday evening a card party will be held in the club for tickets in the S. Drawing, which would be given to ladies and gentlemen.

CHRISTINA.—Norway with an unique problem to enforce the prohibition in the country, in spite of the treaties which are signed with Norway. The country is strong with the prohibition under the pressure of France the Government is to be used for medical purposes, and 1000 quarts of wine which is more than 14 per cent. alcohol in this amount of alcohol which are used for medical purposes. For medical purposes, 1000 quarts of these are no provision has been made for the disposal of the remainder. The law provides that the wine be re-exported, and the Government may not be allowed to export it with water.

PORTUGAL'S MINISTERS

present there is a difference between Norway and over Norway's export of alcohol, and as a result the merchants have cancelled the loss of some millions to Norwegian. A new treaty have been some time but Norway way, as Portugal is a way import of alcohol, and wines, port and brandy in return for the high rate. According to the Ministry of law, strong measures only in drug stores in a description. In this way, 150,000 quarts can be a year.
