

Fashionable Weddings.

Marriage of the Son of the Late Governor of Newfoundland.

(Yorkshire Evening Post, July 24.) A wedding of considerable interest to Leeds and the West Riding took place at St. Saviour's, Walton Street, London, on July 24th.

The bride was the Hon. Thelma Elrene Kitson, daughter of Lord and Lady Alredale, of 3, Cadogan Square, and granddaughter of the first Lord Alredale, formerly Sir James Kitson, and the bridegroom, Dr. Noel Gordon Harris, son of Sir Alexander and Lady Harris, of Victoria Street.

The officiating clergy were the Rev. H. E. Trask, vicar of St. Saviour's, and Canon R. J. Jones, of John's, Newfoundland.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a dress of white satin beaute, with the wide panel of silver lace down the centre, and an insertion of silver lace around the boat-shaped neck. Her train was of chiffon and silver lace.

She wore the family veil of old Honiton lace, lent by her aunt, the Hon. Emily Kitson, and this was held in place by a narrow wreath of orange blossom, with tiny bunches over the ears. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

The bridesmaid was the Hon. Angela Kitson (sister), who was dressed in porphyria blue georgette, trimmed with silver, with a blue and silver hat to match with silver shoes and stockings. Her bouquet was of shaded blue sweet peas.

The bride's train was carried by Miss Julie Lydecker and Miss Pamela Wharton, both of whom wore dresses of white crepe de chine, inset with medallions of lace, and wreaths, of tiny pink and blue flowers.

The best man was Mr. Stanley Shute Harris, the bridegroom's brother.

After the wedding a reception was held in the garden at 3, Cadogan Square.

The honeymoon will be spent motor-ing.

The bride's going-away dress was a straight frock of hysynth blue crepe romaine, with narrow frills of white lace at the neck and short sleeves. She wore a black tulle picture hat, the only trimming being a hysynth feather over one shoulder.

Among the relatives of the bride and bridegroom present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. McNaughton, Mr. and the Hon. Mrs. William Shiell, the Rev. J. J. Connor, the Hon. Emily Kitson, the Hon. Mrs. Edward Kitson, the Hon. Mrs. Roland Kitson, and the Hon. Hilda Kitson. The Hon. Mrs. H. L. Connor was prevented from being present owing to her recent severe illness.

Lord Alredale's daughter, whose marriage to Dr. Noel G. Harris, son of Sir Alexander and Lady Harris, took place at St. Saviour's Church, Walton Street, London, this afternoon, for the granddaughter of the first Lord Alredale, well known in Leeds as Sir James Kitson.

"This is the fifth wedding in our family in less than five years," said Lady Alredale, while showing the presents laid out in the drawing-room of her Cadogan Square house, in readiness for to-day, when her daughter, the Hon. Thelma Kitson, is to be married.

The bridegroom, Dr. Harris, has just been appointed to Springfield Hospital, Tooting.

"As he is a hard worker," Lady Alredale went on, "they will only have a week's honeymoon. But, because it is so short, they are sure to enjoy it all the more. They are going motor-ing in Devonshire, in a car they bought with cheques sent to them by Lord Alredale and other friends."

Marriage of the Daughter of the Late Sir Henry McCallum.

(The Times.)

The marriage took place on July 13, at St. Martin-in-the-Fields, of Commander H. S. M. Harrison-Wallace, R.N. (retired), son of the late Captain James Harrison-Wallace, of Newton Hall, Kenworthy, Fife, and Hordley, Jamaica, to Eileen Maud, daughter of Lady McCallum and the late Colonel Sir Henry McCallum.

The Duke of Atholl gave away the bride, who wore a gown of cream chamoise, with a silver train lined with pale blue and draped with Brussels lace (lent by the Duchess of Atholl). The bride also wore a lace veil with a wreath of silver leaves and a diamond pendant, the gift of her mother, and she carried a bouquet of Harriett lilies, Master Geoffrey Lattrell, in a man-of-war suit, was train-bearer, and there were six bridesmaids—Miss Iris McCallum, sister of the bride, the Countess of Seaford, Miss Eileen Nicholson, Miss Eileen Brenton, Miss Morley Fletcher, and Miss Stewart of Ardvorlich. They were dressed alike in blue georgette, the drapery caught with a large buckle studded with blue stones, and silver and blue veils with silver bells, without hais. They carried about bouquets of delphiniums, and the bridegroom's present to each was a blue moire wristband with the Royal Navy-crown in pearls. Captain Carpenter, V.C., R.N., was best man, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. R. L. Sheppard, rector of the parish, assisted by the Rev. A. Robinson, late chaplain H.M.S. Caledon. There was a reception afterwards at 84, Eaton-place, lent by the Duke of Atholl.

They gamble with hearts as well as gold at Monte Carlo.

The famous devil's playground, however, deals benignantly with Dorothy Dalton in her latest picture from the Paramount studios, "A Romantic Adventure," showing at the Star Theatre. Altogether, it is the brightest, most entertaining screen play Miss Dalton has offered us in many moons. Unlike her recent vehicles, it doesn't tax her emotional talents, but rather harks back to the pretty star's earlier mood—that of "Bretagne" and "Flare-up Sal." Monte Carlo vies with gay New Orleans, a college town and Broadway's white lights in providing the setting.

The story, adapted from Charles Belmont Davis' novel, "A Winter City Favorite," unfolds the romance of a dancing girl whose beauty and grace are exploited by a wayward mother in the money markets of New York. When the dancer has achieved fame on Broadway, she is taken to Europe to marry a title, but Mr. Right steps in and true love scores one more victory. The gentleman in the case is Charles Meridith, a handsome, stalwart enough young man for any maiden. Harley Knoles directed the picture.

Rev. Dr. Bond Preaches at Gower St. Church.

(I.C.M.)

Though Dr. Bond has travelled far and wide, and has ministered to the spiritual wants of many people, he has not lost his love for Newfoundland, nor relaxed his interest in its welfare. And so it is in his discourse at Gower Street Church yesterday morning; because in all that he said, the uppermost thought seemed to be, not only the world and empire, but our country.

That there is room in Newfoundland for a higher standard of public life, few will contradict; and that conditions ought to be better, all will agree. There is need of an advancement in our public thought, and in the administration of our Government. Hence it is wholesome and desirable to hear such Christian ideals and to see such a high standard raised as it was manifested in the Rev. Dr. Bond's sermon yesterday morning.

It is not meant in this report to give the sermon. The Rev. Dr. has that option with himself, as he has the manuscript; but we wish to pass on the profound thought, and the great principles of the discourse; so that in addition to the comparatively few who heard them, there will be the many thousands who may read them. For well would it be, not only for Newfoundland, but for greater places, in and true love scores one more victory. The gentleman in the case is Charles Meridith, a handsome, stalwart enough young man for any maiden. Harley Knoles directed the picture.

The subject of the sermon was that of mutual co-operation for the greatest good. Not co-operation in the sense of selfishness, nor personal gain. Not co-operation in the sense of extreme unionism; which of late seems to have broken faith; but co-operation on behalf of the betterment of the world at large, and for the mutual good of all men, and for the development of brotherhood and fair play.

If the world is to get better, and further war is to be averted, then there must be adopted, both in the industrial and political world, a better spirit than has been manifested since the war ceased. Had the principles of Christianity been admitted and given a chance, the conditions of society would not be so strained as they are to-day; and the counsels of the League of Nations would not have so utterly failed as they have.

Some people have rashly stated that Christianity has failed; but not so: Christianity only awaits the opportunity to be applied to modern life. This opportunity has never been granted in a full measure. It is because of the lack of practical Christianity; and the omission of its precepts that conditions are, as we have them to-day.

Since the war many people have developed the spirit of selfishness; and so great has this desire become, that the danger arising therefrom, it to be dreaded, more than the very war itself. Men speak of the world, while at the same time their idea and vision of the world, is very limited. To such, their own personal interest comprises the world, because they have failed to develop that broader life, and wider vision, which is meant for the children of men. The sermon abounded with great thoughts, and was full of the spirit which has yet to prevail when.

"Men shall brothers be; And form one family, The wide world o'er."

Perhaps the highest point of Christian patriotism was reached when the reverend preacher made touching reference to the passing of President Harding. Only a few days ago the President had spoken at Vancouver, and in a short address touched the hearts of the Canadian people; and now his work is finished, and he has ceased to rule.

The President's greatest work was the Washington Conference, at which the disarmament of the nations was decided upon; and to which the leading nations of the day had mutually agreed. A nation's leader had fallen, but the measures of peace which he instituted, abide and it is hoped that they will continue.

There were many other excellent points in the sermon which are worthy of publication, but these few will suffice to impart to our readers, some faint idea of a very masterly, and timely discourse.

The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland arrived at Burgeo on Thursday, 3rd inst., on the Ramona missle boat St. John's. Confirmation service was held in St. John's Evangelical Church on the evening of the 3rd, when one hundred and eight candidates received the Sacred Right. The Bishop was assisted by his Chaplain and the Rev. V. W. Cunningham, Rector of the Parish. The Church was filled and people and candidates listened to an able address by His Lordship. This morning the Bishop and Chaplain left by motor boat for LaPointe.
