Epidemic Cholera.

BERLIN, June 3.—Cholera is epidemic in Schilla, East Prussia. Two persons have died since Wednesday.

Three Children Killed at a Fair.
BERLIN, June 3.—A stampede of horses caused a general panic at the Neunkirchen fair on Friday. Three horses ran into a merry-go-round, killing three children and wounding two others.

Last week a mad dog bit six persons in Taner. Two of the six have died of hydrophobia, and the others are under treatment.

Discount Rates.

LONDON, June 3.—Rates of discount last week were 3 for three months and 4 for 30 days. Silver was dull, owing to the slackening of the demand from China, but closed firmer. On the Stock Exchange a brisk investment business was done, whereas speculation was stagnant. Consols rose 1/2. American railroad securities were dull and inactive in the early part of the week, but closed firm.

Against the Lords.

GLASGOW, June 3.—An immense demonstration against the House of Lords was held in this city yesterday. A great procession of trades unions, Liberal associations, Irish bodies and the like marched through the principal streets, and was watched by cheering thousands. A mass meeting was held in Glasgow Green, in which speeches were delivered from six different platforms. A resolution calling upon the Government to abolish the House of Lords was carried amid great enthusiasm.

The Anglo-Belgian Deal.

BERLIN, June 3.—The Imperial Government's attitude to the last Anglo-Belgian agreement concerning possessions in Africa, has not yet been decided. By several newspapers it has been asserted with a pretence of authority that Germany has sent a protest to Brussels. The only basis for this assertion, however, is that the text of the agreement presented some doubtful points affecting German interests, and that a request for the German Government to official circles everybody decides the idea that Germany will support France's claim to territories on the Upper Nile, or join in a diplomatic campaign against England.

20,000 People at a Funeral.

LONDON, June 3.—Over 20,000 people turned out in Madrid for the funeral of Espinosa, the torero, who was killed last Sunday in a bull fight there. The train which bore his remains to his native place, Seville, was received there by a throng estimated at 50,000. Hardly any other Spaniard of this generation has been thus honored in death. Still though this national hero was gored and killed by the first bull on the programme and carried off to the chapel adjoining the inclosure, the 8,000 people present insisted on having the remaining five bulls of the corrida duly killed in their turn before they would leave the inclosure.

No Change for Canadian Cattle.

LONDON, June 3.—The officials of the Board of Agriculture have reported that the findings of the suspected animals examined by the Canadian Line steamer Toronto are not contagious pleuro-pneumonia, as was at first supposed, but are due to a disease known as anthrax. The Canadian Line steamer Toronto is to be allowed to proceed to its destination, and the Canadian cattle are to be allowed to land. The officials of the Board of Agriculture are to be able to see his embargo on the steamer and the Canadian cattle are to be allowed to land. The officials of the Board of Agriculture are to be able to see his embargo on the steamer and the Canadian cattle are to be allowed to land.

diated subject of difference as to the agreement between Great Britain and Belgium, Lord Rosebery's declaration last evening flatly denying the right of France to interfere with it by no means meets the difficulty. The French expedition which is now marching from the French Congo territory towards Bah rel Chazel, will not be deterred, under instructions from Minister Hanotaux, from occupying territory which England holds only upon paper rights. The Earl of Kimberley, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, received a communication from M. Decrais, French ambassador to England, explicitly declaring that France holds the Anglo-Belgian agreement as invalid, and it is absurd to assume in the face of this notification that the commander of the French expedition has not received instructions to occupy the disputed territory. It is the opinion of officials of the Foreign Office that everything points to the ultimate reference of the matter to an international conference or a board of arbitration, but it is a question whether the bellicose Dupuy will assent to either.

The World's Y. M. C. A.

LONDON, June 3.—The second day's conference of the Young Men's Christian Association of all lands opened at Exeter Hall at 9:30 a.m. yesterday. The central international committee nominated the following officers, who were unanimously elected: President, Sir George Williams (founder of the Y. M. C. A.); vice-presidents, Count Bernstoff, Alfred Andre, Prince Oscar of Sweden and Norway and H. Thane Miller. Among the honorary vice-presidents chosen are: Carlillus Vanderbilt, of New York; John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, and Morris K. Jessup, of New York. I. E. Brown, of Chicago, was made the American secretary. The president made a brief address immediately after the chair and then appointed the committees. Among the members on the report of the central international committee are Robert K. McBurney, of New York, and D. A. Budge, of Montreal. At 11 o'clock the first topic of the conference, "The necessity for the presence and power of the Holy Spirit in associations and their work," was opened in English by Rev. Profrondy H. B. Webb, of London; in French by Pastor George Appia, of Paris, and in German by Pastor Krummacker, of Elberfeld. One hour was given to these addresses.

The central international committee presented its triennial report, giving in detail the work of the committee since the Amsterdam convention three years ago. The report shows that there are over 5,000 associations with nearly 600,000 members. Edward Barde, of Geneva, Switzerland, presented the report of the treasurer of the central committee for the years 1891, 1892 and 1893. It showed that $4,500 had been expended during the last year, the larger part of which came from American and English friends of the committee.

Reports were made by delegates from different countries giving the important features of association work in each. The report for America said there were now in America 1,400 associations, employing 1,200 secretaries, owning 800 buildings and property to the value of $18,000,000. The report referred to the influence of the 450 college associations and to the heavy support which the 100 railroad associations are receiving from railroad officials and to the prominence given to athletics and to the educational department.

The Rev. H. Bach spoke for France. After telling of the growth of the work in France, he referred to the helpful influence of the American friends in the work of the Paris association, and to the elegant building there, largely the gift of American friends. He mentioned James Stokes, of New York, with especially warm words.

Christian King spoke for Germany. At 7 o'clock the evening session opened in Exeter Hall. The subject was, "Association work for young men in foreign missionary lands." David McConneighy, formerly secretary of the Philadelphia Association, and now secretary of the Madras, India, Association, and also secretary of the Indian National Council, spoke of the claims of the millions of young men of India and the growth in association work in that country. He gave an encouraging report of the local work in that country (Madras) where he had been secretary for three years, and in Calcutta, where J. Campbell White, representative of the American committee, is secretary. He referred to the last national convention in India, and the stimulus it had given the work all over the country. There are now 74 associations in India. He said the American committee proposed sending a new secretary to India, but more are needed, and urged the association to sustain this work, which is so important.

The chairman introduced L. D. Wishard, secretary of the American international committee, who spoke of his tour around the world in the interest of the association. He had visited China, Japan, Malaysia, Siam, Burma, Ceylon, India, Arabia, Caucasus, Persia, Kurdistan, Asia Minor and Cyprus. He said the student class in the East is, and will be, as it everywhere is, the controlling influence in political and religious work. In China and Japan Government officials are held almost exclusively by college graduates, and if this class of the young men is reached with religious influence we will reach these nations. Christian associations are at work in Japan, China, Ceylon and India. He referred to the fact that student life in the east was very dissimilar from student life in the west, and that students everywhere were ready to

The introduction of the educational system of the association had favorably impressed the students of the Occident and the Orient, and the religion as represented was assured of favorable hearing. During the past 50 years more than 2,000 educated young men, representing nearly 50 colleges, had attended fourteen Christian conferences in Asia. The Fraser River Still on the Rampage.

Steamers Take the Place of Trains—Five Dead Bodies Found Lashed to a Raft—The Colorado Flood Subsiding.

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 3.—The river still continues to rise. There is no indication that an abatement of the floods can be immediately looked for. Lamley, Chillico, Harrison, Centerville and Fairing are completely flooded, the water being everywhere in sight. The only safe means of getting about is in boats. The Canadian Pacific tracks are either washed away or unsafe for 50 miles between Mission and Rudly Creek. Passengers and mail are being transferred back and forth in the morning. This morning the steamer brought passengers from the east was passing through the dead bodies of a father, mother and three children were found lashed to a raft floating in the water. This makes seven lives so far as known that have been lost since the flood began.

DENVER, Col., June 3.—The flood along the Platte River is slowly subsiding. The loss at Boulder is estimated at $350,000. In Gilpin county the damages to the mines by flood is estimated at $500,000.

JOHN AND HIS ANNIE.

Genallen's Villagers Revel in the Gossip of a Well-Planned Elopement.

DRAYTON, Ont., June 3.—The quiet village of Genallen was thrown into a state of excitement yesterday afternoon, when it was found that Miss Annie, daughter of John Hought, had eloped with one John Hilbourne, of Bloomington. Hilbourne was working in Genallen and had been paying attention to Miss Hought for some time. The father had forbidden Hilbourne the house, but they continued to meet in secret.

The father being here Saturday on business an elopement was planned. Two rigs were in waiting at the outskirts of the village. Miss Hought walked out and met them, and a party drove rapidly to Berlin. The father when informed of the circumstances started immediately for Berlin to prevent the marriage if possible.

HIS PARTING MESSAGE.

James Ballantyne, South London, Bids His Congregation Farewell.

Affecting Service—Many in Tears—Tender Words by the Pastor.

James Ballantyne, the revered pastor of Knox Church, South London, who had spent some time in association work in Egypt and Palestine, and last night preached his farewell sermon to a congregation which filled the hall. It was a very affecting service, and many were in tears at times, and during the evening in 1,400 churches in London and its suburbs, and well as all over Great Britain.

In his sermon the reverend gentleman alluded to his nine years' service in Knox church and the pain of breaking the ties. He said: "In taking this final leave of you as a people, I cannot but myself to be silent about the time that I came here to assume my pastoral charge and to be your first pastor. It was with much shrinking on my part, and it would not surprise me if there was a considerable doubt on yours. I was without experience, and had a great deal to learn, as I still have, but I believed, and as I still have, and we give thanks for it. Let me acknowledge his good hand, for I am conscious that my part in this work has been done weakly, inefficiently, and too often in a merely professional and business-like way. I have been a steward of the mysteries of God. We have had the privilege of seeing a gradual and steady increase in all that contributes to the strength and power of a congregation. The membership has increased nearly sixfold. The revenues of the church for confessional purposes is very much larger than it ever was; and the amount contributed last year for missionary purposes was just ten times as great as during the first year of my pastorate. One can set these things down in figures, but one cannot estimate the devotion, the energy and the wisdom that have characterized the labors of all who have co-operated with me in the work of the Lord. The other day, when your representatives appeared before the Presbytery of London, they were kind enough to speak approvingly of the work that I had done in this congregation. It is very pleasant to hear these words of appreciation, but I must insist that if any excess has marked my labors here, next to the blessing of God, you should be commended for it. If the words spoken before the Presbytery were at all true, you have aided me to make them true. And I am sure of this, that if you give to my successor the same support and loyalty that you have given to me, if you prove to be, in the summer and impulse that I have experienced from you, then he will be a better man, daily a workman unimpaired of God."

"I were to-night to try to sum up all the encouragements of my ministerial life—it has all been passed here—they would be as nothing in the balance against the cheer and comfort that I have experienced from the consciousness of the presence of God, and from the loyal support you, my people. I do not think that anyone has ever less cause to depreciate his work than I have had. The bonds that unite together have become very strong during these years. Many a home has been darkened by the clouds of sorrow, sickness and bereavement, and it has been my blessed privilege to go to those who were feeling the void and heat of the day with the cool and strengthening consolation that the Lord Jesus has provided; to stand by the bedside of the dying and lead them to the kingdom of their confidence in Jesus. I hasten to go, but I feel that I have been nearer to you. Then in your hearts of rejoicing I have had a share. I shall never forget this people, and whatever the future has in store for me, whether failure or success, these years cannot be blotted out, and shall never cease to thank God that he has led me to this place to commence my service of him in the ministry of his Son. Yet trust and I believe that the future has greater things for you than the past has brought to you. The truth will be pressed in new ways, fresh light will be thrown upon the revelation of the word. Another voice will speak from this pulpit, and doubt not some will be influenced to embrace Christ to whom I have appealed in vain, and Christian people will be led into richer and greener pastures. Let me leave from now that you are about to make choice of another to lead you, be of one part and of one mind, let nothing be done through strife or vainglory. Let your prayer be for the guidance of the Holy Spirit. He has never failed those who have earnestly sought him in the past and he will not forsake you now."

One quacks "Cash! Cash!" as if there was only one in the community had cash. Another screams "Look at me, ME!" Great! And another "This way, I am Mr. Mighty WE!"

Fact is, if Solomon were to come along today there are some houses he would never stop at from sheer disgust, because of the people that claim to be wiser than he ever was.

Watch the barnyard roosters. See how they crow with their eyes shut, evidently knowing it all by heart. Are they not like many of the modern advertisers?

Hot cakes and bad costumes ought to be broken. Just as a scalded cat comes to fear even cold water, buyers who find themselves hoodwinked by plausible advertising set all advertising down as good for nothing, and careful, straightforward advertisers suffer with all the rest.

It is a selfish interest, therefore, that we have in continually advocating a high standard in advertising. We strive to maintain it ourselves in order to make advertising valuable. When storekeeping is scientifically done there's
