While she was still in prison her Juan Sola, and state room No. 3, on the Seneca, was held in the same name. This was three days before the boat sailed. On Saturday, when the Seneca was to leave Havana detectives watched the gangways with extra caution. All day long they remained at their post, examining the passports, which all passengers have to show before leaving Havana. Their vigilance, it is alleged, would probably have prevent-London, Oct. 14.-The Daily News | ed the departure of Miss Cisneros from

It was only a few minutes before the Seneca was ready to pull out from her dock, when a slim young fellow came running across the wharf. He had no baggage and was fashionably dressed. He walked quickly up the gang plank. The detectives stopped him. "My name is Juan Sola," he said, and he showed his passport. Everything was satisfactory, so the senor was allowed to go aboard, Miss Cisneros' friends, when they saw that everything was satisfactory, disembarked and watched the
