Reports Declare British Taking Action in Syrian War—Rebellion Against French Is Spreading, With Soldiers Unable To Cope With Rebellious Native Bands.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Nov. 17.—British troops, according to a Jerusalem despatch to the Daily Express, have been ordered to check the invasion of the rebellious Druse tribesmen on the eastern side of the River Jordan. Troops have been rushed to Metallah, a Jewish colony on the Palestine frontier, and the whole area is declared to be a military zone, virtually under martial law.

British aeroplanes, the despatch says, are reconnoitering on the French side of the boundary, where the French have virtually abandoned their posts.

MAJOR PRINCE BAN ON THE CO-EDS

Criticism of Ruling Against Outsiders at University Is Rapped.

UREN IS MISQUOTED

Roused up to a pitch of resentment seldom found in the student body, members of the students' legislative assembly as well as the majority of the students voice their open indignation that several persons should direct so much unfair criticism at that body concerning their recent ruling that undergraduates must take only co-eds to the freshmen's reception and Christmas Lit dances.

The protesting persons are probably those who are in the habit of soliciting the date partners from non-co-eds and who overlook the fact that their attack on the new form of student government is their first important legislative measure might prove a severe blow to that body, said an executive this morning.

Matters are much complicated by the fact that H. C. Uren, a member of the assembly, has been reported to be one of the persons who are censuring the assembly. Such an attitude would lead to his suspension from the student governing body, but he promptly spiked the rumor this morning in a signed letter to the project of Cecil R. Snyder.

Wrongly Quoted.
"The statement, Mr. Uren explained, 'with which I was credited on Monday implied very directly that I was opposed to the legislative body. This statement is erroneous and was made by me while in a jocular mood when I stated that a collegian who was engaged to a girl would be out of luck in this case.'

Attendance Limited.
"On Oct. 26," he stated, "the students gave a reception in honor of the increased number in the freshman year. The attendance had to be made to the students of the university college of arts. Nevertheless certain persons, without any connection with the university, attended, and a severe measure was taken to prevent their return."

As a result of this, the assembly was called, at which it was unanimously decided that the attendance of outsiders at the Christmas Lit dances should be prohibited, and that uninvited guests be sent letters of censure. The situation is such that inviting to the hall the principal and professors of the college of arts would overcrowd the auditorium, and it is natural that the student body should resent the presence of outsiders.

As to the author of the widely exaggerated story given prominence on Monday, concluded Mr. Snyder, "it is a mistake to say that it was written by an ex-student who falls under the ban."

Dr. Neville, interviewed today, said that the student body should be free to go to parties to which they are not invited, and where they are not wanted. Such exclusions would not be tolerated at a party given by hostesses in their private homes, and the presence there would be ostracized. The same idea of propriety should prevail where some university group acts as hostesses.

One of the things colleges all try to do is to create a "college spirit," and it may not be democratic to build up a spirit around the student body but it seems to be useful for students to be considered a thing apart. They cannot be a full part of the community if they are not associated with even the social four hundred of the outside world. There is no effort to set up a standard by this process of exclusion; the object is to build a sentiment of unity among the undergraduates. This is a distinctly desirable thing in the administration of the University College of Arts is heartily in favor of the students' assembly taking such steps within reason as will purge its functions of the undesirable.

MAN ARRESTED FOR ROBBERIES HAD DUGOUT UNDER HIS HOUSE

Detectives Discover Cider, Tools and Other Loot in Lair Constructed by Alex. Cameron at His Home.

Fearful lest the police should come in the night and arrest him, Alexander Cameron of Byron, who was last week convicted on three serious charges, had for some time past lived in an underground house. This was established yesterday when Detectives Down and Bolton found the dugout under the home of his mother in Byron village.

A keg of cider, saws and chisels, and a pair of burglar's slippers were also unearthed. Evidence that Cameron was preparing to escape from the vicinity was seen in the fact that he had filled in the major portion of his home, and had left only sleeping quarters.

In a wooded shed the house a pair of field glasses and some tools stashed away in the equipment shed of the Bell Telephone and the hydro systems in Byron village were located. Inquiries at the house disclosed that Cameron had not slept there for some weeks, but it was known that he was staying in the vicinity.

Children in the neighborhood, when questioned, said they had seen Cameron crawl under the veranda, and police decided to do likewise. Such an entrance about two feet square and six feet long. It was in this he had planned to sleep in case of necessity, and the abundance of straw and a couple of old rugs were spread around.

By digging further in the detected found the topographical position of the house, but which he had partially filled in. Here they unearthed the keg of cider, stolen from a local farmer, and the tools and the burglar's slippers.

The latter were made of canvas of substantial enough construction to permit the wearer to thrust him- self of shoes altogether, if circumstances made it expedient. They could also be adjusted over the head, and the land over which these were used when Cameron stole the foxes in the Springfield zoo.

Presbytery Hits AT COLLEGE MEN
Past fifteen years pastor of St. George's Presbyterian church, Port Kaituma, to Kintyre Presbyterian church, and set Tuesday, Dec. 8, as the date of induction. Rev. Thomas McConnell, B.A., Dutton, intermoderator, and A. Sinclair, moderator of the call, while A. Sinclair, Adams, all of St. George's congregation, and the other presbyteries wish to oppose Mr. Hosie's transference to Kintyre, much as they had appreciated his services in past years.

Mr. Hosie is to receive a salary of $1,500, manse and one month's holiday, with a request to be made to the home mission board for $300 to augment the salary up to the minimum. Mr. MacKay will preside at the induction. Rev. G. Lloyd, moderator of the call, and Rev. John Galloway, Glencoe, will address the people.

Have Been Dictators.
"Perhaps that is the very reason that the general assembly has sent this recommendation down to us," said the moderator, "because in the past our professors have dictated so much to the church that she has not been able to say that her soul is her own. Now of the college professors in the old land are members of the church courts, except as representative elders."

MEDICAL HEALTH FORMS RECEIVED

Dr. Downham Now Preparing Report For Year Ending October 31.

Dr. Downham, medical officer of health for London, has just received from the provincial board of health the forms on which he is asked to submit his annual report for the year which closed Oct. 31. For the next few days the doctor will be busy on little else, but as the new form calls for a quantity and variety of information never before asked for, and as the necessary facts must be collected from varied sources and carefully checked as to their accuracy, the task is not easily a light one.

The new forms call first of all for the vital statistics for the city over the period of the year. Provincial birth and death rates for 1924 are given for purposes of comparison. The medical health officer is next asked to report the activities of his community in regard to communicable diseases, water supply, milk supply, sanitary inspection of schools, nuisances, etc.

Particulars of expenditures for public health purposes is next called for, and a report is asked on the progress of health instruction for mothers, infant and pre-school age health supervision and health supervision of the school-age child. Results of the clinic service for adults are also asked for, together with recommendations of a general character the health officer may feel like making.

Dr. Downham states that all the activities on which a report is asked have been under way in London for some time, and it will be merely a task of collecting and compiling the desired information. The report, when finished, will be a valuable summary of the work of his department for a year.

LORRIES TAKE OFFICERS TO SCENE OF BATTLE

Out-of-Town Students of Tactics Take Field in Mimic War.
Army trucks carried officers of Western Ontario regiments to the scene of battle at Cobble Hill early this morning.

There were some 35 men who went out to the imaginary battlefield to study detail, determine the tactical position of the troops, and the position of the enemy's line, to overcome obstacles in the form of streams, exposed portions of the land over which troops were to advance, and the imagined enemy's positions.

The most important topic under discussion was the topographical position of the district, as to its salient points, its value for cover and protection under fire, and its convenience for rapid moving of troops.

The officers spent the morning going over the ground and putting themselves in the position of the officers who would have to defend us if such a thing did happen and an enemy were in the vicinity of Thorne.

Last night Col. George Little entertained the officers from out of town at dinner at the London Hotel club.

FARMER ASKS $500 AFTER RENTAL DEAL

Case Against John Bruce of North Dorchester Is Set Down For Court.
A farmers' jury will be called on to settle a farm dispute in the Dorchester county court.

The case is between John Bruce, a farmer, and John Bruce, a farmer, who is asking for $500 in damages over a rental deal for his 100-acre farm to John Bruce, North Dorchester.

Mr. Bruce claims that he rented his farm to John Bruce, North Dorchester, in March, 1923, for one year at a rental of $425. When the lease was terminated, plaintiff Bruce did not vacate the premises and did not follow out the terms of the lease as regards the sowing of ten acres in fall wheat and the sowing of 16 acres to clover and timothy.

Prices Are Satisfactory At Stock Sales In County

Harvesting of Middlesex Root Crops Has Progressed Slowly. With Considerable Quantities of Mangels, Turnips, Sugar Beets and Potatoes Still To Be Lifted.

Live stock at auction sales in Middlesex have been bringing satisfactory prices, according to reports of the department of agriculture and quite a few carloads of feeder cattle are being brought in, ranging in price from 54c to 62c per pound. The London district milk producers are forming a marketing organization, whereby all milk supplied to the city will be sold through one organization. The weather has been very unsatisfactory for farm operations during the last month, but particularly so during the last week. Sugar beets are being pulled and thrown in small piles, and will be left there until the ground is frozen. Turnips that are being brought in have much earth adhering to them. Digging potatoes has been a slow, dirty job.

Root Harvest Slow.
The harvesting of root crops has progressed very slowly, and considerable quantities of mangels, turnips, sugar beets and potatoes have not been lifted. The work has been delayed because of the unfavorable storage conditions. Because of frost injuries, some mangels have been pulled from several sections and put into storage. The weather is not keeping well.

R. Atkin, representative in Hastings county, reports that the fall wheat in his district. A Durham county farmer last week hauled in a crop of wheat which was a good one. During the fine days of the past week, excellent progress was made in plowing where the soil was not too wet. This work is fairly well advanced in central and western Ontario, excepting sections where large areas of roots are grown, and harvesting of which is well advanced. In the eastern counties, wet weather appears to have interfered more with plowing, and the representatives in some counties report that only about half of the usual area has been turned over for the season.

W. S. Van Every, St. Catharines, Lincoln county: Fresh milk cows are being readily picked up, both at auction and private sales. Prices for these range from $50 to $125. The milk and cream supply is somewhat smaller than ordinary. Butter on the local markets is selling quite readily at 20c per lb. Apples are beginning to command a little more. Prices remaining about the same, but the amount of turnover seems to be increasing. Potatoes range in price from $1.85 to $2.25 per bushel, depending upon color and quality. Cabbages are rather light in supply, and are selling in a wholesale way from $4 to $6 per hundred heads.

COMPEL MILITARY TRAINING DESPITE STUDENTS' ACTION

Associated Press Despatch.
Columbia, Mo., Nov. 16.—Facing an announcement by the Curators of the University of Missouri that compulsory military training will be compulsory in that institution despite any attitude of the student body, the student council self-governing body has called off an election to have been held Tuesday.

In this election, students were to vote on whether or not to compel military training which would require male students are required to take in their first two years. The vote was ordered by the council of the university, the Curators of the students' sentiment.

Bombarded with letters and telegrams denouncing the election as a violation of the constitution, the Curators met last week and issued the unexpected defi to the students.

Students and most of their assistants deny they have any connection with any communist organization. Both express belief the summary of the Curators to heed in the result of a student vote will tend to give them many recruits in their campaign and that eventually they will win. Military training, they say, has been made optional in recent years in several state schools.

British Aviator Completes First Lapse—Will Make Many Flying Tests.

MAPS AIR COURSES

Associated Press Despatch.

WILL MAP EMPIRE.
By JOHN GUNTHER.
Special Cable to The Advertiser and the Chicago Daily News.
London, Nov. 16.—Alan Cobham, England's most famous aviators, took off from Croydon at 11:30 o'clock this morning on the first lap of his transcontinental flight to survey the British Empire.

Cobham's destination on this trip is Cape Town, via Egypt and central Africa. The purpose of the trip is three-fold—first, to survey the air routes, atmospheric conditions and weather dangers for aviation in tropical Africa; second, to demonstrate the hard-core capabilities of British-made aircraft, and third, to make an effort to link up various scattered regions of the British empire by practical aviation routes, capable of being developed soon into regular passenger and mail service.

Cobham's machine, the same one in which last spring he made an extraordinary 17,000-mile flight to India and back, which he completed without a single accident, forced descent or engine mishap, is already being equipped with a tropical camping equipment, and movie camera. Cobham expects to reach Cape Town within eight days, return by the west coast and reach England again in a fortnight.

PHYSICAL EXAMINATION OF ALL DRIVERS URGED

Magistrate Advises Move As a Step Toward Lessening Fatalities.

"Everyone who drives an automobile should undergo an examination for a license to do so," said Magistrate Graydon this morning. This is advocated as the first step toward cutting down the great number of motor fatalities, which he believes a disgrace to Canada and the United States.

In Magistrate Graydon's mind the examination should include not only a mere test of the driver's knowledge of how to start and stop a car, but also a physical examination by some competent physician.

It is suggested that such an examination would take in not only sight and hearing, but would make sure that the nervous temperament of a person did not make him a dangerous piece of machinery as an automobile may prove to be. Persons subject to fits and kindred ailments would also be barred from driving cars.

POSTOFFICE WILL ADD 51 MEN FOR CHRISTMAS

Christmas mail has not started to come yet, said Postmaster Graydon this morning, adding that of course there was the usual pre-Christmas rush of advertising literature through the mails. The only unusual order yet is yet is for an abnormal number of department stores to have their mail money orders for Great Britain being issued, he stated.

To facilitate the handling of Christmas mail matter, 51 extra men will be added to the staff of the local office the week in which Christmas occurs. Forty extra men will be added to the regular carriers in their deliveries, four will be required for transfer work at the C. N. B. depot, and the other five will assist inside the local office.

FRENCH TO DRIVE FOR NORTH POLE

Will Send Expedition by Aeroplane and Sleds Into Polar Regions.

Associated Press Despatch.
Paris, Nov. 17.—The French navy department plans an expedition to the North Pole next spring from the pole to New York City, it was announced today.

The expedition will leave Dunkirk, France, about the end of April, establish a base at Spitzbergen, in the Norwegian archipelago, and then strike off for the pole, carrying sledges, which are specially devised autosledges capable of travelling on either water or ice.

Upon the arrival at the pole, the plans provide the members of the expedition will take off by air for the North Pole.

The expedition counts heavily for its success on the amphibious autosledges, which are the recent invention of Otto Sverdrup, former captain of the polar ship Fram. They are said to be capable of carrying six tons at a speed over the ice of about 15 miles an hour, but their mechanical construction is being kept secret.

The expedition will split, six men undertaking the New York flight and the remainder of the expedition exploring the polar region with the auto sledges.

Naval Commander Scales, chief of the expedition; Lieut. Darois, wireless expert; Lieut. King, Bayard, medical officer; and two other officers and two mechanics to be chosen later, will undertake the flight, hoping to make Point Barrow, Alaska, in ten days. The plane, a biplane, has already been purchased to care for the journey from Point Barrow southward. These will be stored at the Mackenzie river, Winnipeg and Chicago. The schedule calls for arriving in New York about Aug. 1.

USE OLD ABUTMENTS, IS PLAN SUGGESTED

Action Will Not Be Taken Unless City Requires Land Near Bridge.

While it may prove possible to make use of the old abutments of the old street crossing bridge at Ridout street in constructing the city's new traffic bridge at that point such action will not be taken unless the city council is of the opinion that the old bridge is a nuisance to the city and the land upon which they stand.

This point was made clear at last night's meeting of the city council, when the city engineer, Mr. J. H. Macdonald, in connection with the proposed Ridout street bridge, for the erection of which citizens are asked to vote $75,000 on Dec. 7, whether it was the intention to erect the new bridge partly in the piers at present supporting the railway bridge.

The mayor pointed out that the estimates for the bridge contained a provision of $5,000 in the event of a being found impossible to use the old piers, that is, if it proves necessary to build entirely new piers, the sum asked for will still be sufficient to complete the job.

Mr. Macdonald explained that it may be possible, should the piers prove to be in good condition, to use them, and thus effect a considerable saving in the cost of the bridge, but in the event their ownership by the city would be clearly established before a bridge is placed on them.
