e Schoolmaster Abroad How to Make Teachers Associations More Useful

The different sections of the Outario teachers association assembled yesterday forenoon in the education depurtment. In the public school teachers section the secretary read a paper by R. Lewis (who was unable to attend) on "Christmas and midsummer shows," which was well received. After discussion the following motions were passed:—That in the opinion of this section, after a teacher has obtained any class or certificate, five years of successful teaching from the time of obtaining his certificate should entitle him to have his certificate should entitle him to have his certificate raised another grade, but every teach r must have passed from class to class by examination."

"That oral examinations on P. E. days are a benefit in our public schools, but that they should not be confined to the work gone over during the term."

In the high school section.

In the high school section association assembled yesterday forent least the place were negated. "Received That in the cluster of the exhibitions, which have no educative value, and should not be confined to the work gone over during the term."

The committee have under considers reportation the president's address reported. The introduction of politics into achool matters as is done in the United States should be strongly opposed. The number of schools in the united States should be strongly opposed. The number of schools in the brile is read is increasing. (Applause.)

Before the adoption of the report of the committee considerable discussion took places as to whether a minister of education to the work was more suitable. A number of the members of schools in the time of obtaining his certificate raised another grade, but every teach r must have passed if one class to class by examination."

MR. ROSS' ADDRESS.
George Ross, M. P. delivered an instructive address on "how to make teachers' associations more useful." A more lengthy session should be substituted for the present session should be substituted for the present short session. There should be a long session held annually instead of the short semi-annual conventions. The advantages of such a move would be that the teacher would have less annoyances incident to the obtaining of the unwilling consent of trustees and the abrupt stoppage of work to get away to the meeting. At a long session the teachers could interchange their views on matters appertaining to their particular work. The next point would be the preparation of a practical and comprehensive program to be carried out during the convention. The program should contain other subjects than of teaching. There could be literary and other subjects to relieve the minds of teachers. There should be no failure in of teachers. There should be no failure in the carrying out of each part of the pro-gram, and teachers and others should have sufficient time to prepare their papers. He believed in compulsory attendance at these conventions on the part of teachers. [Hear, hear.] The school act may be amended in such a way as to give the inspector power to fine a teacher $5, (or whatever may be decided upon), for each time he absents himself from the convention. He thought they sang several selections in which dif-ferent movements of the body were intro-duced. The children—the oldest was not more than nine years of age—did credit to themselves as well as their teacher, Mrs. Riches. Their knowledge of music was astonishing. A vote of thanks was tendered to both pupils and teacher for their

EVENING SESSION. The president called the convention to order at 8 p.m., when a number of delegates reported as to the standing of their

THE SCHOOLMASTER ABROAD.

Principal McCabe of the Ottawa Normal school delivered an interesting address on The Schoolmaster Abroad Lord Brougham in one of his speeches says; "Let the soldier be abroad if he will, he can do nothing in this age. There is another person who is abroad, the schoolmaster is abroad and I will trust to him to do more with his primer than the soldier in all his array." [Applause.] He traced some of the work the schoolmaster had acsome of the work the schoolmaster had accomplished. The proper aim of education is the culture and development of the whole man; the culture and development of all the parts of the human being, physical, intellectual and moral. He held that the chief work of the teacher was to deal with the intellectual powers, but he should not neglect the cultivation of the physical and moral powers. The number should be truncht tellectual and moral. He held that the chief work of the teacher was to deal with the intellectual powers, but he should not neglect the cultivation of the physical and moral powers. The pupil should be taught the cultivation of the senses and a desire for knowledge and he must be taught the proper way of acquiring it. The first powers are the powers of observation, and with this the memory comes in and then the "Masoning faculties. One of the means of the development of the mind are text-books. He defined a text-book as if it were a reservoir, often very shallow and often a very muddy one. It is one from which the teacher can take notes occasionally and the pupil can do so but the great knowledge.

William Johnston was sent down for twenty-five days for stealing a watch from George Roseback. George Goddard, a boy, pleaded guilty to breaking into a bonded G.T. car. He got $5 and costs or 2 days as he had already put 5 days in jail. James Emaney and Frank Mallett, charged with committing an aggravated assault on William Boyd at the Nipissing hotel on the 22nd uit, were dismissed. William Woodhouse was charged with using insulting language towards William Wilson, and the latter was charged with assaulting the former. Woodhouse was discharged and Wilson fined $15 and costs or 50 days for stealing a watch from George Roseback. George Goddard, a boy, pleaded growing the soerback of the soerback. This delightfully aesthetic and charmingly utter opera was produced by Haverly's company before an immense audience at Horticultural gardens last night. The that the senses of the child must in the first place be awakened. He showed where the methods were improvements upon the old and how these new methods were applied. Regarding the teaching of reading, the most difficult books to be prepared are a good elementary reader and grammar. Both these books were much needed in schools. In the old way the alphabet was learned in different ways, backwards and forwards. Not be one should the first reading lessons be comprised of significant words but words perfectly familier to the pupil and such words as "to," "so" and "as" should be omitted. Every one of the first reading lessons should be a little story perfectly in accordance with the little pupils world. He believed in the phonic system of reading and sketched the method of the phonic system in teaching reading, where the pupil was trained to speak the sound instead of the name. One of the greatest faults in achools was a want of distinctiveness. In the subject of arithmetic the child's first knowledge of numbers always comes to him in the abstract. He to knowledge of grammar, geogplace be awakened. He showed where the pavilion was crowded to its utmost capato him in the abstract. He took tively. HANLAN AND ROSS.
The St. John Telegraph sees fit to haul Hanlan over the coals for declining to meet Wallace Ross this year. It says that "a champion who is always sick or who has too much private business to attend to whenever he is wanted to defend his title whenever he is wanted to defend his title against another oarsman, whom many think his superior, had no business to be champion at all and should be made to take his choice between defending the title or resigning it altogether." All of which reads very well altogether." All of which reads very well Mr. Telegraph from your point of view. Hanlan never was afraid of vour darling Wallace, is not now afraid of him and never will be afraid of him. The champion is in anything but condition, as is quite evident to the people who meet him every day. Besides this is his busy season at the island and he wants to make hay while the sun shines. The New Brunswicker knows all this and makes use of it as a means of blowing his own horn. Ross can claim the championship and as many other titles as he pleases, but that won't make him the first oarsman in the world. Hanlan still eccupies this position and when he meets the N. B. blower next year it will be a very cold day for Ross.

Sir: As your paper is always open to redress the wrongs of the people, I take the liberty of asking your indulgence to ventilate a case of my own, which I think the present powers at head-quarters, Ottawa, should be held a countable for. Until a few months ago I held a position in the postoffice service in Ontario for nearly ten years, but resigned for two reasons, viz: the pay I received was too small to exist on and to better my position. When I resigned I wrote to the postmaster general asking for the usual allowance granted to employes in the service on resigning, but I received a letter from the deputy-P. M. G. informing me that as I was leaving the service for my own special benefit I was not entitled to any grant. I answered that several of my friends who had resigned to better their positions had received grants from the department, but I received word that the grants mentioned were given in apecial cases, or something to that effect. Now, sir, one of the persons I mentioned left the service to open a grocery business in Toronto and was granted something over (To the Editor of The World.) Now, sir, one of the persons I mentioned left the service to open a grocery business in Toronto and was granted something over $200; the other to open a hardware store, and he continued to receive his salary for two months after he had resigned his position in the Toronto postoffice. Two others from the same office received something over $200 and $500 respectively, and why I should not be treated like my fellow exclerks seems strange. Again, I paid a part of my salary, or rather it was deducted from my pay each month at Ottawa towards the superannuation fund, and as I never re-

I am aware that there is practiced every day in our own city post office acts equally as unfair, if not more so, than the case I have stated. Clerks who have been in the office for ten or fifteen years, doing faithful duty, are kept at a standstill as regards the superannuation fund, and as I never received any benefit from said fund I think I am fairly entitled to have the amount deducted from my salary the years I was in the service returned to me on my retirement.

The second boat of the season from the east, the Northcote, arrived at Edmonton on June 23. Mrs. Col. Stewart, J. S. Robinson, C. Stewart and J. M. Bannerman left on her for points cast on July 8. Geo. A. Simpson, Walter Beatty and David Beatty, dominion land surveyors, arrived by the Northcote with a very large onefit of supplies. They have contracts of township and section surveying in Edmonton district that will probably keep them employed until next January, when they expect further work that will last for two

The 1st of July was observed as a holi-day throughout the Edmonton and adjoin-ing settlements. The weather in the morning was rather cloudy and cool. A large number of people had gathered in town the night before to attend the ball at the Jasper number of people had gathered in town the night before to attend the ball at the Jasper house, and these with others who arrived in the morning made quite a crowd on the the race ground at 10 clock, when the sports were to begin. The track had been laid out in the sod in the form of an oval, half mile around, and had been mowed and cleared off pretty well but was not hard enough for either horses or men to make the very best time. Two establishments where strictly temperance beer was dished out to the thirsty ones, were inside the ring and were well patronized, perhaps as much on account of remembrances as for any virtue existing in the beverage.

Donald Ross, proprietor of the Edmonton house, announces that in future he will not feed his guests on dried buffalo meat and pemmican, but on "substantials more in keeping with the onward march of civilization."

—When men, women and children receive extensive benefit from any special means or source, we do not wonder that it stands foremest in their opinion as an ever present sabject for unstinted praise. W. H. Woodward, a well-known and respected citizen of New Haven, Conn., residing at No. 23 Audubon street, testifies to the healing nower of the St. Jacobe Oil M. healing power of the St. Jacobs Oil. Mr. Woodward says he took cold sometime ago. It settled in his left shoulder and neek in the form muscular rheumatism. He suffered a great deal from it, and is not particularly desirous of receiving another such a visit. Having or receiving another such a visit. Having heard much about the Great German Remedy he bought a bottle and gave his neck and shoulder a good rubbing with it. The night he made the application he could scarcely move his head, because of the extreme pain and soreness. The next day all the trouble had disappeared.

What Every One Says Must be True. All unite in praise of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry who have tried its efficacy in curing Cholera Morbus, Crampe, Dysentery, Nausia, and Stomach and Bowel Complaints generally in children or adults. Every person should keep a supply on hand.

Mr. George Tolen, druggist, Gravenhurst, Ont., writes: "My customers who have used Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure say that it has done them more good than anything they have ever used." It has indeed a wonderful influence in purifying the blood and curing diseases of the Digestive Organs, the Liver, Kidneys and all disorders of the system.
