London, Oct. 12.—Leonard Courtney, joint secretary of the treasury, opening the Liberal Club at Torpoint, denied that the government arrogated to themselves the credit for the victories in Egypt. That country, he said, must eventually become independent of foreign control. The cost of the war should be defrayed by Egypt, No doubt the bondholders would have to forego something, though it was not for them that England undertook the war. It would be necessary to consult the powers regarding a settlement. Mr. Courtney said the policy of the government was to detach Egypt from the Siltan, to look after the Suez came, and to allow the Egyptians to stew in their own juice, and in so acting to warn the khedive that his future position depended upon his management of saffairs.

By prisoner's first expression, "My God, I've shot him," and by his subsequent procedure, it was probable that he sympathized with the family of the victim as much as anyone else. In all cases the conduct of the prisoner was the best evidence. Witnesses might lie, that cannot. Counsel then reviewed prisoner's action subsequent to the tracedy.

counset their reviewed prisoner's action subsequent to the tragedy.

CHARGE TO THE JURY.

After reviewing the evidence the judge-proceeded to state the first question: Did the deceased come to his death at the hands of the prisoner? It was shown that he had. It had also been shown that it was an unit the deceased come to his death at the had. It had also been shown that it was an unlawful killing. The boy had been gnilty of no offence for which the prisoner had a right to arrest. It had not been proved that the boys had been trespassing at all. It had not been shown that the lake on which they were sailing was wholly inclosed property. Being an unlawful killing, the jury must find him guilty of murder or manslaughter. The law implies unalice rom every unlawful killing and if that implication is not refuted, it is the duty of the jury to find the prisoner guilty of murder: if rebutted, of manslaughter. As to expressed malice, prisoner had certainly made threats, which if intended at the time, went to show expressed malice. It was for the jury to judge whether the threats were made in earnest or not.

Prisoner's statement that "it didn't mat ter, he was a constable anyway," if meant that he was justified in what he had done, might be taken in conjunction with his previous threats to prove that the killing was intentional: other statements were made by prisoner, to the effect that he didn't intend to shoot the boy, and it was for the jury to weigh the two set of statements. If the discharge was intentional: twas the jury to weigh the two set of statements. If the discharge was intentional, it was the jury to weigh the two set of statements. If the discharge was intentional, it was the jury to weigh the two set of statements. If the discharge was intentional, it was the jury to weigh the two set of statements are made by prisoner; general behavior after the accident certainly seemed to be that of a man who had accidentally killed another. If the jury had a reasonable doubt as to what the intention was, they ought to give the prisoner the benefit of the doubt and find the prisoner.

reasonable doubt as to what the intention was, they ought to give the prisoner the benefit of the doubt and find the prisoner guilty of manslaughter.

SENTENCED TO BE HANGED.

The jury retired at 1.45 and returned into court about 5.30 with a verdict of murder. Amid breathless silence the judge proceeded to pass sentence. The only reply that Albert made in reply to the judge's question: "Have you anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon you?"

Afters took the sentence in a most stote manner and did not move a muscle. His wife, who was in court, wept bitterly under a great load of sorrow. The doomed man was then removed to jail and assigned to the condemned cell. The verdict was a surprise to all.

THE EXECUTIFE COMMITTEE.

Various Civic Considerations The Dismissal of Jasse Carley.

Ald Boawell presided at the meeting of the executive committee yesterday afternoon. Among the routine business transated the pay of the writers of the voters lists was increased from $1.50 to $2 per day. The city commissioner wrote a letter endorsing the request of the Toronto button company, which is located at 118 By street, for exemption from taxation for tenyears. The city solicitor sent in a written opinion to the effect that it was a question more of principle than of individual hardship in not granting the prayer of Alex P. Lewry and Annie Snider in the matter of the Elm street (Teradle to Enzybeth) sewer. The petitioners asked the city to assume a larger proportion of the expense owing to the large frontage of church property on the street.

City Treasurer Harman said he had secured $5100 out of different departmental as upluses in sid of the Sherbourne street sewer.

much midding well.
In conclusion I beg to say I feel confident that when the Rev. Mr. Laing has looked carefully into the school law and the official reports on the public and high schools of Ontario, and considered that those schools are all open to us as widely as any other denomination, and that they are supported by our money cent for cent and dollar for dollar in proportion to our property, as compared with the property of any other denomination, he will be glad to find that denomination, he will be glad to find that we are on a footing of perfect equality with himself in relation to the educational institutions of this remark. institutions of this young, free and enlight-ened and happy country—and that he will say long may it continue so—free from prejudice and whatever may produce pre-judice.

Besides the Rev. John Laing the Rev.

Besides the Rev. John Laing the Rev. John Langtry also has written a letter on Marmion, in which, I think, he shows how utterly unfit Marmion is to be used as a text book in our schools. If this rev. gentleman, who is a finished scholar, a sound logician, a man of large reading, of culture, of refined feelings, and much experience of the world—if he is not able to discuss the fitness of Marmion as a text book without telling his readers his opinion of papal infallibility, of debasel priests in Paris, etc., what may we not expect in the way of conwhat may we not expect in the way of con-troversy from the high school students and teachers in our schools throughout the pro-

And Mr. Langtry tells his confiding And Mr. Langtry tells his confiding readers that Marmion though a fiction, is founded on historic truth, and that crimes such as are recorded there were of frequent occurrence in the middle ages, so that, practically, Marmion is a true history, and must be accepted as such by its readers; and catholics will be present in school while protestants read this true history of the crimes of Catholics in past centuries.

There is one condition on which I will most cheerfully subscribe to the use of Marmion. Each day after the reading by protestants of this true history of Catholic crime, let the catholics read a chapter of crime, let the catholics read a chapter of the penal laws of Ireland by the great pro-testant historian and statesman, the great Edmund Burke. If something of this kind is not agreed to then let catholics every-where withdraw from the high schools and collegiate institutes, and thus protect themselves from insult.
