ffalo on Saturday on a charge of lareny, all because she and her husband are liam H. Clarke of that city out of $300. The Hutchens' have been engaged in the museum business and exhibited an automatic city at the Fair. A few weeks ago museum business and exhibited an automatic city at the Fair. A few weeks ago they called on Lawyer Clarke, with whom they were acquainted, and stated that they intended to exhibit their miniature city at the Toronto Industrial Exhibition. They needed money for the enterprise and induced Clarke to lend them $300. They gave him an order on Treasurer J. P. Edwards of the Industrial Fair to secure them. Two days before the close of the Exhibition Lawyer Clarke came to Toronto to cash his order on Mr. Edwards. He was met by Hutchens who requested him to lay his application for the money. The museum proprietor gave as a reason for making his request that he was just then making a deal with another person and he did not desire that person to get the impression that he had such limited means that his creditors were forced to make close connection. The Buffalo lawyer upon this understanding agreed to wait until the negotiations finished. After waiting a day or two Clarke went to the treasurer and presented his order. To his disgust he was told that Hutchens had collected all the money due to him and had gone away. He had skipped out and left his accommodating creditor in the lurch. Clarke went back to Buffalo and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Hutchens and his wife. The wife was arrested at Niagara Falls, N.Y., but Hutchens is still believed to be in Toronto, and so far has escaped arrest.

"BEHOLD THE MAN!"

"BEHOLD THE MAN!" . Lydia von Finkelstein Moun re on the Scenes of Christ's Life. Hecture on the Scenes of Christ's Life. Hundreds were turned away from the Pavilion yesterday afternoon, when Lydia von Finkelstein Mountford gave the first of her series of lectures. Auditors filled every seat and stood in every vacant space in the building, while the windows on the balcony were thronged with eager faces. The subject of the lady lecturer was: "Ecce-Homo"—"Behold the Man!"—and she was listened to with rapt attention during the two hours of her address. Mrs. Mountford is already well known to Torontonians, and, as a native of Palestine, born a is already well known to Torontonians, and, as a native of Palestine, born a Hebrew, but professing the Christian religion, she is peculiarly well fitted to interpret the story of Christ as it is known to us in the New Testament. The oratorical endowments of Mrs. Mountford are considerable likewise, and her discourses are marked by vivacity and magnetism. Her lecture yesterday consisted of a discursive review of the domestic side of Christ's life, so to speak, commencing with His birth and ending with His ascension to heaven. With vivid phrases she showed her hearers the surroundings and the acts of the Saviour in their oriental aspect. She explained away the theories as to the poverty in which Christ was born. In the light of Jewish custom and tradition, Joseph and Mary were well-to-do. That Mary was an independent property holder was plain since she had come up to Bethlehem from Nazareth to pay taxes and also to proclaim her marriage and name her husband Joseph as thenceforth her legal representative. That they had quarters in the stable was no indication of poverty. In Jewish cities at the present time it is the custom of innkeepers in times when there is a press of business to betray their Hebraic extraction by charging an extortionate rate for shelter in their stables.

To the lecturer, the best proof of Christ's divine origin was the fact that the sacrifice made by Mary after His birth was of doves and pigeons, not of lambs. This had been taken as an indication of Mary's poverty, but to her it meant that the divine babe being fact that He was not married. A native of Palestine would sooner be imprisoned for years and live on bread and water with the prospect of being married than live in a palace all his life condemned to bachelorhood. The meaning of the phrase "He had not where to lay His head," meant that He was not married and not that He was poverty-stricken.

Throughout her lecture Mrs. Mountford illustrated her statements with incidents of her own life as a child in the country of Christ, and acted out many scenes alluded to in the Bible as they are seen in Jerusalem to-day. This week the lactures will her lectures and live in the statement with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporated with a capita

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholers, dysentery or diarrhea, and have to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooking and green fruit is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the market for all summer complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed no further trouble will be experienced.

Artists had persistently misrepresented Christ in our eyes. As an infant He was shown lying on straw, whereas He was attired in the red-embroidered swadding robes of a first-born. As a man they showed him lean and poverty-stricken, whereas He must have been a beautiful man and a golden-voiced orator to talk to thousands on the seashore. He was a richly attired man, too, the seamless garment He wore was certain testimony of that.

Mrs. Mountford explained at length the necessary odium that must have attached to the name of the Saviour, from the fact that He was not married. Henry A. King & Co.,'s special wire from Ladenburg, Thaiman & Co., New York: The favorable reports from trade centres which have been coming in week by week since the tariff settlement were somewhat modified in reports published to-day by the mercantile agencies. While there are still singa of improvement in various directions they are not so marked, and the aggregate bank clearings for the week, while 7 per cent. larger than those of the same period in 1895, are still 20 per cent. or more below the totals of 1892. The stock market seems to reflect this state of affairs in business; nevertheless, though speculative interests seem to incline to the bear.
