Mrs. Saunders left there on Friday for her home in Lynn and Mrs. Mess nger returned home on let of fifteen barrels, and the law wiselet of litteen carries, and the awwise-ly allows a very generous percentage, but because no effort was made in my bahali I was convicted upon a set of facts—and the only possible facts— which could not for a moment afford here, returned home on Thursday, ac-which could not for a moment afford any opportunity for a magis-rate to convict if my agent had pleaded not guilty and employed counsel to protect my rights.

My testimony concerning the quality of these identical apples is supported by the statement of Mr. Frank H. Willett, who saw me packing them and who bought six barrels out of the lot which were ther packed without seeing their conterts. I am not ashamed to have all the facts known about my apples and I challenge any competent Our former teacher Miss Ina Durling, of l'aradise, being home for a short have all the lacte known about my apples and I challenge any competer person to show that I pack apples improperly. If the proceedings in the police court were as reported to me, the captain of the vessel which carried these apples unfortunately declined to contest the prosecution upon the ground of avoiding expense. He submitted to a line of $1.00 rather than put $\mathbb{V}_{\text{r}}$ Inglis to the expense of employing counsel to protect his rights. The result has been that the name of $\mathbb{M}_{\text{r}}$ Inglis has been mentioned in the newspapers as a ran who fraudulently packs apples—misconduct which I, for one, believe $\mathbb{M}_{\text{r}}$. Inglis wholly incapable of, and I trust that this letter will to some extent set the matter right before the public. -Wm. Vardy, well known here, is rethe month. Bridgetown, N. S. Oct. 16, 1903. To all whom it may concern:

This is to certify that I have carried apples to the St. John market for Mr. Charles F. Inglis of Tupperville, N. S., for upwards of twenty years, and kave exposed them for sale and have sold them for him in St. John. During al! this time I have never heard one complaint concerning his apples until I heard a few days since that he had been fined $1.00 in the St. John police court. The apples were alleged to have been improperly marked or fraudulently packed. They were carried in one of my vessels, of which the captair is a young man, and he scene to have thought it desirable to allow Mr. Inglis to be fined rather than employ counsel—thought-less of the effect upon the reputation of Mr. Inglis. I am personally acquainted with Mr. Inglis and I believe him to be wholly incapable of fraudulently packing or marking apples either through ignorance or by design.
