From Miss Robertson.

KOFU, Sept. 28th, 1898.

It has been neither lack of love nor want of interest that has kept my pen silent during the past months, but just full days and a feeling of utter mental inability when night came to get myself down to letter-writing.

Taking the year altogether it has been a happy one, with many blessings and not a few joys. Our home-life is so contented and restful. If it were not such an ordeal to get here, Kofu would compare favorably with any of our stations. Its out-of-the-way situation makes it very difficult
