

nearly as possible in every way to those used in regular business houses. Commercial correspondence receives the attention it deserves, the student having ample practice in writing original letters connected with the details of the business in which he is engaged. He is also called upon to apply his knowledge of commercial law and to put into practice the comprehensive principles acquired in the Theoretical Department.

The graduates of this institution are noted everywhere for their rapidity and correctness in calculations, and for the simplicity, grace, and finish of their writing. Many of the prominent business men of this city and country received their thorough training and acquired their systematic and careful habits at this institution. Its graduates occupy high and honorable positions as clerks, book-keepers, shorthand-writers, wholesale and retail merchants, manufacturers, contractors, bank and insurance managers and assistants, in the civil service, and in every branch of industry. The additions recently made, not only in the accommodation but in the teaching staff, and the improvements in the Actual Business Department make the college, under the management of Messrs. Davis & Baile, one of the most complete of its kind on the continent. The public are invited to inspect its unsurpassed facilities for giving thorough instruction in those branches of education that form the true basis of success in business life.
