

THE dry
dead leaves
flit by
with their
weird tunes,
Like
failing
murmurs
of some
conquered creed,
Graven
in mystic markings
with
strange runes,

That none but stars
and
biting winds
may read.

A. LAMPMAN

246a