

rived the day the city was ringing with the sensation of his attempted assassination, and the desperate fight he was making to uphold law and order in the South.

When Miss Walker read that article in her paper she resolved to marry him immediately. She gave McLeod a wedding present of a half million dollars. He wept for joy and gratitude, and kissed her with a fervour that satisfied her hungry heart that he was the one peerless lover of the world.

WEDDING

TWO
As
rec
paroxysm o
the day of tl
tions were c
gossip over Gaston, and in a day.

The letter
him that his Gaston was s
and showing
the last mom
script of the Durham, and
This record w
and bore his s
facts.

When the C
flushed, looked
pression of spe
tears.

Her father v
locked himself
her or speak to l