tively to ask to be excused from taking the position.

Or. Briggs was all but unanimously re-elected as book steward, and in accordinated. Like a certain Sunday school superimtendent in a story he said he wanted to see what his neignbors thought of him, and this was his excuse for putting them to the trouble of an election. Incept had done it in a very kind and pleasant way, but he could not see it to be either wise or right to continue. In favor of the length and character of his service he thought they would not have reduced him in rank for the few years longer.

James Week, S. E. Clement, J. F. Fow-fair. Those who supported the suggestion pointed out that grand lodge officers were elected for a two-year to be faithful and efficient.

Dr. Withrow was re-elected editor of the Methodist magazine and the Sunday school periodicals. He responded from the gallery of the church, and restricted as book steward, and in according to the faithful and efficient.

Dr. Withrow was re-elected editor of the church, and referred, like Dr. Sutherland, to his thirty-two years in the saddle. Rev. D. W. Johnston was re-elected editor of the style of forage cap now in the first of the fact of the continue. In favor of the length and character of his service he thought they would not have reduced him in rank for the few years longer.

Hesides this, he had several things in his mind, among them a history of Methodism in this country. If conference saw their way to it, they might fillow him to finish up his year's work thill next annual conference, and it would be embarrassing for the associate secretary to drop out just now.

In the church movement, he would like to have a finger in the pie, and he concluded:

"Brethren, I am tired—very tired—let me rest. Get some other comrade who will do the work better."

Proposition Failed to Carry by Two-Thirds Majority-Convention Nearly Over.

The civic reception to the Grand Lodge of Oddfellows in the eguncil chamber of the city hall last night was a pleasing function that made a fitting ronto. Nothing now remains to be done except to dispose of some unim-portant routine business at a brisf business session, to be held this morn-

It was a graceful move on the part of Acting Mayor Shaw to allow the mantle to fail upon the shoulders of Ald. Oliver last night, and the latter bore his honors with creditable grace and modesty. With Mrs. Oliver, he received the guests as they passed thru the council chamber, which was artistically decorated with paims and ferns, and there was a hearty handciasp for all. There were probably more than 700 guests, including a number of grandlodges distant and local, with a fair sprinkling of civic officials, aldermen and well-known citizens.

A long refreshment table was spread in the main hall on the ground floor, and an orchestra on the upper and lower floors provided dashing music. The doors were thrown open at 9 o'clock, and it was 11 when the orchestra struck into "God Save the King." It was a graceful move on the part

Reducing the Age Limit.

Reducing the Age Limit.

The most important issue dealt with at any or the business sessions of the Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F., came up at yesterday afternoon's sitting. The proposition considered was the reducing of the age limit for qualification to enter the order from 21 years of age to 18 years. The advocates of the change held the decided view that membership would be considerably increased from year to year by such a step, and that there would be no falling our from the general standard of membership. Against this it was contended that the effect would be to introduce youths who had not arrived at an age to give proper maturity of thought to the obligations they were assuming, and that the present restriction that the age of manhood must be reached was nece sary to safeguard the interests of the order. The champions of a crange showed their strength by rolling up 124 votes sateguard the interests of the order.

The champions of a change showed their strength by rolling up 124 votes against 70 by their opponents, but as the constitution called for a two-th rds majority on a question of the kind, the age requirement will remain as it is for the present. Five more votes would have turned the scales.

Blennial Conventions.

Another proposad considered was that the convention should be made a triennial instead of an annual af-James Week, S. E. Clement, J. F. Fow-
